The ordinary revenues from all sources for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, were $269,000,586.62; the ordinary expenditures for the same period were $238,660,008.93; leaving a surplus revenue of $38,340,577.69, which was applied as follows: To the redemption of United States notes, etc., $10,071,617; redemption of fractional currency, $14,043,458.05; redemption of six per cent. bonds for the sinking fund, $447,500; to increase of cash balance in the Treasury, $5,778,002.64. The amount due the sinking fund for the year was $33,729,833.20, leaving a deficiency on this account of $3,389,255.51. The total revenues for the current year will amount to $265,500,000, and the expenditures to $232,430,643.72, which will leave a surplus revenue of $33,069,356.28; and as the amount required for the sinking fund is $35,424,804.80, there will be a deficit on this account of $2,355,448.52.

The receipts from customs for the year ended June 30, 1876, were $148,071,984.61, and at the corresponding date of 1877 they were $130,956,493.07—a decrease of $17,115,491.54. The receipts for the first quarter of the last fiscal year were $37,554,728.53, while for the corresponding period of this year they were $36,983,531.56—a decrease of $571,196.97.

The Register of the Treasury reports the total tonnage of vessels of the United States to be 4,242,600 tons, a decrease of 36,858 tons from that of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1876. The actual decrease is believed to be about 13,563 tons, this amount being the excess of the losses over the gains during the last fiscal year, the balance being accounted for by dropping canal boats, exempt under the act of Congress approved April 18, 1874. The tonnage of vessels built as given by the Register is 176,592 tons, being a decrease from that of the previous year of 26,994 tons, or over 15 per centum. The number of vessels built is 1029.

During the past year there have been inspected 4061 vessels, involving an aggregate tonnage of 1,014,912.36 tons, and licenses have been issued to 14,293 officers.

The estimates of appropriations required to carry on the government for the next fiscal year are as follows: Legislative establishment, $2,845,256.16; executive establishment, $132,288,462.25; judicial establishment, $391,000,000; foreign intercourse, $1,214,395.50; military establishment, $31,597,270,682.68; naval establishment, $1,633,234.40; Indian affairs, $5,415,951.20; pensions, $28,000,000; public service, $8,093,672.72; miscellaneous, $15,143,585.22; permanent annual appropriations, $142,581,147.59. Total, $280,688,796.38.

Some Fools.

Charles Robinson, aged sixteen, became infatuated with Ida Westervelt, aged fourteen, of Jersey City Heights, and, despite the remonstrances of her parents and the coolness displayed by Ida, persisted in calling at the house. On Saturday he called with a bookmark, intending to present it to the girl as a token of his love. She rejected the gift, and young Robinson hastily left the room and went into the yard, and hanged himself with the clothes line. He was cut down in time to save his life.

At Norfolk, Va., Sunday, a jealous youth named Benjamin Godfrey, aged nineteen, shot and instantly killed Miss Mollie E. Winlagder, aged seventeen, and then shot himself through the left breast, probably fatally.

Report of the Postmaster-General.

Postmaster-General Key says the total expenditures of his department were $33,486,322.14; receipts $27,331,585.26; excess of expenditures over receipts, $5,954,737.18.

In addition to the receipts shown above, there was realized on grants from the Treasury for various purposes, hereinafter detailed, the sum of $7,013,300.00, making the total amount received from all sources, $34,544,885.26, an excess over the expenditures of $1,058,562.82. Included in the above statement of expenditures is the sum of $1,163,818.20, paid on liabilities incurred in previous fiscal years, and not properly chargeable to the expenditures of the last fiscal year. Deducting this sum from the aggregate amount leaves $32,322,504.24, as the actual expenditures for the year.

In the receipts from money-order business is included the sum of $63,261.84, received from international money-orders for the year ended June 30, 1876, which, deducted from the total receipts in the above statement, leaves the sum of $109,148.01 as the actual receipts from that source, and reduces the amount of revenues for the year to $27,468,328.42. The expenditures and receipts of the department therefore, on account of and appertaining to the business of the last fiscal year (excluding expenditures and receipts on account of previous years), are as follows, viz.:

Expenditures	$32,322,504.24
Receipts, ordinary, from money-order business and from official stamps	27,468,328.42
Leaving an excess of expenditures over receipts of	4,854,180.82

The expenditures during the fiscal year were $222,834.86 more than those of the preceding year, and $3,333,483.55 less than the estimates therefor.

The sum of $1,024,719.16 was derived from newspaper publishers; 3,288,290 dead letters were received containing $40,062.41 in money and $1,301,780.49 in valuable papers; $4754 could not be restored to owners. There were forwarded 4,378,127 registered letters and $367,438.80 was collected in fees. There were at the close of the year 4098 offices supplied by mail-messengers, at an annual cost of $659,497. There was an increase over the preceding year in transportation of 11,083,543 miles; and in cost $183,755. Deducting the decrease in cost for railway post-office clerks, route, local, and other agents, $15,555, the total increase in cost was $168,190.

The amount of fines imposed upon contractors and deductions made from their pay for failures and other delinquencies for the last fiscal year ending June 30, 1877, was $89,755.46, and the amount remitted for the same period was $25,473.33, leaving the net amount of fines and deductions $64,282.14. The cost of repairing mail bags has been reduced 92 per cent. There were 543 arrests for offences against the postal laws. The percentage of losses is one in 5000 letters sent through the mails.

The cost of the United States transatlantic mail-steamship service for the year 1877 was $159,742.48, being a reduction of $12,600.61 from the cost of the same service for the year 1876.

The number of domestic money-orders issued during the year, was 4,925,931, amounting to $72,820,509.70, and the number paid was 4,769,673, amounting to $72,448,156.53. The domestic orders repaid amounted in value to $460,318.72, which sum is said to be added to the amount of the orders paid, making the total payments $72,908,475.25, and the excess of the payments over the issues $87,965.55. Fees amounting to $623,748.98 were received by postmasters for the issue of domestic orders. A decrease is shown by the foregoing statement of the year's transactions, when compared with that of the previous year, amounting to $4,215,463.08, or 5.48 per cent., in the orders issued; $4,184,414.92, or 5.46 per cent., in the orders paid; and $21,956.55, or 3.40 per cent., in the fees received. The chief cause of this notable decrease in the amount of the money-order business during the last year, was the continued financial depression, which has seriously affected the business of the country, and diminished the number of remittances for various purposes.

Gen. Key calls special attention to the matter of changing the salaries of postmasters at fourth-class offices. They now receive from 40 to 60 per cent. of the amount of stamps sold by them, and are thus antagonistic to the government, for, the larger their sales the smaller the department receives.

Postal matter of the first class, including letters and postal cards, pays, and more than pays its way through the mails; but matter of the second and third classes fails, by a large amount, to pay the cost of its transmission; while the quantity of official and Congressional mail matter, which, under recent legislation, goes free, costs the government for its transportation just as much as other matter. Under existing postal laws, deficiencies in this department must, for a long time to come, increase as business increases, and it is best that this fact be clearly understood.

South Carolina Conciliation.

Robert Smalls, of South Carolina, has been sentenced to three years in the Penitentiary. A private letter from Columbia, printed in the Chicago Inter-Ocean, gives us some idea of the manner in which his conviction was brought about. After speaking of the petitions for new trials filed by Smalls and Cardozo, ex-State Treasurer, the letter says:

"These petitions set forth in a full and formal manner the illegality of most of the evidence used against them, and which would have been ruled out in any fair court in any civilized country. But the prejudice here is so great and such a complete reign of terror exists here, that it would not have made a particle of difference what was the character of the testimony or the witnesses; conviction was a foregone conclusion. The court was specially organized to convict, and convict it did. The colored men on the jury that convicted Smalls and Cardozo stated that they were told in the jury-room by the white jurors that they would not be permitted to leave the town alive unless they brought in a verdict of guilty. A perfect reign of terror exists here; and no man, white or black, can successfully oppose it. There was an election here yesterday to fill the vacancy caused by the forced resignation of Hon. W. B. Nash, the former Senator from this county. You will perhaps remember that Mr. Nash was the Presidential Elector in this State whom the democrats offered $30,000 to vote for Tilden. The election was very quiet and peaceful indeed, the peace that reigns at Warsaw. There were no republican candidates or voters. The democratic candidate was elected unanimously, although the republicans have 2500 majority in this county."

News and Notes.

The number of troops in Western Texas is so small that the Indians rove and murder with impunity. Near Stockton, a few days since, the Indians captured a coach, killed the driver, cut up the mail bags and ran off the team.

The Biddeford Daily Times came out on Monday very much enlarged. It is a really good local paper, and if the citizens of Saco and Biddeford know what is for the interest of their city and themselves they will give it the liberal patronage it deserves, for at least one well conducted daily paper is a necessity in any place of the size of the sister cities on the Saco.

A Columbia, S. C., despatch says Congressman Smalls has been released on $10,000 bail to await the decision of the Supreme Court on his appeal; also that Attorney-General Conner has sent in his resignation.

Schooner Horace Moodie, Capt. Brewer, and schooner Nellie H. Benedict, Capt. Terrell, came in collision off Barnegat on Friday night, and both sank. All hands were saved by a pilot boat.

Capt. Wm. M. Jones, who was in command of the steamer Massachusetts when she went ashore on Long Island some weeks ago, has left the service of the Providence & Stonington Steamship Company, and taken a position under the Atlantic Insurance Co., of New York.

A correspondent of the Nation recites a story which aptly illustrates the manner in which people are deceived by paper money. Just before the war, an Irishman, who had saved $2,000 in gold, tried to buy a house in Philadelphia. The owner asked $2,200, and the trade fell through. The war came; paper money went down; the Irishman tried to buy the house again; the owner still asked $2,200. The Irishman went home, took $1000 from his board, sold the gold for $2,200 in greenbacks, bought the house, and had half his gold left. The seller had been deceived by the word dollar, and had sold his property for less than half price.

At Saybrook, Conn., Monday morning, William Bogue was shot and killed by a quarrelsome fellow named Mahoney, who was drunk. Bogue gave the murderer no provocation.

The Secretary of the Navy has received from Capt. E. M. Stoddard the following dispatch relative to the condition of the wrecked Huron: "Examined the Huron with divers aft; find the upper works gone; both decks have floated up nearly to the spar deck, so that the divers could not get in the ward-room; will examine forward this afternoon. The undertow and current are very bad. The spar deck is entirely submerged, the port side being eight feet under water; will be obliged to blow up the spar deck to see if there are bodies in the ward-room. The ship seems to be hogged. The pivot gun is in place."

Dr. Thomas A. Lambert, President of the American Popular Life Insurance Company, is on trial in New York, on a charge of swearing to a false return of the assets and liabilities of that institution. The trial will occupy the greater part of the week.

John Hickson of Cincinnati made up his mind that he did not wish to live to be more than eighty years old. As he approached his 80th birthday he found that he was not likely to die a natural death within the allotted time, for his health was good. So he prepared for suicide, settling up his business and making a will. On the day he was eighty years old he jumped into a river and was drowned.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in 1 minute. tj5

WE were exposed last week to a pitiless storm, that wet our feet and stockings, and indeed our person all over. In fact we took a cracking cold, which brought sore throat and severe symptoms of fever. The good wife asserted her authority, plunged our feet in hot water, wrapped us in hot blankets, and sent our faithful son for a bottle of AYERS' CHERRY PECTORAL. It is a splendid medicine—pleasant to take, and did the job. We slept soundly through the night and awoke well the next morning. We know we owe our quick recovery to the Pectoral, and shall not hesitate to recommend it to all who need such a medicine.—Tehuacana (Texas) Presbyterian.

THE CITY.

Secretary Thompson evidently thinks the Navy Yard across the river is of some account.

Schooner Sallie M. Evans, Capt. Willetts, from Philadelphia for Dover with 350 tons of coal, passed up the river on Tuesday forenoon.

In the estimates before the appropriations committee of the House the sum proposed to be expended on the improvement of this navy yard is $47,000.

At the late session of the Supreme court held in this city, Judge Stanley heard over one hundred cases, twenty-five of which were jury trials. There was but one disagreement, which was in a liquor case.

On Tuesday forenoon two lighters arrived at the navy yard from Boston, in tow of steam tug L. A. Belknap, each lighter having on board a boiler taken from the U. S. S. Iowa at Boston, and destined for the Ticonderoga, now undergoing repairs at this navy yard.

The Board of Trade came together at the Common Council room on Tuesday evening, but it being their first meeting for many months only preliminary work was done, the Board then adjourning to next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. At the next meeting the harbor improvement and Portsmouth bridge questions will come up for consideration.

The President on Monday afternoon sent to the Senate the nomination of Alfred F. Howard, Esq., to be Collector of Customs for this District. The business of the District has never been more promptly and economically conducted than under Collector Howard's administration, and he will undoubtedly be confirmed by the Senate for another term.

We are indebted to Mr. B. P. Grover, a son of Portsmouth but now a resident of Holyoke, Mass., for a large and beautifully printed circular in pamphlet form, entitled "The City of Holyoke; its Water Power and its Industries." The pamphlet contains sixteen pages, twenty-two inches by seventeen, printed on tinted paper, and containing, besides a history of the city and its manufactories, over sixty large and very fine engravings of the different manufactories and public buildings, and also a large map of the city. It is the best specimen of an advertising circular we have seen.

The annual meeting of the New Hampshire Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held in the Common Council room on Monday evening, President Thomas E. O. Marvin in the chair. The records of the last meeting were read and approved. The following is the tabulated statement of matters receiving the attention of the society during the year just closed, as presented by the Secretary:

Overdriven horses, three; working old, lame, sick, galled and worn-out horses, twenty-seven; neglected and starving animals, nine; maliciously mutilating, wounding and killing ducks, one; cock fighting, nine; various acts of cruelty to dogs, doves, etc., nine; horses exposed to cold and blanketed, twenty-six; total, eighty-four.

Each case, says the report, has been carefully inquired into, and wherever the facts have justified the complaints, steps have been taken to relieve the suffering of the animals and prevent a repetition of the offense. Several animals rendered unfit for further use by old age or disease have been mercifully killed, either at the request of the owner or when found abandoned by heartless persons and reported to the Secretary of the Society. A few of the complaints were found to be frivolous and unwarranted by the facts, but in every case where cruelty has been practised the offenders have been prosecuted, except in instances where the Secretary was satisfied that the cruelty was the result of thoughtlessness and that a repetition would not occur after attention had been called to it. It is now five years since this society was organized, and in that time it has accomplished an amount of good work that has materially changed or at least awakened the public feeling on the subject of cruelty to animals. It has received encouragement and support from the better class of citizens and has made its influence felt in every direction.

The treasurer reported the total amount of receipts for the year to be $642.48; expenses, $449.22; cash on hand, $93.26; the permanent fund is reported to be $396.27; amount paid for distribution of literature, $9.22. About 4000 copies of Our Dumb Animals were distributed during the year.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year;

President, Thomas E. O. Marvin.
Vice Presidents, Mrs. Stanton Parker, Mrs. Albert L. Jones, Mrs. Richabod Goodwin, Mrs. E. H. Winchester, Miss Annie F. Jenness, John S. H. Frink, Wm. F. Parrott, W. H. Y. Hackett, Frank Jones, Daniel Austin, Alfred O. Larkin.
Directors, Mrs. John J. Pickering, Mrs. Alfred W. Haven, Mrs. Eliza Rice, Miss E. H. Pearson, Mrs. H. C. Knight, Mrs. Frank W. Miller, Miss Mary A. Foster, Miss Susan E. Christie, Miss Carrie A. Morrison, Miss Mary R. Lyman, James R. May, Augustus W. Odiorne, Alonzo F. Craig, Charles W. Gardner.
Secretary, Charles E. Batchelder.
Treasurer, Mary A. Foster.

The thanks of the society were voted to the friends of the cause who supplied the cost of the recent children's festival in aid of the objects of the society, and to the retiring Secretary, A. F. Craig, Esq., for the prompt and efficient manner in which he has performed his duties during the past year. Mr. Craig has been secretary over two years.

THE VICINITY.

The tramp who shot Mrs. Charles A. Bennett at Newmarket Junction, Saturday morning, because after feeding him she refused to give him money to buy tobacco, gives the name of Richard Ryan, and says he belongs in Springfield, Mass. No pistol was found on him or either of the other tramps that were arrested, though each of them had a razor.

Mr. John Low, of York, Me., has taken a contract to build six double-tenement houses and three cottages on the neck leading to the Nubble, to be finished in readiness for occupancy in time for next summer's "rush." A number of other buildings it is said are contracted for by other parties, to be erected at Manchesterville, Concordville and the other summer-residence villages that have recently sprung up on the York coast.

Rev. Daniel Austin died at his home in Kittery on Tuesday morning. He played a game of chess the evening previous, when he seemed as well as usual; but some hours later he was found to be rapidly failing, and soon passed away. He was born Nov. 21st, 1703, and graduated at Dartmouth College in 1813; we believe he was the last surviving member of his class. He officiated for some years as a Unitarian minister, his longest pastorate, and we believe his last, being at Brighton, Mass. He was a courteous gentleman of the old school, and widely known. He was the first President of the Board of Trustees of the Rice Library of Kittery.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY

FOR 1877-78.

Without recalling the excellence of the past, the publishers of SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY announce, for the year to come, the following papers:

THE PICTURESQUE SIDE OF AMERICAN FARM LIFE.—This subject will be treated in a series of separate papers engaged from writers who stand in the front rank among Americans, both in qualities of style and in keen insight of nature. Mr. R. Robinson, author of a delightful paper on "Fox-Hunting in New England" in the January number, will represent the same section in this series. John Burroughs, whose papers on similar topics have been a highly prized and popular feature of SCRIBNER will write of Farm Life in New York. Maurice Thompson, the poet-naturalist, will describe the characteristics of Western farming, of which but little has been written. It is expected that the illustration of this series will be of a refined and typical character, commensurate with the subject-matter. It is thought that no paper or series of papers yet issued in SCRIBNER will so fully realize the constant desire of the magazine to keep out of the ruts, and, both in text and illustrations, to obtain quality rather than quantity, and to print fresh, strong and delicate work from original sources.

"ROXY."—By Edward Eggleston (author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," etc.). This new novel will doubtless be the most important American serial of the year. The first number was published in November. Those who have read it in manuscript declare ROXY to be much the most striking and remarkable story this author has ever written. It is illustrated by one of the ablest of the younger American painters—Mr. Walter Shirlaw, President of "The American Art Association."

AMERICAN SPORTS.—Some of the most novel and entertaining of these papers are yet to appear, the scenes of which will be in the West, the Middle States, the South, New England and Canada.

OUT-OF-DOOR PAPERS.—by John Burroughs, author of "Wake Robin," etc., will contain not only articles on Birds, but on "Tramping," "Camping Out," and kindred topics. Mr. Burroughs' papers will begin in the January number, the first being entitled "Birds and Birds," and illustrated by Fidelia Bridges.

ARCHITECTURE OF BIRDS.—Dr. Thomas M. Brewer will contribute four exceedingly interesting articles on birds'-nests, which every lover of nature will delight in. Dr. Brewer has probably the finest collection of birds' eggs in the world to draw upon for the illustration of these papers.

THE SADDLE HORSE.—Col. George E. Waring, whose excellent work of various sorts our readers are familiar, contributes two illustrated articles on the horse. He treats specially of saddle-horses and their use for pleasure and for sport, including road-riding, fox-hunting and racing. The nature of the English thoroughbred and that of his Eastern progenitor (the Arabian) are fully considered in relation to these uses.

SAXE HOLM.—New stories by this popular writer will be given in early numbers of SCRIBNER, beginning with "Joe Hale's Red Stockings," to appear in January. This "novelette" chronicles an episode of the late war between the Unions.

"HIS INHERITANCE,"—By Adeline Trafton, so well begun in the Midsummer Holiday number, will be continued nearly through the year. It will be found to be of increasing interest to the very end.

"A KNIGHT OF FORTUNE,"—Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen's new novel—will be begun in SCRIBNER at the conclusion of "His Inheritance." It will reveal a phase of American society undreamed of by most of our readers, and will be certain to increase the reputation of the writer as a master of English and of his art.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENTS will continue to employ the ablest pens in America, and will include the present admirable summary of English publications. Besides the special articles above enumerated, the magazine will contain Poems, Sketches, Essays, Reviews, and shorter Stories of the highest character. A large practical reduction in price is made by an increase in the number of pages.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS of the MAGAZINE, in variety and excellence of design and in typographical execution, will continue to be in advance of those of any other popular magazine at home or abroad.

Subscription price, $4.00 a year, payable in advance to us or to any book-seller.

No club rates or other discounts to subscribers. The Magazine is worth all it costs, and its circulation is increasing in a constant and steady ratio from year to year.

Brilliant Wedding.

There was an excitement in the Italian colony of Crosby street, recently, owing to a wedding. A line of carriages stood in front of Nos. 43 and 45 and the adjoining houses, and there were over two hundred bootblacks, chestnut roasters, cigar venders and ragpickers in front of the house at No. 43. Michael Moninina, the bridegroom, is one of the wealthiest organ grinders in the city, owning the instrument that he personally grinds, and two others of equal volume and tone and variety of airs, which he hires to other musicians. He is also the proprietor of a ring-tailed monkey that climbs up the spouts of tenement houses, and has earned many hundreds of pennies for his owner. The bridegroom's costume was elaborate, consisting in the main of a yellow vest, brown velvet coat, bright plaid trousers and frilled shirt. His long black hair shone like a well-polished stove. The bride, Miss Viola Forretti, who is seventeen years of age, is a member of one of the most active "collecting agencies" on the street. Her father has a cellar full of scrap iron, much of which has been collected by her sun-browned hands. The family has frequently sent four bales of old paper to a pulp factory in one week, and employs many children in sorting rags, if the information of the neighboring Dutch grocerymau can be relied on. The bride wore a pink satin dress, without a train, and sufficiently short to show sandals and white stockings. There were no less than three hand-organs used in the ceremony, the airs desired not all being in any one instrument. There was so great an assembly as to interfere with the Bleecker street cars, and bring several police officers to the scene in haste. The bridegroom opened a package of candy and threw the pieces into the street. This caused a scrimmage by the bootblacks and newsboys From another carriage came peanuts in profusion, said to be from the private stock of one of the guests. The party rode to an Italian dining room in Bleecker street.—N. Y Sun.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all druffiness, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purpose."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.
This elegant preparation may be relied on to change a beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.
J. B. ROSE & CO., 46 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey
To the taste but death to Grubs and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest covered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specific in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, or Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness: Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
When the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy foreboddings, irregular appetite, and no energy of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.
As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Incrustations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their manifest improvement. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved uninpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden and pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Blotches, Pimples, Sore-Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often restores a new growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

MESSRS. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell, which were nearly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,

You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

FAST LIVING AT OTHER PEOPLE'S EXPENSE.

In the days when Harrison Gray Otis was Mayor, and the beautiful Mrs. Barrett queen of the Boston stage, among the habitues of the Tremont theatre were a youthful couple who could almost nightly be seen in their accustomed position. No matter how crowded the house on the occasion of some extra attraction, such as the benefit of a popular favorite, or of the excellent stock company, no handsomer pair could be seen, or those to whom more glasses were directed. Photographed upon my memory they appear before me now as if it were but yesterday that I looked upon them last; the husband in the fashionable light overcoat of the time, that gave such grace to the wearer; the lady in a dress of white, her rich dark hair simply arranged yet with an artist's skill, and with few ornaments, proving that beauty is most when least adorned. No box had so many visitors as theirs when permitted by a not over-crowded audience, and when the house was full, surrounded by friends who had secured seats in the same locality, they formed but a single party, as could be seen by the sociality that prevailed among them when the curtain was down.

We will now change the scene to the elegant mansion of Mr. John Bradlee, one of the merchant princes of Boston in by-gone years, situated in the then fashionable quarter adjoining the Common. "Who was at the Tremont last night?" asked Miss Edith Bradlee of her sister as they met at the breakfast table, and receiving for reply: "The Smiths were there." "Of course they were," rejoined the other; you might as well have told me that the Barretts, or Kilner, or Finn were upon the stage. They must be very fond of attending places of public amusement, as I never go to one of the kind without finding them among the audience. Charles says they did not miss a night when the Woods were singing in opera at the Tremont, or the Saturday evening concerts of the company at the Masonic Temple, and made a prominent figure at the grand military ball, on Washington's birthday at the old Boston theatre. When not at some public resort he says they are either attending or receiving company. They must have a good income to permit such drafts upon it; their carriage-hire alone forming no trifle in the course of a year."

"Who are these 'gay and festive' people," asked the father of the young ladies, "that you have talked of while I have been reading the news, and trying to masticate the tough steak the butcher has sent us?"

"All we know of them," Miss Edith answered, "is that the husband holds some position in one of the State street banks and that they live in rather a genteel neighborhood in West Boston."

John Bradlee, Esq., having some idea of the cost of living to others from his own experience in a similar way, came to the conclusion that the Mr. Smith referred to required to be at least a bank president to make the figure in the world he had been given to understand he was doing at the time. He knew also that the salary of a more subordinate position would not permit its recipient to indulge in a very luxurious life; and that while two and six are eight, six from two leaves a deficiency to be supplied from some other source. With the merchant theatricals were among the things of the past, but seeing upon the bills of the Tremont an announcement of the appearance of the veteran Cooper, that he had seen in his prime, he concluded to take his family that night to the theatre, where the once famed actor was to appear in his popular character of Marc Antony. On taking their seats in the favorable position he had been able to secure, his eldest daughter said to him, "the lady in the white satin dress, nearly opposite to us, (the third box from the stage,) and the gentleman at her side, in a light overcoat, are the people we talked of this morning. They always occupy front seats in that box." Turning his eyes in the direction indicated, the merchant readily recognized in Mr. Samuel Smith the receiving teller of a bank in which he was largely concerned as a stockholder, and for the remainder of the evening was much more interested in the receiver of other people's money than in the mimic scene upon the stage, although an emanation from the genius of Shakespeare, and its theme, like the author, of undying interest, through all time. The morning following, while on the way to his business in India street, he had a glimpse of the same individual as he entered a door, and on reaching the locality, recognized it, by the placards in the window, as a place for the sale of lottery tickets. A passing glance brought to his view, through the glass, the gentleman in question receiving from the vender of tickets what was known as "a package," and a minute later he saw him upon the opposite walk, journeying in the direction of State street. Putting together what he had gathered from others and that coming under his own observation, he became quite sure that there was "something rotten in Denmark" with the individual who had the handling of so much of property not his own, and at once set about in a quiet way to learn as much of his affairs as it was necessary for him to know with the object in view, and soon had reason to believe, from the agencies he employed, that a salary of fifteen hundred a year would go but little way to support the style of expenditure under which he was living. In searching out his earlier history, it appeared that he came from a family who had once known better days, and that he had been advanced to the position he then held after serving as a clerk in the same institution. His fine personal appearance and agreeable manners, as well as the respectable position he occupied, had given him entrance into a sphere of society something different from that in which he had been accustomed to move, and it was to enable him after his marriage to make a similar appearance in the world with his associates, that he was led by slow yet sure steps from imprudence in the use of his own means to the crime of supplying the demands upon his purse, to sustain his new mode of life, from that of others to which he had access from the trust that had been placed in him. When an investigation into his affairs, in his connection with the bank, came to be made, it appeared that he was a defaulter to the amount of more than forty thousand dollars; a great sum it was then regarded in such a connection, though but a trifle in comparison with the frauds perpetrated by others, in similar positions, in these later days, yet so skillfully had he managed to conceal his deficiencies amid the large resources of the institution, he might have gone on for years longer in a like way without detection, but for the intimation by the merchant of his suspicions to the bank authorities. No law then existed in Massachusetts prohibiting the traffic in lottery tickets, and to such means did he resort in the hope of winning back the sums he had embezzled; yet, while expending annually more than the amount of his salary, as usual in such cases realizing but a small return from such delusive investments.

The day of reckoning came at a moment when least expected by the delinquent official. While an examination of his accounts was in progress, and a large deficit had already been detected, the president of the bank in returning with his family from an evening meeting at the church they attended, found a street on their route nearly blockaded by a throng of carriages that he was told were conveying company to a party in the neighborhood; and on reaching the indicated locality, a glance at the door-plate afforded to his view the name of Samuel Smith, that he knew could be none other than the unfaithful employe of the institution in which he was so deeply interested. The dwelling presented from the basement to the attic a blaze of light, and seemed already overflowing with its numerous visitors, while music could be heard, and other sounds indicating that the festivities of the occasion had already commenced. Thinking it about time, with this added evidence, when the bank officials were made aware of it, that the squandering of the funds of the bank, through such an agency, was brought to a close, the next afternoon, when business for the day was over, Mr. Samuel Smith received an intimation that his presence was desired in the room of the directors. Though changing nearly to the hue of the spotless linen he wore, on being charged with his wrong-doing, and evidently surprised at the accurate knowledge possessed by his accusers of the extent of his defalcations, notwithstanding his skill in so long concealing them, he made no useless efforts of denial or exculpation, but threw himself entirely upon the mercy of the representatives of others as well as themselves that he had wronged; who, as a matter of course, whatever their sympathies for the offender might be, had no choice but to hand him over to the proper tribunals to receive the reward of his crime. On taking possession of his effects by the authorities of the bank, his residence was found to be furnished in a style such as was not often seen in those of the wealthiest citizens of Boston at that day; and in the search for any remnant that might exist of his ill-gotten gains, lottery tickets, that had drawn blanks, came to light in sufficient numbers to have papered the walls of the room where they were found. Every effort was made by able counsel, in defending him at his trial, to convert his crime into simply a breach of trust or misdemeanor, but without avail, although he escaped, instead of a term in the State prison, with a two-years' imprisonment in the county jail.

Boston was then just large enough for everybody and everything that transpired within its limits, to be known, and the subject afforded for the time an abundant theme of chat, especially among the theatre-going portion of the community, with whom the face of the defaulting bank-teller was as familiar as that of George Jones, now known as the Count Joannes, who was then a prominent member of the Tremont company. While little sympathy was felt for him, much existed for his young and beautiful companion, who, although sharing in his luxurious life since his marriage, was innocent of any knowledge as to the source from whence was derived most of the means by which it was sustained. What became of Mr. Samuel Smith—which, by the way, was not the name of the individual referred to—when his term of imprisonment expired, I never learned, but have always remembered his case as a remarkable instance of fast-living at other people's expense, such as was not wont often to be committed at a former day.

City Elections in Massachusetts.

There were a number of city and town elections in Massachusetts on the 4th inst., resulting generally in republican triumphs.

In Cambridge, the tickets were the "Temple Hall" and "People's," the former winning by a decided majority. The "people" were the democrats.

In Somerville, George A. Bruce had 1334 votes to 18 for all others; the "citizens" and "independents" divided the council nearly equally between them.

In Haverhill there was but one "regular" ticket—that is what a nondescript ticket is called in Massachusetts—and Mayor Kimball was re-elected by 1750 votes to 84 scattering. The "citizens" also elected most of the aldermen. The "citizens" party was the rum party.

In Chelsea, Mayor Stebbins was re-elected by a vote of 1616 to 31, the "citizens" also running things in Chelsea, and electing most of their candidates for aldermen as well as the mayor.

In Newton the republican candidate for mayor was elected by about 175 majority.

In Lawrence the republicans made a clean sweep, electing their candidate for mayor by about 600 majority, all of the aldermen, and fourteen of eighteen councilmen. The democrats were confident of carrying the city on the morning of election day, and the republicans were afraid they would do it.

In Gloucester the republicans elected the mayor and exactly one-half the city councils.

In Fall River the republicans elected the mayor, and carried five wards out of six.

In Springfield the republicans elect the mayor and all but two of the councilmen.

At Holyoke a republican was elected mayor without opposition; the democrats elected the treasurer and clerk; the council stands eleven republicans to the ten democrats.

Taunton elected a republican mayor, and seven republican aldermen to one democrats.

News and Notes.

Robert Tyler, son of ex-President Tyler, was attacked with paralysis of the brain at Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 3d, and died next day.

Judge Humphreys declines to surrender Senator Patterson on the requisition of Gov. Hampton, of South Carolina, on the ground that he is not, within the meaning of the law, a fugitive from justice, but is daily occupying a seat in the United States Senate, representing the State which so calls him.

D. A. Baldwin, late President of the West Wisconsin Railway, was found dead, Monday, in a barn at New Durham, N. J., where he had choked himself with a handkerchief. Recent financial troubles caused the suicide.

Schooner Two Sisters was wrecked near Galveston, Texas, Dec. 3d, and three men were drowned.

Hon. Edward Conigland, a prominent lawyer of North Carolina, was killed while walking on the track of the railroad near the town of Halifax. Conigland was very deaf and is supposed not to have heard the approaching train.

The estate of ex-Senator Francis Jewett, of Lowell, Mass., is attached for $5000 on a civil suit brought by the relatives of James Farley, who was accidentally shot by one of Jewett's men while killing a steer in his slaughter-house with a rifle, last summer.

Barque Utile, from Baltimore for Queenstown, was sunk by collision with steamer America on the night of Dec. 1st; the captain, mate and two seamen of the Utile were drowned; the steamer was badly damaged, and had to put back to Southampton, Eng. Ship Oasis, owned at Yarmouth, N. S., was sunk by steamship Pennsylvania on Dec. 3d, off the Irish coast; crew saved.

Schooner Ida May, of Dorchester, N. B., was wrecked on the Foul Ground in Courtenay Bay on the night of Dec. 3d. The crew are missing.

Much feeling has been shown by Peruvians against the British navy since the Huascar affair. It is reported the captain of British sloop-of-war Osprey was stoned in the streets of Callao by a mob. A meeting called in Lima, to request the government to prevent the crew of the Osprey from landing, was not allowed by the police.

Senator Sharon has parted with his control of the Ophir and Belcher mines to Flood & O'Brien. His struggle to retain control of these properties was the cause of his absence from the United States Senate during the late contest for the supremacy of the republican party.

A dispatch from Coquimilla, Chili, says the Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamship Atacoma has been lost. The crew numbered forty and the passengers probably about fifty. Only eighteen passengers were saved.

A letter from Fort Walsh, Manitoba, says Col. Walsh has returned from escorting Sitting Bull to his new camp and states that Sitting Bull evidently did not fully understand the offer of the American Commissioners when they stated the terms upon which the Indians were to return to their reservations. They did not understand that they were to be reimbursed for their horses and cattle, and Sitting Bull says they did not refuse to return in the course of a year to their reservations. They had been informed by the Nez Perces that Gen. Terry had just been killing their people, and they did not want to treat with a man with blood on his hands.

It appears from a Blue Book just issued respecting the great cyclone and storm wave which visited certain districts of Bengal on the morning of the 1st of November, 1876, that the total number of persons drowned was 90,000, and that the outbreak of cholera which followed carried off 75,000, making a total mortality of 165,000.

Capt. Greene, United States military attache, has received the Russian order of St. Andrew for coolness in the battles of Schipka Pass and Plevna.

The government has reopened the recruiting offices for the United States army, so as to fill up the ranks to the standard of 25,000 men.

Consul Badeau, at London, warns American mechanics against coming to England for work, as they invariably reach the American Consul's office in different cities and are indignant because there is no fund to send them home. Their condition is pitiable.

A young man at a rifle match in Portland, Oregon, when his turn came at the target, shot a bystander through the heart. The killing may have been accidental, but the two men were bitter enemies, and there is doubt on the subject.

The seamen on frigate Minnesota have subscribed $160 for the widows and orphans of the sailors of the Huron.

The Richmond (Va.) State says that Gen. N. B. Forrest, at his own request, was buried in his Confederate uniform.

An amusing old gentleman at Fitchburg walked into a wheelwright's shop, called for his sharpest chisel and a block of wood, placed his bare foot on the bench and cut off his big toe.

A Portland, Oregon, dispatch says Gen. Howard has approved the findings of the Court of Inquiry in the case of Capt. David Perry, charged by citizens of Idaho with neglecting to succor a band of volunteers when pressed by Indians at the Cottonwood fight. The findings exonerate him from having made improper delay under the circumstances, being nearly surrounded himself by hostile Indians.

On Saturday Judson Wheeler and his son, living four miles north of Malone, N. Y., went hunting at a place called Plumb's Grove. They got out of the buggy and as the father was hitching the horse, the son took the gun out of the buggy with the muzzle toward him. The result was the hammer caught on some portion of the buggy, and he received the full charge of buckshot in his side, completely riddling his liver and bowels. He lived about two hours.

Reports of Indian depredations in Dakota continue, and several miners have arrived who report abandoning their camps on account of attacks by the savages. Gen. Crook has been authorized by Gen. Sheridan to afford relief to freighters and settlements in the hills.

On the morning of the 16th ult., a shock of earthquake was felt throughout the islands of Bermuda, but there was no damage.

Steamer Lotus was burned on the Mississippi, opposite Waterloo, La., Monday, with 1700 bales of cotton and 525 sacks of cotton seed. One woman and ten men were burned to death or drowned.

The signal service observer at Kitty Hawk on Monday reported: "Just received a report that a vessel was drifting, bottom upwards, some miles southeast of this station. A head board with the name 'Erra' has just been found on the beach." Another dispatch said: "Schooner Frank Jameson, from Rockland, floated past station No. 7. She was boarded by the station crew at 11 A. M., drifting south very fast, and has the appearance of having been run into. No person was aboard. The port side and part of the deck remain. The starboard side can be seen. The foremast is hanging and floating." [The Frank Jameson was wrecked on Smith's island a week ago, and the captain and seven men lost, a boy only escaping.]

The man who would lay a straw purposely and with malevolent intent in the way of complete and thorough reconciliation between the North and the South is, and should be treated as, an enemy to the best interest of the whole country. So the man who would patch up a temporary truce, avoiding the rugged facts of history and experience, putting sentiment in the place of philosophy, and ignoring a duty because it is easier to dodge it, is equally in the wrong with the other, though the motive may be more readily forgiven.—Indianapolis Journal.

An attempt was made on the morning of the 4th inst. to wreck a train on the Ashuelot Railroad, by placing ties upon the track near Sawyer's crossing.

Ingersoll on Alcohol.

In a recent letter to an Indiana paper, Col. Robert G. Ingersoll says that the only "Temperance Speech" he ever made was in what was known as the Munn trial in Chicago, when he made these few remarks on alcohol: "I believe, gentlemen, that alcohol, to a certain degree, demoralizes those who make it, those who sell it, and those who drink it. I believe that from the time it issues from the coiled and poisoned worm of the distillery until it empties into the hell of crime, dishonor and death it demoralizes everybody that touches it from its source to its end. I do not believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without becoming prejudiced against that liquid crime. All that we have to do, gentlemen, is to think of the wrecks upon either bank of this stream of death—of the suicides—of the insanity—of the poverty—of the ignorance—of the destitution—of the little children tugging at the faded dress of weeping and despairing wives, asking for bread—of the men of genius it has wrecked—of the millions struggling with imaginary serpents produced by this devilish thing; and when you think of the jails, of the alms-houses, of the asylums, of the prisons, and of scaffolds upon either hand, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against that damned stuff called alcohol."

—The New York Herald suggests the probability that Rev. Joseph Cook's lectures will result in the organization of a new sect, and that, in deference to the good things which the preacher has uttered, his followers be known hereafter as "Cookies."

E. G. PIERCE, JR., P. M.

THE CITY.

Ex-Sheriff Samuel Rowe, of this city, has been appointed on the Capital police at Washington.

Mr. Theodore D. Dennett, a Portsmouth boy, is one of the councilmen-elect of Somerville, Mass.

The Hutchings Association give their third entertainment in the vestry of the Universalist church this evening. A rich programme, not too long, is offered. See advertisement.

The result of the four weeks' revival in this city under Messrs. Whittle and McGranahan, is the conversion of about two hundred persons, a large majority being females. The expenses attending the revival are less than $400.

Some seventy Good Templars from Dover visited this city on Wednesday evening by invitation of the Lodge of this city. They were entertained at the Templar's Hall with a bountiful supper. They left for home at eleven o'clock.

Schooner Union, Mitchell, with coal for bureau of yards and docks; schooner E. M. Smith, Raymond, with gas oil for same bureau; schooner T. W. Haven, Hackett, and Three Sisters, Baker, with coal for bureau of construction and repair, have all arrived at the navy yard.

Mr. William Trefethen, of Newcastle, (whose son, it will be remembered, was during the war killed by a cannon shot fired during target practice from Fort Sullivan, on Seavey's island,) who was some time since discharged from his position as watchman on the navy yard, has been reinstated by order of the Secretary of the Navy.

We are requested by the police to appeal to persons who have cast-off boots or shoes lying around loose, to leave the same at the police station. The officers almost daily have cases come to their notice in which such old foot-wear as is shoved away in ash-holes and stair-closets to mould and rot would relieve absolute suffering, and they will gladly receive and carefully distribute whatever articles charity may furnish for the purpose.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION.

Met at the Common Council room, Wednesday evening. Present the Mayor, presiding, Mrs. Wilson, and Messrs. Shannon, Pender, May, Vaughan, Hackett, Hutchinson, Gardner, Goodrich, Wendell.

Sundry bills were reported to be paid.

Mr. Hutchinson reported result of application to the Mayor and Aldermen for increased school accommodations in District No. 2, that the same was granted and the building in course of preparation.

Reports of monthly statistics of Districts No. 1 and 2 were read. A large number of cases of tardiness were reported caused by children being sent to attend mass; 176 of those were in District No. 1; and 211 in District No. 2.

Mr. Hackett, from the committee appointed to consider the expedency of holding one session in exceedingly stormy weather reported that the authority as to a single session be delegated to the chairmen of Districts No. 1, 2 and 3, and the Secretary of the Board, and no suspension of afternoon schools be allowed except by the permission of this committee.

If was voted that the teachers be paid the several salaries due Jan. 1, on the 22d inst.

After some discussion relative to the annual reports, the appointment of a committee upon the duties of janitors, etc. the meeting adjourned.

TEMPERANCE RELIEF ASSOC'N.

Among the various relief organizations in our midst, none appeal so justly to the patronage of those who wish to join such an institution, as that of the Portsmouth Temperance Mutual Relief Association. It encourages temperance, affords a meeting for general improvement, and furnishes an insurance similar to that of all relief associations. Stephen W. Clarke, Esq., is its President, and we are glad to learn that it is prospering very well, considering the dullness of the times. Its aims and purposes are best set forth in the following preamble to its Constitution: "We desire to render to our members such aid and assistance in times of sickness and affliction as will lighten life's heaviest burdens and bind us together by the strongest ties of brotherhood. Though our organization was originally intened for the protection and aid of reformed men, we shall welcome to our number all who are eligible and will subscribe to our pledge. We trust that many who have always led sober lives will assist and encourage us by becoming members. We also invite the friends of temperance in other towns and cities to form similar organizations, that we may in the near future be associated on terms of equality and thus acquire the advantage of a largely increased or multiplied membership. In the matter of Life Insurance this will be a very great advantage. We confidently expect to succeed, and to be the means of accomplishing much good."

POLICE COURT.

Wednesday, Dec. 6th; Buford, J.

William Jones, drunk, $9.90 fine and costs. Brentwood.

Thomas H. Philbrook, drunk, also $9.90, also Brentwood.

On Tuesday night Philip H. Kirby, a peddler, was arrested at his home in this city for breaking into a freight car on the Eastern railroad on November 2d, and stealing therefrom boxes of cream tartar and saleratus, a bag of nutmegs and other articles. Wednesday forenoon he was brought before Judge Bufford and held in the sum of $200 for his appearance at the April term of the Supreme Court.

THE PENHALLOW ST., WIDENING.

The proposed widening of Penhallow street at the intersection of Daniel street will, if carried into effect, result in a decided and long needed improvement of both streets and public convenience, as any one can readily perceive by attempting to drive a carriage from Daniel street into Penhallow street when there happens to be a team standing in the constricted passage through which he must pass in order to get to State street, especially in winter, where there is a bank of snow shoveled from the sidewalk on either side.

When two carriages are standing in front of the old Post office building, (now occupied by two stores,) other teams can pass only in single file. When two happen to meet there, one must yield the right of way, or there will be a collision. The widening of Penhallow street at this corner will remove an actual and dangerous incumbrance, give a clear and unobstructed passage from State street to Spring Hill, and make the street safe for passage day or night. The present obstruction to the street being on a corner adds greatly to the inconvenience and danger of the public travel.

The building which so nearly closes the street at this point can be moved a few feet to the westward at a very small cost compared to the great public advantage to be gained by having a fair and safe chance for teams to get around the corner which is now so difficult. It would take but a few days to move the old house ten to fifteen feet, now when the adjoining land is open and unoccupied. If this work is delayed until the land is built upon the cost of making this necessary improvement will be greatly increased.

With this obstruction removed the city will gain, as it were, a new street very near the heart of the town. Where so much is to be gained at so small a cost, it really seems that the authorities should not hesitate to make the improvement, especially when backed by such a strong petition from the citizens. OAK.

—"Pa," said Sammy the other day, "was Job an editor?" "Why, Sammy?" "Because the Bible says he had much trouble, and was a man of sorrow all the days of his life!"

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY

FOR 1877-78.

Without recalling the excellence of the past, the publishers of SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY announce, for the year to come, the following papers:

THE PICTURESQUE SIDE OF AMERICAN FARM LIFE.—This subject will be treated in a series of separate papers engaged from writers who stand in the front rank among Americans, both in qualities of style and in keen insight of nature. Mr. H. Robinson, author of a delightful paper on "Fox-Hunting in New England" in the January number, will represent the same section in this series. John Burroughs, whose papers on similar topics have been a highly prized and popular feature of SCRIBNER, will write of Farm Life in New York. Maurice Thompson, the poet-naturalist, will describe the characteristics of Western farming, of which but little has been written. It is expected that the illustration of this series will be of a refined and typical character, and mensuate with the subject-matter. It is thought that no paper or series of papers yet issued in SCRIBNER will so fully realize the constant desire of the magazine to keep out of the rute, and, both in text and illustrations, to obtain quality rather than quantity, and to print fresh, strong and delicate work from original sources.

"ROXY,"—by Edward Eggleston (author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," etc.). This new novel will doubtless be the most important American serial of the year. The first number was published in November. Those who have read it in manuscript declare ROXY to be much the most striking and remarkable story this author has ever written. It is illustrated by one of the ablest of the younger American painters—Mr. Walter Shirlaw, President of "The American Art Association."

AMERICAN SPORTS.—Some of the most novel and entertaining of these papers are yet to appear, the scenes of which will be in the West, the Middle States, the South, New England and Canada.

OUT-OF-DOOR PAPERS.—By John Burroughs, author of "Wake Robin," etc., will contain not only articles on Birds, but on "Tramping," "Camping Out," and Kindred topics. Mr. Burroughs' papers will begin in the January number, the first being entitled "Birds and Birds," and illustrated by Fidelia Bridges.

ARCHITECTURE OF BIRDS.—Dr. Thomas M. Brewer will contribute four exquisitely illustrated articles on birds' nests, to which every lover of nature will delight in. Dr. Brewer has probably the finest collection of birds' eggs in the world to draw upon for the illustration of these papers.

THE SADDLE HORSE.—Col. George E. Waring, whose excellent work of various sorts our readers are familiar, contributes two illustrated articles on the horse. He treats specially of saddle-horses and their use for pleasure and for sport, including road-riding, fox hunting and racing. The nature of the English thoroughbred and that of his Eastern progenitor (the Arabian) are fully considered in relation to these uses.

SAXE HOLM.—New stories by this popular writer will be given in early numbers of SCRIBNER, beginning with "Joe Hale's Stockings," to appear in January. This "novelette" chronicles an episode of the late war for the Union.

"HIS INHERITANCE."—The Editorial Department will continue to employ the ablest pens in America, and will include the present admirable summary of English publications. Besides these special articles above enumerated, the magazine will contain Poems, Sketches, Essays, Reviews, and shorter Stories of the highest character. A large practical reduction in price is made by an increase in the number of pages.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS of the MAGAZINE, in variety and excellence of design and in typographical execution, will continue to be in advance of those of any other popular magazine at home or abroad.

Subscription price, $4.00 a year, payable in advance to us or to any book-seller.

No club rates or other discounts to subscribers. The Magazine is worth all it costs, and its circulation is increasing in a constant and steady ratio from year to year.

TILTON KEEPS FOR SALE
WHIPS, RUBBER WASHERS,
And all articles expected to be found in a first-class Harness Shop, at
No. 18 Congress St.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and makes the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purpose."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur
Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Foll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.
J. B. ROSE & CO., 46 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey
To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest covered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, etc. Unlike other Liniments, White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S
STANDARD
REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Proceed upon the principle, and the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery

By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Nasal Drights. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness; Tropid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.

Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have yellow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy foreboddings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

P.P.P.P.
Dr. Pierce's
Pleasant
Purgative
Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.

The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.

As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with the pills whichare put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Costiveness, Piles, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore-Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; gives new vigor to the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell, which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I don't know what I should have done if it had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 3d.

The votes finally reached at about two o'clock Saturday morning, with an interval of only a few minutes between, admitting Kellogg and Butler in the order named, were the joint results of exhaustion and a clear apprehension that the ultimate success of both claimants was, apparently, inevitable. It is generally accepted as a drawn battle, for it leaves the relative strength of the two sides the same as before the memorable struggle was inaugurated ten days ago, for the mastery. However, the democratic side will score again for one in due time, as the admission of Eustis is conceded.

As usual during the closing hours of a session, business was transacted with a rapidity that precluded all idea of a very close scrutiny of the measures voted on. The deficiency bill, with amendments, including one appropriating $45,000 for repairing partially destroyed models, was passed. Knott's bill, passed by the House, for the relief of the Huron sufferers, appropriates for each surviving officer $1,000 and $100 for each man; also twelve months sea pay to the heirs of those lost. The feeling outside Congressional circles is that while the officers have been generously treated, the men might have received a little larger gratuity without endangering the financial stability of the government.

The efforts to make Robeson, Ex-Secretary of the Navy, responsible for the loss of the Huron, have been generally abandoned by the democrats, as it is agreed that the navigating officer was immediately responsible for the disaster; and he has explated his blunder, as far as one life can atone for one hundred, sacrificed to ignorance or carelessness, or both. There resides in this city a father and mother whose eldest son was instantly killed a few years since, by the premature discharge of gunpowder used in blasting. The second, a naval officer, was lost at sea two years ago; and the third and only remaining one, also an officer, perished in the Huron disaster. The gentleman to whom the only daughter was betrothed was killed by a railroad disaster while on his way to fulfill the contract. Such a case of successive bereavements is, happily, rare.

In connection with this sad catastrophe, the case of Lieut. Fletcher, late executive officer of the Huron, which has recently came to light, has awakened a good deal of interest in all cultured circles. While at Port Royal last summer, he became impressed with the belief that should he attempt to finish his cruise (two years) on the Huron she would be wrecked and he lost. The feeling grew until it took full possession of his mind, and he applied to the department for a transfer, honestly stating his reasons. Of course such cause for official action could not be entertained, and he was refused. The dread meanwhile of again venturing to sea in the unfortunate vessel had grown to such proportions that he preferred the stigma of desertion. He obtained a twenty-four hours' leave from the ship, and not returning, it sailed without him. He soon reported to the senior officer at Port Royal and was subsequently tried for his offence by court martial, when Commodore Clitz and Commander Ryan (lost) were summoned for the defense, and stated that Lieut. Fletcher had repeatedly told them of his presentiment and of his horror of continuing on the Huron. This is all a matter of record, and those about the department and brother naval officers elsewhere, familiar with the matter and disposed to ridicule "Fletcher's superstitions" prior to the disaster, now admit they don't understand it.

KNOX.

Wraps.

Every one must remark that a favorite article of winter clothing for children is a comforter swathed around the neck. This is a great error; the feet and the wrists are the proper members to keep warm, the face and throat will harden into healthy indifference to cold; but that muffler, exchanged for an extra pair of thick socks and knitted gloves, would preserve a boy or girl really warm and well. Bronchitis and sore throat have declined fifty per cent. since the absurd use of high collars and twice round neckerchiefs went out of fashion; and if the poor would take better care of their children's feet half the infantile mortality would disappear. It only costs a trifle to put a piece of thick felt or cork into the bottom of a boot or shoe, but the difference is often considerable between that and a doctor's bill, with perhaps, the undertaker's beside.

—It is the custom now to buy two wedding rings, instead of one. The groom wears one now, as well as the bride.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1877.

Congress.

In the House, Wednesday, a bill prohibiting the Commissioner of Patents from hearing petitions for the reissue and extension of patents issued prior to 1861 was passed.

Mr. Springer made an attempt to get a resolution through, calling on the President for information regarding the recent order of the Spanish commander in Cuba to slaughter all insurgents taken, but objection was made and the subject went over.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Harrison, of Illinois, to provide for an income tax which he proposes to levy upon incomes of all United States citizens, which may be over $1000.

The caucus of the republican Senators met in the afternoon to hear the report on the revision of the Senate committees, and agreed to give the democrats an additional member on each of the more important ones, excepting that of privileges and elections, which they insist shall retain its present organization.

On Thursday, in the Senate, the committees were announced. Mr. Blaine is chairman of the committee on rules, in place of Mr. Ferry, who retains his place as chairman of the committee on postal affairs. The silver bill was made a special order for Tuesday, Dec. 11th. The President re-nominated Roosevelt for collector, Merritt for surveyor and Prince for naval officer of New York. George P. Sanger was nominated for Marshal of Massachusetts.

Last winter the Vice-President and Speaker of the House were not able to agree as to the authority of the joint rules of the two Houses. They have now agreed that so far as the sale of liquors in the Capitol is concerned they will practically consider the joint rule relating to it as in force. Meanwhile, the restaurant keepers challenge the authority of the Speaker to forbid the sale of liquors under a joint rule, pleading that there are no joint rules. The result of a brief discussion of the subject in the House, however, was to expose the unmanly and cowardly practice to which Representatives resort in calling for whiskey and getting it under the name of "cold tea." The truth is, liquor has almost always been sold of late years in the Capitol in a stealthy manner, and without an internal revenue license. The Vice-President and the Speaker say this must cease.

Fatal Accident.

Hon. John H. Burleigh, of South Berwick, Me., ex-Member of Congress from the First District of Maine and President of the South Berwick National Bank, was discovered about seven o'clock Thursday morning on the Maine side of the Salmon Falls river, dead, with his carriage a total wreck and his horse on the New Hampshire side, alive. The last seen of Mr. Burleigh was about eight o'clock Wednesday evening at Salmon Falls, when he started for home, it being a very dark night, and it appears that when on the bridge, from some unknown cause his horse sheered and went through the railing of the bridge, precipitating the team and driver a distance of twenty-five feet, probably killing him instantly. He leaves a wife and five children. Mr. Burleigh was born in South Berwick on the 9th of Oct. 1822, and received a common school education, after which he followed the sea for fifteen years, commanding a ship on foreign voyages during seven years of that time. He next engaged in business as a manufacturer. In 1862, 1864, 1866 and 1872 he was a member of the Maine House of Representatives; was a delegate to the Baltimore National Republican Convention in 1864, and was a member of the Forty-third and Forty-fourth Congresses.

The Eastern War.

A despatch from Suleiman Pasha confirms the capture of Elena, with eleven guns, twenty ammunition wagons and 300 prisoners. The Russian loss is estimated at 3000 killed and wounded. A despatch from Adrianople says that the victory at Elena removes all danger of attack on the Harm Bogbaz Pass by the Russians, and consequently enables the ten Turkish batteries which have hitherto been guarding it to join Suleiman Pasha's army.

The Turks on the 5th inst. made a desperate attempt to revictual Plevna, but were repulsed.

The Russians have 280 guns in position before Erzeroum.

His Reward.

The Traveller's Washington correspondent, under date Dec. 5th, says:

"Senator Patterson is very confident that his course in the Senate favoring the admission of Gen. M. C. Butler to a seat in that body will result in relieving him from any further prosecution for his alleged offences in South Carolina. He received a despatch Wednesday from Columbia, saying that the democratic members of the legislature all favor a suspension of proceedings against him, and that their influence would be used in this direction. Patterson says that the feeling against him in South Carolina has greatly moderated since his stand in the Senate in favor of Gen. Butler, and that the local democratic papers all commend his course and think he is entitled to much praise. Mr. Patterson is very proud of his speech in the Senate assailing President Hayes and says it has touched the public heart in the North, which has been waiting anxiously for some man in high place to make a fight on the administration. Within three days he has received, he says, over four hundred letters from republicans in the North commending his course and asking for a copy of his full speech."

It was supposed that Patterson's reward for voting in the Senate for the supremacy of the rifle clubs over the ballot would be immunity from prosecution by the South Carolina "reformers;" and it appears that understanding was correct.

Chronicle Correspondence.

CAPE NEDDICK, ME., Dec. 6th.

Twelve or fifteen years ago there were some fifteen coasting schooners owned here, but their number is now reduced to four, and the entire "fleet" is now in Cape Neddick harbor. These vessels are the Nellie, Capt. Weare; the Major, Capt. Dunnell; the Annabella, Capt. Dunnell; and the Sharon. The Major and Nellie are loaded with wood, fish, baskets and farm produce, for Boston; the Annabella is bound for Dover, after a load of bricks; and the Sharon has had her sails unbent and is laid up for the winter.

There are three "country stores" in Cape Neddick, in which, if you cannot literally find "anything from a needle to an anchor," you can procure almost anything required on a farm or in a farmhouse. Two of the three storekeepers, Messrs. Joseph Weare and Asahel Goodwin, have been in business here as general traders for well nigh half a century; the third, Mr. George Currier, is comparatively young at the business. Mr. Weare is a staunch republican, and has been postmaster for sixteen years; Mr. Goodwin is a staunch democrat; but both have done well and won deserved popularity by minding their own business. Mr. Weare has recently been very ill with lung fever, but is now convalescent.

Rev. H. Stetson, the Baptist minister, was called upon Monday evening by a large number of the members of his church and congregation, and when the party retired after several hours spent in pleasant social intercourse, the clerical larder was left well filled.

The boats that during the summer are used for pleasure boats by the summer visitors, (whose number, by the way, increases every year,) are now to a great extent engaged in fishing; they have generally been quite successful, and some of them have taken very large quantities of fish.

The diphtheria, which has been very prevalent here for some time past, has abated much of its virulence, and the schools are all open. Mr. Wm. Tulpey has opened a singing school on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, which is well attended.

The Cape Neddick House, formerly so famous for excellent country fare, scrupulous cleanliness, delicious biscuit and moderate prices, under Ma'am Freeman, is now kept by Mr. Stephen E. Grant, formerly a resident of Portsmouth; and as he is blessed with a wife who is "an help meet" for the keeper of a country hotel—a lady of energy and a thorough housekeeper—the "Cape Neddick" is now as popular as ever with those who have once had occasion to patronize it.

OCCASIONAL.

RYE, Dec. 5th.

The schools in the East and South districts commenced Monday, Dec. 3d inst., the former having the experienced services of our well-known townsman, Mr. G. Harrison Jenness, as teacher, and the latter in charge of Mr. Yeaton of Portsmouth.

Mr. W. S. Hadley occupied the pulpit of the Congregational church last Sunday, and he preached so acceptably to his hearers that an effort is being made to engage his services for a year.

Rev. Mr. Goss, of the Christian church in Portsmouth, is to deliver the next lecture in the course given by the Christian society here, for the benefit of their Sunday School.

The new road from near John O. Foss' to E. W. Lang's is nearly completed, and will soon be opened for travel.

The arrangements for the Festival on the 19th and 20th insts. are progressing satisfactorily, and a good time is confidently expected. The Rye Band will be in attendance both evenings, and as it will be their first appearance in several months before the public, a choice selection of music may be expected from them, they having had the services of Mr. Harlow as instructor in the meantime, and in fact for some time previous.

There does not appear to be any fear of a drought at present.

Notwithstanding the fact that such immense quantities of seaweed have washed ashore, during and after the frequent storms which have visited our coast this fall, not a solitary kelp of which has been allowed to rot on the beach, there is yet an occasional spot in town which still remains a stranger to its fertilizing properties, and a further supply,—the more abundant the better,—would not lack for customers, and would immediately be placed where it would do the most good.

The temperature on the summit of Mount Washington last month was higher than during any previous November since the establishment of the signal station. The greatest velocity of wind was 132 miles per hour on the 12th.

The annual meeting of the Baptist Sunday-school Association was held at Nashua, Wednesday, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year; Superintendent, J. D. Chandler; Assistant Superintendent, N. O. Prescott; Secretary, H. P. Armington; Librarian, H. Davis.

Wolfboro' is evidently an unfavorable place for savings banks, for the recent disaster to the Carroll County Bank has just been followed by a similar catastrophe to the Wolfboro' Bank, the only other institution of the kind in the town. Exactly what the difficulty is has not been stated, but a deficiency has been found between the face of the assets and the liabilities. The integrity of the Treasurer, Joseph L. Avery, is undoubted, and, as he is able to make good any deficiency, the depositors will have to lose only the shrinkage of securities, which it is hoped will not be more than fifteen per cent. The deposits in the Wolfboro' Bank are less than $100,000, and its funds are three-fourths invested in the State.

Political.

While the oppressors had the bayonet over us they were their negroes, and when the bayonet was withdrawn they were ours again, thank God.—Bob Toombs.

The New York Post quotes the Times' charge that United States Marshal Smythe, of Georgia, was removed at the instance of Senator Gordon and the whiskey thieves of Georgia last March, and says: "This is a very serious charge. It affects not only Mr. Hayes, but also the Department of Justice, Attorney-General Devens, the Treasury Department and Secretary Sherman. If Devens and Sherman were not directly concerned in the removal of Marshal Smythe they deserve to be dismissed themselves for not denouncing his removal at the instance of the whiskey thieves. This is a more important matter than the question whether Senator Gordon has too much to say about appointments. If it is true that the Administration is controlled by illicit distillers the scandalous fact ought to be known. If it is not true, the assertion itself is a great scandal."

News and Notes.

The remains of the late Commander Ryan, U. S. N., were buried in Boston on Thursday, with imposing ceremonies.

The sentence of Joy, the Rockport, Mass., murderer, has been commuted to imprisonment for life.

Another dissolution of the French Chamber of Deputies is expected from MacMahon, who seems entirely under the influence of the clerical reactionists. It is evident that if MacMahon does not attempt a "coup d'etat" it will be only his fears that will restrain him.

Dr. J. H. McWhorter was shot by his brother William at Albany, Ohio, a few days since. Several years since two brothers of these men had a quarrel and one of them shot the other through the heart. A third brother was killed by a neighbor three years ago.

Ship Quintero, Capt. Manning, was run down and sunk by a steamer off Cape St. Roque, Dec. 2d. One man was lost. The vessel and freight were insured to the amount of $81,600. The Quintero, though under the flag of Guatemala, was owned by Hemingway & Browne of Boston.

The roaming leopard that has terrified residents in the vicinity of Marion, Ohio, for the past month, was killed on Saturday, the 1st inst., six miles west of that place. Mr. Burnison, an engineer on the Bee Line Railroad while hunting, discovered the leopard in a tree, and gave the alarm. Samuel Johnson and Edw. Kessler started with guns, and the leopard made for Johnson, threw him down, and bit his arm and face. Kessler broke his gun over him and killed him. The animal is said to be a fine specimen, seven feet long, powerful and beautiful.

The annual report of the Commissioners of Southern Claims says that during the year they made allowances in 714 cases and disallowed 945. The amount claimed was $5,761,006. The amount allowed was $434,638. About 2000 claims await action, and no proofs are filed in 7600 cases, or fully one-third of those presented under the act of 1871.

Steamship City of Berlin, from New York for Liverpool Nov. 24th, has not arrived out, and much anxiety is felt for her safety. She had a valuable cargo, and forty-eight cabin passengers.

Fred. Frost, of Northfield, Me., last week attempted to perform a trick which he had successfully practiced a number of times, of cocking his gun and striking the hammer on the cap without exploding it. Feeling sure of success, on this occasion, he placed the muzzle in his mouth, and cocking the gun with his foot, snapped the hammer. The gun was discharged and and the contents passed through his head, killing him instantly. He fell from the fence on which he was sitting, breaking his neck. His age was about seventeen years.

Lieutenant-Commander Green, at the wreck of the Huron, reports that he has buried eight officers and sixty-three men, and is writing instructions in regard to the disposition of the bodies.

The Court of Inquiry appointed by the Secretary of the Navy, and consisting of Vice-Admiral Rowan, Rear Admiral Rodgers, Commodore H. H. Wyman and Naval Solicitor J. A. Bowles, Judge Advocate, to investigate the cause of the disaster to the Huron, met Wednesday and organized to proceed to business. The witnesses were Rear Admiral Trenchard, Commodore Wyman and Master Conway of the Huron, but the testimony was merely corroborative of the newspaper accounts of the disaster.

Edward A. Manice, a wealthy New York lawyer, shot himself in his office Wednesday noon. Cause, ill health.

A burglar entered the residence of Hon. Lot M. Morrill at Augusta, Me., on the night of the 4th inst. A private watchman in the house had a hard struggle with him, receiving a stab in the breast and other wounds. The burglar finally escaped, leaving his dirk knife, an iron billy, hat, and bag brought to carry away the booty in.

Gen. Longstreet received severe injuries in a fire which nearly destroyed his house at Gainesville, Ga., the other day. He was hurt in fighting the flames.

A very large sized scandal is going the rounds about Mrs. Ralston, the California millionaire, and one J. A. Chandor, a married man of much "tone" but no worth, and fully ten years Mrs. Ralston's junior.

There is no secret, we believe, certainly no reason why there should be any, about the compensation paid to the Evangelists who labored in Vermont last month. Messrs. Moody and Sankey asked nothing for their services here. The Christian people of Burlington, feeling that Mr. Moody's visit here had been a great public blessing, made up a fund by subscription, and handed Mr. Moody $500 for himself and Mr. Sankey. This was less than $5 apiece for each of the sermons and public meetings held by them here, but it was all that Mr. Moody would accept. In Rutland, Major Whittle and Mr. and Mrs. McGranahan were paid $500 together, and in Bennington Messrs. Needham and Cato received together about $275.—Bennington (Vt.,) Free Press.

E. G. PIERCE, JR., P. M.

THE CITY.

Two daughters of Hon. John H. Burleigh of South Berwick, killed at Salmon Falls bridge Wednesday night, have been attending Miss Morgan's Seminary in this city.

C. E. Myers & Co. have received one piece black Matelasse cloaking for ladies' wear, which they will sell at $4 per yard. An early call will be necessary to secure a share of it, as such a bargain is not offered elsewhere in the city.

Funeral services [of the late Rev. Daniel Austin] were held in this city at the Unitarian Church Thursday morning, by Rev. Dr. Peabody and Rev. Mr. DeNormandie, after which the body was taken to Boston for further services at King's Chapel by Rev. Dr. Hill of Portland, and buried—all according to careful directions long ago written out in detail by deceased, including a metallic casket painted white, and that Messrs. J. H. Foster, Preston and Thacher were to superintend the funeral here.—Weekly.

MASONIC ELECTION.

At the annual communication of St. John's Lodge, No. 1, of this city, held Wednesday evening, Dec. 5th, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Thomas J. Mitchell, W. M.;
John S. Whidden, S. W.;
Thomas R. Martin, J. W.;
Isaac Dow, Treasurer;
John H. Cheever, Secretary;
Samuel S. Fletcher, Oliver J. Fernald, Standing Committee;
Thomas E. O. Marvin, Representative to Grand Lodge.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, there was a hearing on a petition of the Eastern Railroad for the use of the crossing at the end of Vaughan street for shifting freight cars. Albert R. Hatch, Esq., appeared for the road, and read the statute on which the petition was based. He gave an account of an accident which happened to him some years ago on the highway near the crossing, and suggested that to prevent accidents a new highway be laid out from Vaughan street, through Short street and the Raynes shipyard, to Elm street.

Mr. Barrett, station agent, appeared in behalf of the railroad, and made statements in regard to those who would be benefited by the granting of the petition, and the amount of time gained for the road by daylight; he thought that two hours per day—one hour in the morning and one at night—would be sufficient, and that teams and pedestrians would not be delayed more than two minutes at any one time.

Ald. Hadley said all the city demanded was that a limit of time be given and adhered to by the railroad authorities.

Voted, that the matter be referred to a special committee of the Board, to confer with the railroad authorities and report at the next meeting.

The Mayor appointed Aldermen Hadley, Yeaton and Perkins such committee.

Wm. P. Israel, road surveyor, appeared before the Board on his own behalf in regard to a bill for gravel which the committee on claims had reported adversely on, as the gravel was taken from his own premises, and not from the city's. Referred to City Solicitor, to report whether Mr. Israel has any legal claim against the city.

Adjourned hearing on the widening of Penhallow street came up. Voted, that a committee be appointed to confer with Mr. Gerrish in regard to damages, etc., in the case. Aldermen Hoyt, Sides and Coffin were appointed a committee.

Hearing on Jackson Hill street extension was ordered for Monday, Dec. 17th, at the Common Council room. Voted, that the Mayor see that the city is represented at the hearing.

Commitee on claims reported that Dr. F. E. Potter has a legal claim against the city for injury to horse and sleigh on Church street on March 18th, 1877; damages claimed, $28.62. Referred to same committee, with power to settle.

Monthly bills were ordered paid.

Ald. Hadley, to whom the difference of opinion between James Moses, city Collector, and F. W. Miller, regarding discount of six per cent. on latter's tax for 1877, was referred, reported, recommending that the discount be allowed. Report accepted.

Report of repairs needed on several school houses were referred to committee on school houses, with power.

Resolutions regarding Green street and Creek street railroad crossings, which were referred to the committee on printing, were reported on, and it was recommended that the crossings be guarded by gates. The portion relating to Green street crossing was referred to special committee on Vaughan street crossing. The rules were then suspended, and the bill requiring a gate at Creek street crossing was read a second time and passed.

The committee on printing, to whom was referred the subject of the city printing, reported a new ordinance, which was passed under suspension of the rules.

Ald. Norton of Ward Two, to whom was referred the petition of C. W. Bailey and others regarding the piggery of J. Stokell & Co., reported by giving the opinion of Mr. Hatch. Ald. Norton of Ward Four was added to the committee, and the report was recommitted for a report as to the proper legal measures to be taken.

Committee on city lands and buildings reported it inexpedient to grant the request of S. A. Spinney.

The Mayor said his attention had been called to bay windows overhanging the sidewalks of the city, and that they made walking dangerous by reason of water dropping from them and freezing upon the walks, which might render the city liable in case of accident. Referred to the Mayor to report what steps should be taken.

Adjourned for two weeks.

REV. DANIEL AUSTIN.

We take from the Boston Journal the following sketch of the life of the late Rev. Daniel Austin, whose sudden death at Willow Bank, Kittery Lower Foreside, has already been announced:

Rev. Daniel Austin, A. M., was born in Boston, Mass., Nov. 21, 1793. He was a son of Daniel and Mary (Penhallow) Austin. His father was a merchant in Boston till 1808, when he removed to Portsmouth, N. H., where he died in December 1818. His mother died some years ago at the advanced age of 87. The son fitted for college under Deacon Amos Tappan, and entering Dartmouth as a Sophomore, he graduated in 1813. Of the forty-two members of his class only four, and perhaps not as many as that, survive. Among his classmates were Rev. Rufus W. Bailey, D. D., President of the Austin College, Texas; Rev. Austin Dickinson, a religious writer; Hon. James Dinsmore of Kentucky; Hon. Thomas M. Edwards of this State; Prof. Benjamin F. Farnsworth, D. D.; Rev. Joseph B. Felt. D. D., the historian; Benjamin Greenleaf, A. M., the methematician; Jonathan Kittredge, LL. D., of Concord, N. H., and Hon. Charles Woodman, formerly Speaker of the New Hampshire House of Representatives. After graduation, Mr. Austin followed the bent of a high classical taste and attended to general literature. He also studied law with Jeremiah Mason, but abandoned the idea of that profession. When quite young he declined the appointment to become a major, as an aid to Gen. Storer. On July 4, 1814, he delivered the republican oration in Portsmouth. After teaching a number of years, he entered Divinity Hall, Cambridge, and graduated in 1827. He was settled over the First Parish in Brighton, Mass., June 4, 1828, and remained there till November, 1837, when he resigned, to the regret and sorrow of the people of his charge. He represented Brighton in the Legislature in 1832 and declined a reelection. He was married to Miss Hannah, the eldest daughter of Benjamin Joy of Boston, November 21, 1833. From Brighton he went to Boston, where for two years he was reader and assistant to his friend, Dr. F. W. P. Greenwood, at the King's Chapel. About that time he declined the Masonic appointment of Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. In 1842 he removed to Cambridge, where he was active in the cause of education, and was an assistant to the Professor of Pulpit Eloquence in the University. He then founded and endowed a course of lectures relating to the Evidences of Christianity. In 1850 he returned to Portsmouth and purchased "Sherburne Place," and also bought a seaside residence at Kittery, which he called "Willow Bank." The deceased was fond of quiet observation and retirement. He was social, reverential, tasteful and public spirited. One of his most prominent characteristics was his great benevolence. He will be remembered as a gentleman of varied accomplishments and high attainments, and who steadily endeavored to make the world better for having lived in it.

—Mr. Bargis cowhided Mr. Walther in Richmond, Ind., and was fined $10. Then Mr. Walther cowhided Mr. Bargis, and was fined $25. The inference is that Mr. Walther, in the judgment of the Justice, was the hardest whipper.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY

FOR 1877-78.

Without recalling the excellence of the past, the publishers of SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY announce, for the year to come, the following papers:

THE PICTURESQUE SIDE OF AMERICAN FARM LIFE.—This subject will be treated in a series of separate papers engaged from writers who stand in the front rank among Americans, both in qualities of style and in keen insight of nature. Mr. R. Robinson, author of a delightful paper on "Fox-Hunting in New England" in the January number, will represent the same section in this series. John Burroughs, whose papers on similar topics have been a highly prized and popular feature of SCRIBNER will write of Farm Life in New York. Maurice Thompson, the poet-naturalist, will describe the characteristics of Western farming, of which but little has been written. It is expected that the illustration of this series will be of a refined and typical character, commensurate with the subject-matter. It is thought that no paper or series of papers yet issued in SCRIBNER will so fully realize the constant desire of the magazine to keep out of the ruts, and, both in text and illustrations, to strike quality rather than quantity, and to print fresh, strong and delicate work from original sources.

"ROXY,"—by Edward Eggleston (author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," etc.). This new novel will doubtless be the most important American serial of the year. The first number was published in November. Those who have read it in manuscript declare ROXY to be much the most striking and remarkable story this author has ever written. It is illustrated by one of the ablest of the younger American painters—Mr. Walter Shirlaw, President of "The American Art Association."

AMERICAN SPORTS.—Some of the most novel and entertaining of these papers are yet to appear, the scenes of which will be in the West, the Middle States, the South, New England and Canada.

OUT-OF-DOOR PAPERS.—by John Burroughs, author of "Wake Robin," etc., will contain not only articles on Birds, but on "tramping," Camping Out," and kindred topics. Mr. Burroughs' papers will begin in the January number, the first being entitled "Birds and Birds," and illustrated by Fidelia Bridges.

ARCHITECTURE OF BIRDS.—Dr. Thomas M. Brewer will contribute four exquisitely illustrated articles on bird-nests, which will delight lovers of nature will delight in. Dr. Brewer has probably the finest collection of birds' eggs in the world to draw upon for the illustrations of these papers.

THE SADDLE HORSE.—Col. George E. Waring, whose excellent work of various sorts our readers are familiar, contributes two illustrated articles on the horse He treats specially of saddle-horses and their use for pleasure and for sport, including road-riding, fox hunting and racing. The nature of the English thoroughbred and that of his Eastern progenitor (the Arabian) are fully considered in relation to these uses.

SAXE HOLM.—New stories by this popular writer will be given in early numbers of SCRIBNER, beginning with "Joe Hale's Red Stocking," to appear in January. This "novelette" chronicles an episode of the late war for the Union.

"HIS INHERITANCE."—By Adeline Trafton, so well begun in the Midsummer Holiday number, will be continued nearly through the year. It will be found to be of increasing interest to the very end.

"A KNIGHT OF FORTUNE."—Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen's new novel—will be begun in SCRIBNER at the conclusion of "His Inheritance." It will reveal a phase of American society undreamed of by most of our readers, and will be certain to increase the reputation of the writer as a master of English and of his art.

THE EDITORIAL DEPARTMENTS will continue to employ the ablest pens in America, and will include the present admirable summary of English publications. Besides the above articles above enumerated, the magazine will contain Poems, Sketches, Essays, Reviews, and shorter stories of the highest character. The liberal editorial reduction in price is made by an increase in the number of pages.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS of the MAGAZINE, in variety and excellence of design and in typographical execution, will continue to be in advance of those of any other popular magazine at home or abroad.

Subscription price, $4.00 a year, payable in advance to us or to any book-seller.

No club rates or other discounts to subscribers. The Magazine is worth all it costs, and its circulation is increasing in a constant and steady ratio from year to year.

—A Kentucky woman obtained a divorce on the ground that her husband was a habitual drunkard. The man went to Texas, reformed, returned, and remarried her.

—A well sinker at Conches, near Rouen, in France, eighteen years of age, has been extricated from a well after twenty days' imprisonment, caused by the giving way of a mass of earth. HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.
This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, fishing and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.
This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other shade to a lasting brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinarians. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly sold for the use upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.
J. B. ROSE & CO., 46 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey
To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil. Very pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping-Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefit I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest and most wonderful remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specific in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot compete with a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections, incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness; Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint," and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

P.P.P.P.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.
The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove Obstructions and relieved in Fever, Inflammation, Costiveness, Piles, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unrivaled. Furthermore, it would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. Be sure only use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed premature ly. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, even where it has been entirely gone, or when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and despaired of the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My sense of taste and smell, which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I thought what I should have done if it had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I was not benefited in the slightest. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

ONE EXCHANGE FIEND FOILED.

T'other evening we were lying
In our sanctum, vainly trying
To invent some local items for our valuable sheet,
When a fiend, who thought us sleeping,
To our desk came softly creeping,
Picked up some late exchanges and then started for the street.

Then the air grew denser, thicker,
As our old "Bogardus Kicker"
Raised the grim, audacious stranger through the window with a crash;
Just lifted him so neatly
That he disappeared completely,
With his shoulders ornamented with a shattered window sash.

And the stranger still is hiking
Through the atmosphere a-flying,
With a "flag of truce" protruding through the hole "Bogardus" tore;
And the soothing thought comes o'er us
That he never more will bore us—
Never come to steal exchanges from our sanctum any more.

The Champion Rascal.

Major Kopesky, the champion rascal of the New World, has just received his quietus at the hands of the Guatemalan Government. The design of the plotters in the recent local conspiracy was to assassinate the President, and then, by means of forged orders, the Ministers were to be called together and killed. Kopesky, the chief villain, was an officer of Maximilian, in Mexico, and sold out a fortified post for a cash price. Next, while in the expedition of Palacios, on the "General Sherman," in Central America, he betrayed his party to the Government of Honduras, causing the seizure and execution of a squad of men with a flag of truce. Given a command at the seaport of Omoa, he committed such fiendish outrages that the British Government was forced to interfere, and the place was bombarded. He was finally adopted by President Barrios, of Guatemala, and he attempted to repay his debt of gratitude by killing his benefactor. Kopesky was a Hungarian Jew, and had lost a leg and arm in his somewhat checkered career. He was a Major in the Guatemalan service, and in company with sixteen other conspirators, was shot a week or two since, in the City of Guatemala. Central America has been the favorite field of many scamps and adventurers, but the biography of Kopesky is certainly the most remarkable of any of those known to the world at large.—N. Y. Times.

A New Fire Escape.

T. L. Bennett of East Templeton has just patented an improved fire escape, which for fitness and adaptation to its purpose, surpasses anything yet invented. It consists of a four-wheeled truck on which swings a hollow tube of iron made in sections. This tube is so arranged that by means of an endless screw, turned by a crank, it is raised to any desired angle. At the extremity of the tube a nozzle can be attached so as to throw water over the roof or upper part of a building. The escape part consists of a large bucket made to clasp around the tube and raised or lowered by wire ropes worked by a windlass. In case of fire the machine is set in the middle of the street, the tube raised to any window from which people desire to escape, the bucket run up, into which they get, and then they are conveyed to the ground, not vertically, but diagonally, away from the falling debris.—Gardner News.

Turkish Trials.

To a Turk a court of justice, in the American acceptation of the term, is a thing unknown. They never finish a cause at the first hearing, nor do they render an immediate decision; but after all the testimony has been offered, the kadi (judge) adjourns the further trial of the action until some future time, for the known purpose of affording the litigants an opportunity of making him presents. These he accepts from both parties, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the decision is in favor of the person whose gift is the most valuable. There used to be a judge named Kaimil Pasha who did not go through the formality of listening to the evidence. He was therefore regarded by the common people as the most learned kadi that ever lived, for, said they, he understood the Koran so thoroughly that he could render a decision before a particle of testimony had been presented by either party.

—A stranger entered a pump and block maker's shop a few days since, and as the proprietor was turning a piece of wood in his lathe the visitor asked what would turn the quickest and easiest. "Milk!" was the reply. The stranger gave a look at the turner, whose countenance was as grave as the wood he was turning, and then quietly left.

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1877.

Congress.

The silver men won a victory in the Senate, Thursday, it being decided by a vote of 41 ayes against 19 nays to take up the bill on Tuesday. As this is a two-thirds vote, it virtually sets aside the rules of the Senate. The Senate also discussed Senator Chaffee's resolution concerning the Union Pacific Railroad and its branches, which was passed.

The elections committee reported the Colorado case to the House, there being three reports, one to seat the republican, one to seat the democrat and one for a new election. The House after passing the general Post Route bill, adjourned, with the agreement that adjournment should be had on Saturday until Monday.

In the Senate, Friday, Mr. Sargent, from the committee on naval affairs, reported with amendments the House bill for the relief of sufferers by the wreck of the Huron. The amendment provides for the payment to the heirs of those lost a sum equal to twelve months pay; to the heirs of Capt. Guthrie of the Life Saving service a sum equal to his compensation for one year, and to the heirs of those belonging to wrecking steamer Baker, who were lost in attempting to save those on board the Huron, $100 each. The amendment was agreed to and the bill passed.

The Next Platform.

The Concord correspondent of the Boston Globe, writing of the political prospects in this State, thus discourseth concerning the timber of which the next republican platform is to be constructed:

On national affairs—the President's policy and civil service reform—the party is hopelessly divided, and the platform, to party managers, is an object of great solicitude. It is argued by the anti-Hayes element that the policy of wisdom will be to accept the difference of feeling in regard to the Administration and to agree to say nothing. On the other hand, the Hayes republicans say that if the platform says nothing about the President the inevitable inference will be that the party does not accept or approve his course; that such procedure would be a loud proclamation that a pacific policy in the Southern States and a reform in the civil service were "not measures of the republican party, but whims of the President;" that the policy of silence under existing circumstances would be unmanly and ungenerous. They believe that the platform should declare for the President in the most unqualified manner, not merely profess faith in his "honesty" and "sincerity"—which may be said of any well-meaning fool—but affirm unfaltering confidence in him as a statesman, and cordially approve and support his action in the Southern States and in the reformation of the civil service. By doing this, the Convention would absolutely identify the republican party of New Hampshire with the President and his course.

The Springfield Republican argues that the republicans of New Hampshire should unqualifiedly "endorse" all that President Hayes has done, and says:

Victory was gained in Massachusetts by a reform departure which commanded it.

It is hardly probable that the republicans of New Hampshire, who have been accustomed to win victories over the hard fighting democracy of this State by very carefully not taking the advice of the assistant democratic papers of Massachusetts, are going to follow their lead now. It is a fact that a large proportion of New Hampshire republicans, even of those not disposed to find fault with Mr. Hayes for the removal of the troops from the South, do not approve his steady "conciliation" of the Bourbon-secession element at the expense of republican Union men; and thousands who earnestly desire reform in the civil service are decidedly of opinion that it is not to be attained by infringing on the personal and political rights of men in office or out of it. We do not believe the only hope of a republican victory lies in the State convention "endorsing in the most unqualified manner" everything that President Hayes has ever done or may do.

Democratic Conventions.

The Democratic State Committee held a meeting at Concord, Thursday evening, and appointed the times and places of holding the several conventions, as follows:

State Convention—Concord, Wednesday, January 16, at 11 o'clock A. M.

Councillor Conventions—District No. 1, Epping, January 17; District No. 2, Concord, January 16; District No. 3, Nashua, January 18; District No. 4, Claremont, January 22; District No. 5, Woodsville, January 17.

Senatorial Conventions—District No. 1, Hampton, January 18; District No. 2, Epping, January 17; District No. 3, Manchester, January 18; District No. 4, Concord, January 24; District No. 5, Dover, January 17; District No. 6, Wolfeboro', January 23; District No. 7, Nashua, January 17; District No. 8, not appointed; District No. 9, Keene, January 18; District No. 10, Claremont, January 19; District No. 11, Andover, January 22; District No. 12, Woodsville, January 17.

County Conventions—Rockingham, Epping, January 23; Strafford, Rochester, January 23; Belknap, Laconia, January 15; Carroll, West Ossipee, January 22; Hillsborough, Greenfield, January 24; Cheshire, Keene, January 18; Sullivan, Claremont, January 19; Grafton, Haverhill, January 18; Coos, Lancaster, January 18.

The general impression of the committee was that Hon. Frank McKean, of Nashua, would be the next democratic candidate for governor.

Chronicle Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5th.

The critics agree generally, I believe, in the verdict that President Hayes' first annual message argues his views with a clearness and force that court comparison with the average of those of his predecessors. But it is no exaggeration to say that the supporters of the Bland and Ewing bills are mad all through; and the heavy and shocking drafts made on their reserve supplies of profanity since its contents became known, more than ever convince the pious in our midst that Moody and Sankey acted unadvisedly in declining the invitation given to labor here this winter with unregenerate Congressmen and others specially needing their admonitions. Their (the silver men's) success was assured in both Houses of Congress, and the early adoption of their financial views was a foregone conclusion, provided that the President was agreeable. They jumped at conclusions when he authorized a denial of the report telegraphed hence that he had expressed his intention to veto the two bills should they ever reach him; and now that his opposition to the general scope and purpose of the enactments is known, inflation schemes have collapsed like a "busted" balloon, and they have no hope of making head against the joint influence of the White House and the Treasury Department.

The feeling that has permeated every circle here to the effect that the President and his party representatives in Congress have sensibly drifted further asunder every day of the extra session, has not been lessened by the vigorous criticisms heard on every hand of those portions of the message devoted to Southern affairs. The circumstances attending the nomination of Fitzsimmons in Georgia and Northup in South Carolina to important federal positions in those States, are offences not likely to be condoned or overlooked; and the utterances of the message are not regarded as inviting a truce with a view to more amicable relations.

Mexican matters are once more in the ascendent. Gen. Ord and other officers summoned from the Rio Grande are here, some of them having already given their views to the House military committee, to the President, Gen. Sherman and the Secretary of War, and the others will be at once called. It is understood that there is a substantial agreement of all those who have been heard, touching the immediate necessity of reinforcements on the Indian and Mexican borders in Texas, and they are being hurried forward. Some of the incidents related by Ord as coming under his observation as commander of our forces in that department are well calculated to discredit Diaz's professions of friendship and a desire to do away with the chronic grievances that have brought us to the verge of war with our Southern neighbor. He is reported to have said that the present authorities will observe their obligations toward us just so far as appears compatible with their own individual interests—not farther; and that if a war with us should appear the readiest means of consolidating their power, its proclamation would not be delayed twenty-four hours.

Among the better informed officials about the War Office and at the Department of Indian Affairs, the stampede of many of the Sioux en route under military escort from their reservations to the camp designated for the winter's occupation on the Missouri, is regarded as very ominous of another war with the redskins. They are already reported to have inaugurated it by murder and minor depredations in the Black Hills country. The reinforcement of our Texas army embarrasses the Administration to find troops for this new emergency. One thing is said to have been determined on, viz., the rigid enforcement of the starvation policy against every rebellious Indian and against all declining to go to the depot designated for their supplies.

Fifteen thousand dollars is asked by the Interior Department to protect the Government from the depredations of the timber thieves. This system of plundering appears to have extended everywhere there was Government land bearing valuable timber, and has mounted in the aggregate to many millions. Whole communities are found implicated, including federal, State and municipal officers.

The opening of Congress didn't excite the usual attention. The long struggle over the contested seats crowded the Senate galleries day and night; and at its close the exhaustion was almost as marked among the habitues of the galleries as with the direct participants.

The gay season opens very quietly, with comparatively few strangers here, and with the ghastly remembrances of the Huron disaster still so vivid as to impose something of a restraint. The theatres have been only moderately patronized since their opening for the season, and the managers, hotel and boarding house keepers are all awaiting the influx usual after the holiday season. The Eastern War.

A Turkish division has crossed the Lom and taken Popkol, and is now marching in the direction of Verboca.

A Constantinople despatch says a Turkish division from Osman Bazar, under Saleh Pasha, occupied Kesirova, after some cannonading. Six battalions of Russians, fearing insolation, retreated thence to Tirnova. Suleiman Pasha's headquarters are still at Elena.

Russian official despatches admit the loss of Elena.

News and Notes.

An attempt was made on Thursday, at Barrington, Mass., to lynch Ten Eyck, the suspected negro murderer of the Stillmans at Sheffield. The people of Barrington, to which place he was taken to be lodged in jail, attempted to hang him, but the sheriff and his deputies kept the mob back with their revolvers.

Steamship European, from Cape of Good Hope for England, struck a rock off the coast of France and sunk in ten minutes. All hands escaped in the boats.

A building in course of erection at St. John, N. B., on Prince William street, fell Thursday, and eight men are supposed to have been crushed to death.

James Williams, of New London, Conn., a venerable old gentleman of sixteen years, was desperately in love. His gal jilted him, and he went to New York on Thursday, got drunk, and then took a cup of "cold pizen." He was taken to the hospital and bailed out with a stomach pump, and will recover.

The young American painter, Henry Leland, was accidentally killed in Paris, Tuesday, while playing with a pistol he thought not loaded.

A Tucson, Arizona, dispatch states that the States of Guerrero and Michoacan, with General Alvarez at the head of 6000 soldiers, have declared for Lerdo. This was considered important as indicating a change of opinion in the southern provinces of Mexico, which, until the present time, have been considered safe for Diaz.

MacMahon of France has formed a cabinet that is satisfactory to the republicans.

There has been a wholesale raid on the liquor dealers of New York city, and 351 of them arrested.

Commodore E. K. Collins, founder of the once famous Collins line of steamers, is in abject poverty. Contributions for his benefit, in the form of the subscription purchase of his portrait, to be hung in the Maritime Exchange of New York, are being solicited. It was generally supposed by all the merchants with whom he was associated that he had saved enough to support himself. His property consisted of unremunerative real estate, and that had to be sold at an unfortunate time to meet his urgent wants. For a number of years he lived very modestly in the neighborhood of New Rochelle.

James W. Westcott, of the Ocean House at Newburyport, reported by Detective Blood for liquor selling, cowhided the latter at the Merrimac House, Thursday, cutting his hands and face badly and injuring one eye.

A skiff containing seven negroes, who were attempting to cross the Mississippi at Myrtle Grove plantation, below New Orleans, tumbled to pieces, and five of them were drowned.

President Gowen, of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, notifies miners that the average price of coal for December will require a reduction of wages thirty-one to thirty-two per cent. below the basis, but that they will be paid not less than thirty per cent. thereunder. Tolls and freights for November, he says, were but $1.25 per ton. The men are, however, promised that, for every twenty-five cents advance in tolls and freights next year, the minimum rate of wages will be increased ten per cent., and when the old rate of $2.00 per ton is reached, that basis will be the minimum. It is believed that this will give general satisfaction.

John Bell, boatswain's mate of the frigate Powhatan, a man of great practical experience, attributes the loss of the Huron to "local deviation of the compass," which is greater on an iron ship during a heavy storm than at other times, as storms are charged with electricity at sea as well as on shore.

The Executive Committee of the National Board of Steam Navigation, representing steamship and steamboat owners throughout the United States, held a meeting on Thursday in New York, to take measures in urging favorable action by Congress upon the pending measure commonly known as the steamboat bill. It is substantially a copy of the bill which passed the House in the Forty-fourth Congress, but which failed to receive final action in the Senate.

Prince Bismarck likes to find everything in his study in disorder and general topsy-turviness, just as he left it—bottles, mugs, cigars and cigar boxes, odd gloves, books, pamphlets, papers, letters, spurs, stray antiques, swords, hand mirrors, pistols, fiddle-strings, flutes—these are all articles he wants to put his hand on at short notice, and see lying around on the tables, floor and sofas. Whenever he discovers any signs that his wife or the servants have been trying to set things to rights a terrible row is raised.

The National Base ball League, at Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 4th, gave the championship of the United States to the Boston club, and decided to throw out of the record all games played by the Cincinnati club during the season, because it was not properly a member of the League. The Board confirmed the expulsion by the Louisville club of Hall, Craver, Devlin and Nichols, for speculating in games. A resolution declaring the Indianapolis club a member of the League, was adopted. The expulsion of Oscar Walker by the St. Paul club, and of Burchell by the Louisville club were confirmed. At an adjourned meeting of the League, Dec. 5th, the Cincinnati, Milwaukee and Indianapolis clubs were voted in. The resignation of the St. Louis club was accepted. New articles to the constitution were adopted providing for a league alliance, the principal feature of which will be to give clubs under it a championship to be competed for by all.

The Spanish minister at Washington recently telegraphed to Captain General Jovellar, asking him to inquire as to the truth or falsity of a report that a secret order has been issued by General Martinez Campos, commanding all military chiefs to cause all prisoners of war to be shot, and then reported as having been killed on the field of battle. The Captain General, under date Havana, Dec. 4, telegraphs as follow: "Although I do not consider it necessary to deny falsehoods, publicly known to be such, I inform your excellency in order that you may make use of the information, in such manner as you may deem proper, that the report of the alleged secret circular about the shooting of prisoners said by Cuban insurgent papers to have been issued by the General-in-Chief is utterly without foundation and an unscrupulous forgery."

Political.

Providence held her second Mayoralty election on Thursday, and Thomas A. Doyle, republican, was elected for the twelfth time, by 4793 votes against 3577 for A. J. Barnaby, democrat, (who was supported, also, by disaffected republicans,) and 107 scattering votes. Mayor Doyle received 1145 more votes than ever before.

Remarking on the visit to South Carolina made by Senator Hamburg Massacre Butler, and the subsequent announcement that all indictments against Patterson were quashed, the Worcester Gazette says "quick sales and short credits" was Patterson's motto.

Nobody is so disgusted with the President's Message as Bonanza Jones of Nevada. He says Hayes wants a silver dollar as large as a cart wheel. Transparent Jones! What Jones wants is a silver dollar the size of a five cent piece. If Jones can get all his silver bullion coined into such dollars as these without paying anything to the mint for the expense of coinage, he thinks it would be a great thing for the poor working man. And the aforesaid poor working man thinks it would be a great thing for Jones.—Worcester Gazette.

THE CITY.

Rev. Mr. Knapp, who lectures upon Art at the South Parish Chapel, has one of the largest collections in this country of illustrations upon sculpture, and the lectures promise to be of real value and interest.

Inspector General D. J. Vaughan commenced his first inspection of the State militia Thursday evening, with the Portsmouth Light Artillery. He will keep on until every company in the State has been inspected.

Schooner Sunlight, Capt. Hodgdon, from Philadelphia with six hundred and fifty tons of coal, arrived at this port on Friday. One hundred tons will be unloaded at Concord Railroad wharf for transportation up the road, and the remainder goes to the navy yard for the government.

It was reported in the Boston papers of Friday morning that the British steamer Ambassador, which accompanied the Faraday in laying the Direct Cable, was off Newburyport bar all day Thursday. What she was there for was not stated, nor could we find out anything about her on Friday by the fishermen. We don't believe she was there at all.

A free evening school is to be opened at the Common Council room under the management of the directors of the Young People's Union; applicants to be over fourteen years of age, and to show cause why they cannot attend the public schools. Those who wish to attend can report themselves at that place this evening between the hours of seven and nine o'clock.

The entertainment given by the Hutchings Association, Thursday evening, drew an audience that filled the Universalist vestry quite full enough for comfort; and the good programme was gone through with in good style, to the manifest gratification of all present. All the entertainments given by the Association this season have been good, the only fault that could be found being that the programme of the second one was a trifle too long—a fault that was guarded against at the last one. They are to give two more, and propose to make them fully equal to any of the previous ones.

At the Unitarian church, preaching at 10:30 A. M.; vesper service at 7:30. Preaching to-morrow by Rev. Mr. Knapp, of Bangor.

At the Advent church, services at 10:15 A. M., 2:45 and 7:30 P. M. Elder Geo. W. Sederquest will preach.

MR. KNAPP'S LECTURES.

Editor Chronicle: I wish to say a word or two in relation to the two illustrated lectures by Rev. Mr. Knapp, to be given at the Unitarian chapel in Court street, this (Saturday) and Monday evenings.

We often hear complaints that those who live in the larger cities have so many more opportunities for intellectual and artistic cultivation, than we have. But if we do not improve those which come in our way, how should we be any better for having three times as many? In the larger cities, with all their superior advantages, these lectures have been thronged; here, they have been attended by a mere handful. These few have enjoyed them highly and need no urging to complete the course. But to the many who have not as yet attended we would say, "It is too late to regret the past, but make the most of what yet remains within your reach."

The two remaining lectures will probably be the most interesting of the course, as Art and Sculpture are more generally attractive than Architecture. M.

THE VICINITY.

A few days since Mr. John Haven of North Hampton fell in his barn and broke one of his legs in two places.

The town of York, Me., is a "great" one in territory, if in nothing else; some of its citizens have to go nine miles to vote.

The Kittery reform club has elected the following officers for the ensuing term: President, Samuel Watson; Vice Presidents, A. M. Graves, Ira Dunbar; Treasurer, B. P. Lewis; Chaplain, James R. Philbrick; Sergent-at-arms, Charles Chickering.

District No. Seven, of Eliot, Me., (Eliot Neck,) contains but one hundred and twenty-one acres of land, but there are owned and kept within its limits 4206 hens, the hen-census having recently been taken. The largest flock in the district numbers 2000 fowls; the smallest one, eight.

The holder of a mortgage of $3100 on the Freewill Baptist church at Kittery Point has notified the society that he shall foreclose the same unless about one-half is paid and new securities given for the rest. It is not thought the conditions can be complied with in the time specified, if at all, and an early sale of the church is probable.

During the past season the Common at Hampton Falls on which formerly stood the Rockingham Academy, has been graded and put back to its proper condition. It was given to the town for a parade ground and was said to contain four acres. Afterward it was torn up and the earth carted away to repair the highways, until its appearance was anything but an ornament to the town. The oldest inhabitant never knew it in as good condition as at present.

The biggest sailing vessel that ever saw Dover or that Dover ever saw in our river, came up to-day laden with 276 tons of coal for C. H. Trickey & Co., direct from Philadelphia, where she is owned. It is the three-masted schooner "Sallie M. Evans," and a very handsome and staunch one she is. Her length of keel is 104 feet and 112 feet over all. She draws about nine feet of water. In the arrival of a vessel of this size here, we see plainly the benefit of clearing out and deepening the channel of the river. Before this was done vessels had to discharge cargo at Portsmouth, which had to be re-shipped on gondolas and such like fossil concerns in order to reach here. It made freights come higher, and we had wharfage to pay at Portsmouth besides. Now a vessel can be loaded at Philadelphia or Baltimore or New York, or wherever a cargo is to be shipped from, and come direct to the wharves here without any delay or extra expense. Of course our people in buying their coal, etc., save in the course of the year a very large sum. This arrival to-day is the fourth one which has brought a cargo of coal and been discharged for Trickey & Co. since Thanksgiving day, which shows that they are doing an extensive business in supplying our people with fuel for the winter.—Dover Democrat, 5th.

Removing Obstructions from the Nose.

A correspondent of the Medical Record observes, on perusing an account of a discussion on the removal of a button from the nose, that he finds no mention of a very simple procedure which has often succeeded after instruments have failed. It is merely to blow the patient's nose for him by closing the empty nostril with the finger, and then blowing suddenly and strongly into the mouth. The glottis closes spasmodically, and the whole force of the breath goes to expel the button or bean, which commonly flies out at the first effort. This plan has the great advantage of exciting no terror in the child, and of being capable of being at once employed by the parent before delay has given rise to swellings and impaction.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

Centaur Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bedridden cripples; and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinarians. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast, but what these Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Pole-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.
J. B. ROSE & CO., 48 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey
To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No opiate is an ingredient for Fever, Sores, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By merit and superiority, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow such a mighty proportion and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil, Tumors, Ulcers or Old Sores, Blotches, Pimples, and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections, Incipient Consumption, Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness, Tropical Liver, or "Liver Complaint," and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or their sequelæ, in many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turner of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; then renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus lonely, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heal all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft — under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

MESSRS. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell, which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD, Short-Hand Writer.

You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

Daily Chronicle.

WHAT I WOULD DO.

A learned crow, of very high degree,
Sat grim and solemn in a forest tree,
Conversing with his sons, who by him sat,
And saying learned things of this and that.
He talked of art, crowology, and laws,
And proper rendering of certain caws,
And might have kept on talking to this day,
But for the sound of wolves not far away,
Howling and snarling as they onward came
In fierce pursuit of some unlucky game.
A red deer, wounded sore, soon came in sight,
With hanging tongue and eyeballs wild with fright;
Reeling, exhausted, weak from loss of blood,
Right beneath the tree at bay she stood.
On came the wolves, a fierce, bloodthirsty crew,
Eager for blood, for well its taste they knew;
And soon the helpless creature was o'erpowered,
Torn limb from limb, and eagerly devoured.
When all was ended and the feast was done,
His crowship, with preliminary caws,
Looked wise, then grieved, then made a solemn pause;
Turned to his son and said, "You see below
A case of ignorance the cause of woe!"
Now, if I were a deer in such a place,
I would escape the wolves and leave no trace.
The proper course is very plain to see:
The silly creature should have climbed a tree."

MORAL.

You say, no doubt, "Why, what a fool is he
Who could expect a deer to climb a tree!"
Not one whit wiser than this crow of mine
Are some who wear the human form divine—
Who give advice unasked, and criticise,
And nod, and wink, and whisper, and look wise,
And spread opinions with a lavish hand
On men and things they do not understand.

Remarkable Surgical Case.

A curious case, unparalleled in the annals of surgery, in progress at Jamestown, New York, is attracting the attention of medical men all over the country. Mrs. Hay, a mill employe, in some manner was caught by the hair in a revolving shaft, and the scalp was torn off from the neck to the eyebrows—leaving the skull entirely bare, and making a wound fifty-nine square inches in extent. She walked to her home, about 500 feet distant, and gave orders about sending for a surgeon before she became unconscious. At first an attempt was made to replace the scalp, and it was patched up and sewed on, but soon began to slough off, and the physicians were at a loss as to the course they hit upon the experiment of grafting, and published a card in the daily papers explaining the case, and asking contributions from young and healthy people to replace the scalp. The young people responded in goodly numbers to the call, and the doctors took from each of their arms a very small piece of skin, which was transferred to the head of the unfortunate woman. At first the experiment seemed doubtful, but at last the grafts began to adhere, and the patient is now in a fair way of recovery. Two hundred and forty-one "plants" have been applied, which cover about half the scalp, and the remainder will be placed in position as soon as possible. Mrs. Hay has been unconscious for days, but the enthusiastic physicians who have the case in hand are very sanguine that she will ultimately recover.

A Contrast.

If we were to be asked to say in one word the quality that more than anything else marks English towns and all public places as compared with our own, we should have to say neatness. English streets are well paved and clean; English roads are well kept; English railway stations are in perfect order; English fields are trim and neat; English gardens, hedges, fences, lawns, all exhibit care and oversight. English smoke and fog blacken and stain all the buildings, but English care more than compensates for this unavoidable evil. We are not so particular here. We have a clear atmosphere and brilliant skies, but we are all, so far as public places are concerned, sons and daughters of Shabbyville. This is the more strange, because in our households no such reproach is true. There are no neater and better-kept homes, nor are any people cleanlier or neater in their habits. It is wholly in public matters that this shabbiness we complain of exists; and this arises, of course, first, from the neglect of the official persons we endow with handsome salaries for leaving undone the things they should do; and next, from a strange indifference on everybody's part to everything of a public nature, to everything that is not within his own private administration.—Appleton's Journal.

How a Horse Kept Warm.

One cold morning last week Dr. Wilson drove up to a house on Crown street, and left his horse without hitching it. The horse waited a few minutes, and his master not returning, he began to dance a double shuffle, presumably to get his feet warm; finding this rather monotonous he started up toward Oliver street, keeping up a kind of Kentucky breakdown. When he had gone several rods, he cramped the buggy, backed and turned round, as neatly as though guided by a skillful driver, and pranced back to the hitching-post. Here he waited about five minutes, and then started toward Main street, going through several kinds of paces. Near the corner he stopped and turned round as skillfully as before, and frightened a boy, who had tried to stop him, almost out of his wits, by pursuing said boy with open mouth and bent-back ears, as though his usual habit was to eat every small boy that he came across. He then continued his antics until he had reached the house where he had been left, and when Dr. Wilson came out he was standing at the hitching-post as demurely as though he had never thought of leaving it.—Meriden Republican.

The Life-Saving Service.

The bill introduced in the House by Mr. Cox of New York to organize a life-saving service provides that the Secretary of the Treasury be authorized to establish additional life-saving and life-boat stations as follows: Thirteen complete stations on the coast of Virginia and North Carolina; two complete and one life-boat stations on the coast of Lake Michigan; four life-boat stations on the coast of Texas; two life-boat stations on the coast of Lake Huron, and one life-boat station in Bolinas bay, California, in place of that authorized at Point Reges by the act of June 20, 1874. The bill further provides that, hereafter, life-saving stations upon the Atlantic coast at which crews are employed, shall be manned and the stations opened for active service on the 1st of September of each year and so continue until the first of May succeeding, and the crews shall reside at the stations during said period; that the President of the United States may appoint a suitable person who shall be familiar with the use and operations of life-boats, surf-boats, etc., for the saving of life and property from shipwrecked vessels as General Superintendent of the Life-Saving Service, who shall, under the immediate direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, have general charge of the service, and whose compensation shall be $4000 per annum, and the Secretary of the Treasury shall appoint an assistant to the General Superintendent, at a salary of $2500; that the compensation of the keepers of life-saving and life-boat stations hereafter be $500 per annum, and they shall be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury, but receive no additional compensation for duties performed as such. It is understood that the bill was prepared by the Chief of the Revenue Marine Division.

A Political Almanac of the Senate.

The Albany Journal thus foots up the United States Senate:

Now that the struggle for the political control of the Senate is concluded for the present, it is time to make up the official returns and see how the Senate stands. The republicans have gained Kellogg, the democrats Butler, and Eustis is still knocking at the door. Counting Conover and Patterson, the republicans have 39 Senators, and the democrats, including Davis of Illinois, 36. But one of the republicans, Sharon, is habitually absent without a pair, so that the republican side is practically reduced to 38. It is probable, also, that Eustis will soon be admitted, increasing the democratic side to 37. Or, to put the whole in tabular form:

Republicans with Sharon,	39
Republicans without Sharon,	38
Democrats with Davis and without Eustis,	36
Democrats when Eustis gets in and Davis stays in,	37
Democrats when Eustis gets in and Davis gets out,	36
Republican majority (without Sharon) when Davis is a democrat	1
Republican majority when Davis is a republican	3
Republican majority when Davis is an independent and artful dodger,	2
Democratic majority, if Patterson should do so again, with Davis as a democrat,	1
Republican majority, if Patterson should do so again, with Davis a republican,	1
Republican majority, if Patterson should do so again, with Davis as an independent dodger, making a tie, to be decided by the Vice-President's casting vote,	1
Democratic majority, if Patterson and Conover should both do so again, with Davis as a democrat, but his position in that case not changing the result no matter what he might do,	3

Congress.

The republicans in the Senate are trying to oust Sergeant-at-Arms French because he has appointed democrats to office in preference to republicans. Col. N. G. Ordway of this State is a candidate for the place.

There is considerable dissatisfaction among the eastern democrats over the selection of Senator Voorhees by the democratic caucus as the member of the finance committee. They claim that it is a virtual endorsement of the most extreme inflation ideas, and everything that is unsound in regard to greenbacks and silver.

Walter H. French of Massachusetts, Tally Clerk of the House of Representatives, was removed on Friday and Gen. Albert Lamar of Georgia appointed in his place. The New England democratic members are indignant at the act of Clerk Adams, and claim that it is unjust.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Stephens of Georgia, amendatory of the Texas Pacific Railroad act, proposing to issue to that company bonds of the United States to an amount not exceeding $38,750,000, payable, principal and interest, in gold, and to run fifty years. A motion instructing the committee to report back the resolution in five days was defeated by a large majority.

Mr. Shelley of Alabama introduced a bill to regulate Chinese immigration. It proposes to levy, per capita, a tax of $250 upon every subject of China immediately upon entering the United States, either from China or any other country, after January 1, 1879, excepting officers or duly accredited agents of the Chinese Government, and their families or servants coming to the United States in some official capacity. Every Chinese subject violating this provision will be punished on conviction by imprisonment at hard labor for not less than five years. The bill was referred to the committee on education and labor.

Belva Lockwood, Mrs. Van Cott and Mrs. Ricketts of New Hampshire were accorded a hearing by the judiciary committee of the House, Friday morning, in support of a bill authorizing women to practice before the United States Supreme Court. Mrs. Lockwood explained how she had been denied this privilege. Gen. Butler was authorized by the committee immediately to report a bill favoring this application.

The Eastern War.

The Russian bridge across the Danube at Nicopolis has been broken and badly damaged.

Turkish despatches represent the Russians at Erzeroum as in a critical position. Other despatches report a determined and probably successful Russian attack on Batoum as probable.

Suleiman Pasha reports that he has again defeated the Russians at Tirnova, with heavy loss. Osman Pasha claims to have made nine successful sorties from Plevna in November, and that he has an abundance of ammunition and provisions.

News and Notes.

MacMahon is obstinate again, and the compromise ministry is a failure.

A fishing schooner, which recently arrived at Gloucester from the Banks, brought a curious fish, a little over four feet long, somewhat resembling a shark, but which was unknown to fishermen. It was caught in a trawl, and preserved as a curiosity. The fish was sent to the Smithsonian Institution, with a pair of its entirely new species, not before described.

The army officers are reported as attaching grave importance to the order that the companies of artillery ordered to the Mexican frontier are not permitted to take any of their wives or families. Gen. Ord is said to have stated, Thursday, that they would have enough heavy work to do without being encumbered with women. He also stated that Gen. Miles is ordered to remain in Washington till the arrival of Gen. Sheridan, for consultation as to needed movements against the fresh Sioux outbreak. Several officers believe that Lieutenants Bullis and Young, who have been absent on a raid into Mexico for three weeks, have been captured and sent to the city of Mexico as prisoners.

United States steamer Pensacola, at San Francisco Nov. 29, was to sail in a day or two for Honolulu. She would be absent from San Francisco for six months.

Among the grand jurors who originally found the indictment against President Case for perjury in the returns of the Security Life Insurance Company was Wm. C. Gilman, the insurance scrip forger, now in Sing Sing prison.

The naval officers at Norfolk have all signed a petition to Congress for a pension for the wife and children of Captain Guthrie, Superintendent of the Life Saving Station, recently drowned at the wreck of the Huron.

A family named Finney, at Mansfield, Ohio, were attacked in their house on the night of the 6th inst., by an unknown person. The family consisted of father and son, and their wives. The old man was killed and the old lady fatally beaten. The son and his wife, who slept up stairs, heard the noise and came down, when the assassin attacked them, fatally wounding them both. A colored man named Webb has been arrested for the crime, and the evidence is strong against him. A gun, used as a club, was the weapon employed, and it was wrested from the murderer by young Mr. Finney, the assailant then making his escape from the house.

Political.

The speeches of Senators Thurman and Voorhees, in the executive session of the Senate, Friday, were regarded as indicating that the democrats as a body intend to stand by the President's nominations and to treat the tenure of office act as unconstitutional. Senator Voorhees says the act originated in anger and fear—anger at Andy Johnson for betraying the republican party, and fear as to the consequences of that betrayal. Being regarded as unconstitutional, the democrats of the Senate intend to act as though it was not on the statute book.—Cor. Prov. Journal.

The last issue of the Charleston News and Courier has an editorial warning the colored republicans of Charleston not to support at the coming city election an independent ticket, composed of colored republicans and independent white democrats. The article says: "Upon the colored people of Charleston will rest the responsibility for the defeat of the democratic ticket, or attempt to defeat it. The defeat of the democratic ticket by the colored people will rekindle angry feelings that are fast dying out. The old color line will be re-established. The whites will be pitted squarely against the blacks. Does any colored man doubt the result of such a contest, the State government, in every department, being controlled by democrats?"

The opposition to Gov. Prescott dates from his appointment of Judge Smith to the supreme bench, and is explained by the fact that Judge Smith two years ago was a party to the decision that the court had no authority to interfere in the matter known as the "Senate steal,"—the outrage perpetrated by Returning Board Weston and his pals. The Governor has turned the tables by publishing a part of the letters recommending the re-appointment of Judge Smith. Among the writers are Hon. E. H. Rollins, Daniel Hall, chairman of the Republican State Committee, and the leading members of the bar all over the State.

New Hampshire Items.

A two-story frame house, near Wolfeboro', owned and occupied by Benjamin C. Perkins, was burned Friday morning. Loss $2000; insured $1500. Incendiary.

Gilmanton has a lady farmer, Mrs. J. D. Piper, who, though over sixty years of age, owns and manages a farm of seventy-five acres. The past summer she has herself done all her fencing, planting, hoeing, harvesting and other farm work, with the exception of haying.

A barn with contents, belonging to Joseph Herbert of Bethlehem, was burned Thursday afternoon. Loss $600; insured $200; cause unknown.

A Perfect Woman.

A wife-seeking, methodical youth, who has occasionally escorted a young lady home on Sunday evenings, and gone in for supper, after performing both services last Sunday night, suddenly said to her—"Do you talk in your sleep?" "Why—no," she answered, in surprise. "Do you walk in your sleep?" he next inquired. "No, sir." He moved his chair an inch closer, and with increased interest asked—"Do you snore?" "No," she hastily replied, looking earnestly at him. At this reply his eyes fairly sparkled. His lips eagerly parted, and as he gave his chair another hitch, he briskly inquired—"Do you throw the combings of your hair in the basin?" "What?" she asked, with a blank face. He repeated the question, although with increased nervousness. "No, I don't," she answered in some haste. Again his chair went forward, while his agitation grew so intense that he could scarcely maintain his place upon it as he asked—"Do you clean the comb when you have done?" "Of course I do," she said, staring at him with all her might. In an instant he was on his knees, before her with his hand outstretched. "I love you," he passionately cried. "I give my whole heart to you. Love me and I will be your slave. Love me as I love you, and I will do everything on earth for you. Oh, will you take me to be your lover, your husband, your protector, your everything?" It was a critical moment for a young lady of her years, but she was equal to the emergency, as a woman generally is, and accepted him.—Once-a-Week.

An Eventful Career.

In the State Prison at Charlestown there is a man named Duhnahin who was there before the war, serving out a sentence of thirty years. While the war was in progress he expressed a desire to enlist, and he was conditionally pardoned that he might do so. His character was unknown to his comrades, and he gained the good will of his officers by showing that he was a brave man. After the battle of Fredericksburg he acted as a spy for the Union army, and from information obtained by him in this manner the Northern troops were saved from destruction. He was afterward captured, sent to Libby Prison, and paroled. He broke his parole, re-enlisted, deserted, committed a burglary, and he now has twelve years to serve the State. He is usually cheerful, but his long confinement has worn upon him, and he is not much more than the wreck of a man.

Bad Gunpowder.

A hotel in Middletown, Conn., having for some time been infested with skunks, one night the employees, armed with guns, laid in wait for the pests, and succeeded in despatching two of them. In the morning an English guest, who had been sojourning at the hotel for a day or two, approached the clerk and remarked: "I rather like this place—sort of rustic, you know. But you have such shocking noises at night—guns and pistols, and all that sort of thing. The most peculiar thing of all, is that the powder of those guns has the most infernal odor, you know."

—It was at a charity ball; the girl was pretty and exquisitely dressed. She said: "Now, Mr. ——, don't you put my name in the paper, nor tell what I had on. I have worn this dress once before, and it's horribly old. I was going to have a French dress from Worth's, but it didn't get here so I had to wear this. Now mind, don't put my name in the paper, but, if you do, send me six."

—The latest performance in London, and one which draws a salary of $500 per week, is the terrific feat of Zagel, a young girl who dives through the air and strikes in a net 90 feet below. She drops head first, but gently and gracefully swerves in her flight until at last, striking on her back in the net, she arises unharmed. Should she miscalculate and fall on her head some day she would infallibly break her neck.

—The American fishermen on the Detroit river have been playing a trick which their brethren on the Canadian side despise, and which the Dominion government is taking measures to prevent in future. The Yankees have anchored hundreds of small pieces of boards below the surface of the water on the Canadian side, and the current disturbing them the fish are frightened over to the American shore. This has seriously interfered with the season's catch by the Canadians.

—A Vernon county (Mo) man had a faithful dog who accompanied him in all his travels. While driving through the woods, a few days ago, the dog sprang at the horse and held on to the bridle rein, and, though often driven off, persisted in this conduct. Concluding him mad, the man drew a pistol and shot the animal, which then ran back on the road. In a few minutes the man missed his overcoat, which had been tied to his saddle, and, going back, found it in the road with the dog lying dead upon it.

—English college-boys are even more impertinent than Americans. The boys at Cambridge played a very impertinent joke on Darwin on the recent conferring of the degree of D. C. L. upon him. As the distinguished recipient of university honors marched upon the platform, clad in the scarlet robes of the doctor, the effigy of a monkey was slowly lowered into the middle of the hall, from the most prominent point in the gallery. It was robed in the undergraduate gown, and emblazoned upon it, in staring letters, was the legend, "The Missing Link."

—A celebrated doctor—celebrated almost as much for his love of good living as for his professional skill—called upon a certain eccentric nobleman, whom he found sitting alone at a very nice dinner. After some time, the doctor, receiving no invitation to partake of it, said: "My dear lord, if I were in your lordship's place, I should ask my visitor to do as I was myself doing." "A thousand pardons for the omission," replied his lordship. "Pray, then, my dear doctor, do as I am doing—go home and eat your dinner!"

—As two young ladies belonging in Albion, Me., were on their way home from Houlton, on the railroad, a man entered the car in which they were seated, who had evidently been drinking. He soon took a bottle from his pocket and proceeded to pass it round; no one, however, accepted his proffered hospitality until he came to the Albion ladies, one of whom politely took the bottle from his hand, and instead of placing the disgusting thing to her dainty lips, very coolly threw it out of the open window, creating quite a sensation among the passengers. The man decamped in rather a crestfallen mood.

—Mrs. Gen. Sherman has written another letter against dancing. She says that she has noted "the wail of the wounded and the guilty" dancers since her first denunciation of the amusement. "It is not to be expected," she continues, "that young girls, who are unconscious of evil in the beginning, should reflect long enough to summon the moral courage to resist the allurements of the dance, unless with encouragement and support of their parents. To the honor of pure maidenhood be it said, however, that there are young girls who decline from instinctive delicacy, even when their parents would have them join the throng who dance down the broad road of worldly pleasure."

—Some time ago a Cincinnati donkey immortalized himself by killing a lioness in a fair fight. And now the Gazette thinks another humble animal of the same sort in that city is worthy of honorable mention. The latter was attached to a car, filled with passengers, which was descending a hill. At a critical moment the brake-chain broke, and the car rushed down the hill, struck a switch, went off on the wrong track, and was about to dash into another full car, when this donkey, now of honorable fame, heroically threw himself into the breach (unintentionally, perhaps) and by his kicking, prevented a bad smash. The Gazette adds: "The mule was not badly hurt, and those who ought to know say that a horse in the same position would have been killed at the first shock."

—"It it proper to say, 'I see the sun rising,' or 'I see the sun rise?" asks Balto. Sir, the proper thing is to get home before it rises.

—When the owner of a little house in Cleveland went to collect the rent, he found that the tenant had put it on wheels and moved it away.

—A young lady who is studying French lately wrote to her parents that she was "invited out to a 'dejuner' the day before, and was going to a 'fote champetre' the next day." The professor of the college was surprised to receive a dispatch from the "old man" a day or two after saying: "If you can't keep my girl away from these blarsted monageries and side-shows, I will come down and see what ails her."

THE CITY.

Bible reading in the chapel at Faith Home this (Monday) evening at 7:30; friends invited.

Mr. Knapp's closing lecture in the course on Architecture and Sculpture will be given this evening, in the Unitarian vestry, on Court street.

The very handsome presents to be distributed at the Knights of Pythias Fair attract much attention as they are displayed in the window of Rundlet's drug store.

Among the estimates of appropriations recommended by the War Department is an item of $60,000 for the batteries at the entrance to this harbor. For the improvement of the Cocheco river, an appropriation of $11,000 is recommended.

A beautiful sight was presented, Saturday evening, by a brilliant planet close to the young moon,—almost between its horns. We would tell what planet it was if we knew, but we don't; all we know is that it was beautiful to look at. We believe it was Venus, but if anybody has another name for it we shall not quarrel about the matter.

We are informed that the statement made by one of the city papers a few days ago, to the effect that the ship's writer of the Huron, who lost his life in the wreck of that ill-fated craft, was Mr. George Price, formerly snare drummer of Harlow's Marine Band, is incorrect, our informant having received a postal card stating that the George Price referred to is alive and well, and never was attached to the Huron.

A letter received in this city last week, from San Francisco, reports a serious accident as having recently happened to Gunner Thomas H. Fortune, U. S. N., of this city, now stationed at the Mare Island navy yard. He was running to catch the ferry boat, which was just starting from the yard for Vallejo, when he slipped and fell from the brow, having five ribs broken and being badly bruised. He was taken to the yard hospital, and at last accounts was doing well.

Nothing more has been heard of the cable steamer Ambassador, reported as laying off Newburyport bar all day Thursday, watching for a chance to mend the shore end of the Direct Cable at Rye beach. If there was any steamer there at all it was probably only a steam collier waiting for the tide, as there is nothing reported wrong with the cable; the Ambassador is probably thousands of miles away,—and if she were really on the coast to mend the cable she would not be likely to lay off Newburyport bar looking for it, when she could so easily make a safe anchorage in Portsmouth lower harbor, and be nearer her work, besides.

Major David Urch, of this city, delivered a lecture in South Eliot last week—his first appearance on the lecture platform. The Times' report says "his lecture was replete with information, showing deep thought and careful study of his theme. His gestures were graceful, easy and natural, his delivery clear, impressive and without mannerism, and his sentences crisp, well-rounded and convincing. He spoke for an hour and ten minutes, and not a person left the church or manifested the slightest weariness. He closed amid great applause, and was immediately surrounded by his friends who offered their congratulations on his success."

MR. KNAPP'S LECTURES.

On Saturday evening Rev. Mr. Knapp gave the third lecture in the course on Architecture and Art, the subject of this one being Sculpture. The audience, though representing the best culture of the city, was not nearly what it should have been in point of numbers, the absorbed attention paid to the lecturer being an involuntary testimony to the extremely interesting manner in which he treats a most interesting subject,—the sculpture of all known ages and peoples, from the rude and often hideous caricature of the barbarian to the wonderful productions of the Greek masters. The lecturer began with a few illustrations of Egyptian sculpture, among which was a rare and curious wooden statue nearly 6000 years old,—exhibiting a degree of life and imitation of nature very surprising at that early age, and in marked contrast to the rigid conventionalism shown in the productions of a later time. Then passing to the sculpture of Greece, its growth was traced from the early rude symbols, showing the gradual appearance of the signs of life and freedom, until in the time of Phidias art reached its culmination in the sculptures of the Parthenon. Following this, the grand age, came the so-called age of the beautiful, in which Praxiteles was the chief master. A large number of his works were shown, the stereopticon giving almost absolutely perfect reproductions of the originals.

This (Monday) evening the subject will be continued, with examples of the later sculptures of Greece, presenting some fifty or more illustrations of the most famous art treasures of the world, besides many rare and curious sculptures.

POLICE COURT.

Saturday, Dec. 8th; Batchelder, J.

Wm. Devine, for drunkenness, was sent to Brentwood long enough to board out $9.90.

Michael Boyle, for drunkenness, was fined $3, costs $6.90; he was able to produce the required sum, so he will not have to visit Pollard's temperance retreat on this occasion.

Horace L. Colcord, a young man charged with having hired a horse to go to a certain place, and then driven him a much longer distance, incorrectly reporting the distance driven on his return, had his case continued to Monday.

Henry S. Thompson, charged with breaking and entering the store of J. L. Parker, in Candia, on the 31st of July last, was bound over in the sum of $300 to appear to answer at the April term of the Supreme Court at Exeter.

THE WEATHER SIGNALS.

Mr. C. Dwight Rundlet having signified his readiness to gratuitously attend to the display of the storm signals from his store on Market square, a petition signed by many of our leading citizens has been sent to Hon. Frank Jones, our Representative in Congress, urging him to make an effort to have the proposed arrangement consummated at the War Department. The importance of this signal service to the fishermen that rendezvous here will, we trust, be appreciated, and the desired arrangement carried out.

THE VICINITY.

The new schoolhouse at South Seabrook is finished outside, and painted; the plastering of the upper room was finished last week, and the end of this week will see both rooms completed. The old schoolhouse which so long disgraced the district is nearly ready for occupancy as a grocery store, in its new location.

Two tramps stole a valuable young setter dog from the premises of Moses Mann, Esq., at Greenland, a few nights since, and shortly after had the cheek to apply at the town farm for lodgings. The keeper of the farm took the dog from them, though they protested with tears in their eyes that they had owned him for years, and valued him very highly.

Temperance Meeting at Raymond.

On Thursday evening, of last week, the town hall was well filled to listen to an address by Col. J. Horace Kent of Portsmouth. After the preliminary exercises, Rev. J. Fullonton read the following, prepared for the occasion, as a welcome to the speaker:

A thousand welcomes to the field,
We heroes need who will not yield;
The war is long, and fierce the fight
For God, for souls, for truth, for right.
The foes are numerous, they seem strong,
But what's the power induced by rum?
One man endowed by Heaven's might,
Will put ten thousand such to flight.
King Alcohol leads on his train
Of staggering, reeling, drunken men;
Apollyon yells to cause alarm,
But those for God will find no harm.
Young David fought with sling and stone,
And stretched Goliath on the plain;
When Israel's daughters joined in song,
High praises to our God belong.
We shall succeed, of this no doubt,
Satan's dark host will have a rout;
We shall succeed, God's word won't fail,
Truth mighty is, and will prevail.
Heaven sends us teachers of the truth,
The old to cheer, and guide the youth;
With gratitude for all thus sent,
We welcome now High Sheriff Kent.

The address was a calm, clear and forcible discussion of the woes of intemperance; and the remedy, total abstinence, urged in the most convincing manner. Others followed in short speeches, some of whom had been sufferers by intemperance. The Club has an organ in the hall. The singing was good and the whole exercises interesting. F.

Can Any one Tell.

Can any one tell why men who cannot pay small bills, can always find money to buy liquor, and treat when among their friends?

Can any one tell why young men who dodge their washerwomen, and are always behind with their landlords, can play billiards night and day, and are always ready at a game of cards?

Can any one tell how men live and support their families who have no income and do no work, while others who are industrious and constantly employed are half starved?

Can any one tell how it is that some mothers are so ready to sew for the distant heathen, when their children at home are ragged and dirty?

Can any one tell why four-fifths of young women prefer a brainless fop under a plug hat, with tight pants and short-tailed coat, to a man with some brains?

—When a New Haven man gets thirsty he walks until he meets a friend, to whom he says, "Let's go in and pair off," and they take their cloves plain.

—Rhetoric, in places, is a big thing. A writer recently went into a newspaper office and said, "I've got an article on Mahomet for some paper that spells it that way." He was immediately kicked down stairs, for he had gone into a Mohamet office. Then he climbed the stairs into a Mohammed office, and was let out on the fire escape gently, but positively. Next he struck a magazine where the proof-readers were partisans of the old school of Muhammed, and he went sadly away. One man, whom he met on the stairs of a religious but practical journal, informed him that Mehemet was the style there. An hour after he was seen to be let down the coal hole of a Mohammed establishment. Parents should always teach their children how to spell.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.
This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for the intended purpose."

Centaur
Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly sold of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

Honey
To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. Rose & Co., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest cures for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. Whatever White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as a honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S
STANDARD
REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness, Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy foreboding, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Dr. Pierce's
Pleasant
Purgative
Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.
The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They never remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.
As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair their virtues, for I have kept them by me for the space of two years, and they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. Daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

IT IS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predispositions will turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy action, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Sumpter Silenced.

It is pertinent for me, professionally, to remark that, had the Federal naval attack on Fort Sumpter of the 6th of April, 1863, been made at night, while the fleet could easily approach near enough to see the fort—a large, lofty object covering several acres—the monitors, which were relatively so small and low on the water, could not have been seen from the fort. It would have been impossible, therefore, for the latter to have returned with any accuracy the fire of the fleet, and this plan of attack could have been repeated every night until the walls of the fort should have crumbled under the enormous missiles which made holes two and a half feet deep in the walls and shattered the latter in a very alarming manner. I could not have then repaired during the day the damages of the night, and I am confident now, as I was then, that Fort Sumpter, if thus attacked, must have been disabled and silenced in a few days. Such a result at this time would have been necessarily followed by the evacuation of Morris and Sullivan's Islands, and, soon after, of Charleston itself, for I had not yet had time to complete and arm the system of works, including James Island and the inner harbor, which enabled us six months later to bid defiance to Admiral Dahlgren's powerful fleet and Gilmore's strong land forces.—Gen. Beauregard.

—A distressed mother writes to a newspaper for advice, which she gets in the following: "The only way to cure your son of staying out late nights is to break his legs, or get the girl he runs after to do your house-work."

—A boarding club at Wisconsin University, the members of which were about equally divided in politics, wagered their pie and cake for two weeks on the result of the recent State election. The democrats of that club have been observing a pastry Lent, while the republicans luxuriated on two pieces per day.

—"You have often," said the clergyman, "heard the brethren say 'Amen! amen!' while some one was praying. What do they mean?" If any knows let him hold up his hand." Up jumped a little fellow, so eager to answer as not to wait for recognition. "I know!" he called out. "It means hurry up and get through." There was an audible smile.

—"Whoa, Emma!" is the English slang at present. The other night, in Manchester, when Adelaide Neilson was about to take her poison as "Juliet," a gallery god unexpectedly shouted out to her, "Whoa, Emma!" and she had to whoa in the midst of her woe, for the audience roared with laughter. And a few nights ago, when Gilbert Grant of Emma mine celebrity, the friend of Schenck, happened to be in court giving evidence concerning some of his operations, a hollow voice from a man present, whose tattered garb seemed to indicate that he had reached hard pan, cried out metallically, "Whoa, Emma!"

Chronicle Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 7th.

A residence of only a few months here convinces the average visitor having the entree of "respectable" circles, of our sore need of a temperance revival—of a searching work that will reach down into the hundreds, perhaps thousands, of vile groggeries that infest the disreputable haunts of the "division," "murder bay," "hell's bottom," and others of equally euphonious designation, where filth, squalor, famine and drunkenness are the normal conditions of life, and up into the abodes of the aristocratic neighborhoods where the analogue of the whisker-guzzler of the first-named precint is found in the wine bibber of the latter, and where dissipation is restricted to the more genteel forms of vice and immorality. Between the two come the hotel-bars and the gilded saloons, with their thousands of patrons from the intermediate classes, clerks, tradesmen, poor professional men, well-to-do mechanics, lobbyists, small contractors, etc. From the testimony of those most familiar with life about the Capitol during sessions of Congress, the spectacle of drunken men reeling along the corridors of that noble structure and staggering through the cloak-rooms adjoining the halls of legislation is rapidly on the increase. Drunken or partially intoxicated members of Congress have been comparatively rare for the past fifteen years; but it is alleged on apparently good authority that the chambers at both ends of the Capitol have not infrequently been disgraced by the presence of men so far gone in their cups as to be maudlin and next door to helpless during the past two winters, and that the evil is steadily widening the circle of its victims. From very shame a movement has been inaugurated to enforce the prohibition against liquor selling on the premises, which have, until now, been a dead letter. The resolution unanimously passed by the House makes it a crime, punishable by fine and imprisonment, to sell or give away intoxicating liquors in the building; and we shall not lack opportunities to test the sincerity of members on this vote.

As stated in my last, that portion of the President's message relating to national finances was not relished by a majority of those, in and out of Congress, who supported the Bland and Ewing bills, although it is obvious that a portion of the Congressional delegation giving them a nominal support, secretly rejoice that the President has shown himself willing to assume a responsibility that they shrunk from taking, though convinced that their votes in favor of both measures and prompted by the popular sentiments of their districts demanding their enactment, were adverse to our best interests. But from the latest developments it must be admitted that their number is not large; and the joint opposition of the President and Mr. Sherman as indicated by their latest utterances here, have reacted as a stimulant upon the inflation leaders. Already there are indications of an organized attempt to force Mr. Hayes to accept silver remonetization as a condition precedent to voting him the annual appropriations; in other words the scheme to tack the silver bill to the appropriation bills has scores of advocates in the House, and the defeat of Morrill's motion in the Senate, to defer consideration of the silver bill until January 11th by the decisive vote of 40 to 18, is regarded as a test of the popularity of the measure in the upper House. Those hoping and believing three days ago that the opposition announced through the message and the Secretary's report would give both measures named their quietus, have become alarmed at the disposition manifested to resort to extreme measures on the part of their advocates.

Dr. Mary Walker has gained a victory after a long contest with the Treasury Department. It seems that in 1873 she was recommended for appointment in that Department. It is understood that she passed a creditable examination, was sworn into service, ordered to report for duty, did so report, was instructed in her duties and only failed to go to work from failure of the authorities to make out her commission. It is understood that she was told if she would discard her hermaphrodite dress and assume that suitable to her sex she could have her commission. She refused, but reported at the office from day to day for duty for an indefinite time; and Solicitor Rayner, basing his opinion on the above facts and allegations and many others contained in the papers, has adjudged her entitled to a year's salary—$900. His decision is generally approved. In this connection I may say that the women suffragists confidently count on the President's influence in their fight for the ballot from what he is believed to have conceded to Mrs. Spencer and Sargent in a recent interview held with him at the White House.

News and Notes.

Steamship City of Berlin passed Queenstown on Monday in tow of steamship City of New York, on her way to Liverpool. Her detention was owing to her having broken her shaft when two day's steaming from Queenstown.

The wholesale arrests of unlicensed liquor dealers, hundreds of whom were arraigned in the Police Court and released on bail, has caused great excitement in New York city. Of the 8000 bar-rooms in that city not more than 1000 were open Saturday.

The ambassador from Samoa, now at Washington, has made an appeal to the United States for a protectorate, and says that if no treaty is negotiated the result will be the same as in the case of Fiji a few years ago, namely, English annexation.

A cargo of sugar valued at $30,000, on the brig Morning Light, has been seized in New York by the government. It is claimed by treasury experts and chemists to be Demerara centrifugal sugar, and to be subject to forfeiture under the recent treasury order in regard to the importation of sugar artificially colored to escape the legitimate duties to the government. The Demerara sugar importers say that the coloring is a part of the process of manufacture. The duty on the Morning Light's cargo is $13,000.

The wife of Wm. H. Devlin, of Lowell, was found dead on Monday, having evidently been beaten to death. An infant was found dead in bed, having been strangled. It is believed both were murdered by Devlin.

A man named Spiegel, who formed one of a party of six attacked by the Indians a short time since, rode up to Meyer's Ranche, six miles from Crook City, Dakota, Wednesday, with an Indian corpse dragging at the end of a lariat, the other end of which was fastened to the pommel of his saddle. He reports that he engaged in a running fight with three Indians, two of whom he wounded, and the third accompanied him as above stated.

Six able-bodied tramps who slept at the police station in Quincy, Mass., a few nights ago, were offered in the morning by a granite contractor a good breakfast, and then work in the quarry for a month, with the additional promise that the best two should have work all winter. They all declined and continued their tramps.

Shortly after midnight, Saturday, Herbert Finn, of Lawrence, Mass., who had excited the anger and jealousy of Robert McElroy at a dance in the evening, was set upon by McElroy and his two brothers and beaten so his life is despaired of.

The inquiry concerning the loss of the Huron tends, thus far, to show that the navigator was misled as to the real position of the ship.

During its mother's temporary absence a little child of Thomas Bodger, of North Adams, Mass., climbed up and sat down on a red-hot stove; so that when the mother returned, it was actually roasted alive. The child still lives but is likely to die.

Patrick Ward, of New York, tried to kill his married daughter by placing in her coal supply thirty black canvas bags sewed up tight, resembling coal. Each bag contained a large quantity of gunpowder mixed with shot, gravel and nails. The woman was badly injured by the explosion in her kitchen stove, and her babe will probably die.

Congress.

There was no business of importance done in the House on Monday.

The Senate, by a vote of forty-nine to eight declared Eustis entitled to a seat as Senator from Louisiana. Mr. Eustis was then sworn in. The eight votes cast against Eustis were given by Messrs. Hamlin, Howe, Allison, Cameron of Wisconsin, McMillan, Morrell, Ingalls and Saunders.

New Hampshire Items.

The bull at the Merrimack county farm got on a rampage the other day, and attacked one of a pair of oxen. The other came to the rescue and the two beat the bull. Later the bull on going to the barn discovered the oxen tied up and attacked them again and was with difficulty driven away into the yard. Here he set upon a boar and a third time came off second best. His head was severely cut by the tusks of the boar.

The dwelling-house and barn of Joseph Welch of Franklin, with nearly all their contents, were totally consumed by fire Friday afternoon. The fire originated in the barn. Loss about $800; insured $700.

Edward Mooney, a lad fifteen years old, broke through the ice while skating on Badger pond at Belmont Saturday morning and was drowned.

Political.

Ex-Gov. Pinchback has addressed an open letter to Gov. Nicholls of Louisiana resigning his place as the United States Senator from that State.

The vital difficulty with the democratic party is that when it once gets into power it doesn't know how to conduct itself. Its new doorkeeper of the House has got into trouble almost as bad as Fitzhugh, who was "a bigger man than ole Grant." In the Thirty-Fifth Congress, a doorkeeper of the House was expelled for making five appointments in excess of the number authorized; but Polk, it is alleged, has made forty such. The eastern democrats have been forced to move an investigation, on the ground that he is making the office ridiculous.

The boundless capacity of the Solid South for absorbing the spoils has at last hit the northern democrats. By a late order the last employe of the Clerk of the House from a New England State has been removed, to give place to a clerk of the Confederate Congress. The New England democrats are so unreasonable as to complain about it. They should read the history of the former domination of the South, and learn obedience and submission to their ex-Confederate masters, or the republican doughfaces will get ahead of them.—Traveller.

The true theory of Stanley Matthews' relations with the Administration seems to be that he shall make a furious defence of its mistakes, and vote unflinchingly against all its wise measures.—Tribune.

Speaking of the murderers of her husband, Mrs. Chisolm says that they were all old residents, and what seemed most strange, all religions were represented. "There were," she says, "Catholics, Presbyterian Elders, and, most of all, I noticed two Methodist class-leaders that were very active all through the matter. One of these men was a great exhorter, and had often labored with us for the good of our souls. At the last camp meeting I attended, this man got so 'happy' he shouted at a great rate, and came up to Mr. Chisolm, and took him around the neck and begged him to go forward, and said, 'It is all you lack, Judge, to be a first-rate man—all you lack is religion.' And that man helped kill my husband."

The New York Times

FOR 1878.

A Political, Literary & General Newspaper

Devoted to Reform in Municipal, State and General Government.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

During the long and exciting Presidential campaign of 1876, and the anxious period of political uncertainty which succeeded it, THE NEW YORK TIMES held a very important share in determining the result of one of the momentous contests in American history. The course of THE TIMES during the whole of that eventful struggle has secured for it a large addition to the number of its supporters, and has placed beyond controversy its position as the foremost republican newspaper in the United States.

The course of THE TIMES will be guided in the future, as it has been in the past, by the conviction that the interest of the Republican Party are in all cases to be set above the interests of its leaders, and that the honor and welfare of the country are to be considered before either. Its attitude is that of independence within the Republican Party, for in that way can the interests of the party be most effectually served.

So long as any of the great principles with which the Party has been identified remain in dispute, THE TIMES will refuse to consider the work of Republicanism as ended. It will labor to maintain the highest standard of partisan obligation in the treatment of questions affecting the financial honor of the nation, the purification of the public service, and the gradual readjustment of the fiscal system to meet the changing conditions of trade and manufactures. It will steadily oppose all plans, no matter by whom urged, which tend to postpone the date of resumption beyond that fixed by law, to pay the national creditor on any other basis than that of gold, to preserve imp rt duties which clog the development of American industry, or to perpetuate in the public service the pernicious principle that "to the victors belong the spoils."

While carefully avoiding all that may tend to promote sectional animosity among our people, THE TIMES will urge, with the utmost decision, the national duty of protecting the freedmen and the Northern immigrants in the South in the possession of rights guaranteed them by the Constitution. It will do all in its power to promote the policy of peace and conciliation between North and South, but will not lose sight of the fact that Northern confidence and amnesty must find their return in the enforcement of even-handed justice and scrupulous regard for the letter and spirit of the law on the part of the South.

Its influence as a leading exponent of political opinion will be strengthened by all that is needful to enhance the value of THE TIMES as a daily record of news. The acknowledged excellence of its correspondence by mail and telegraph from all parts of the world will be fully maintained. THE TIMES has shown during the Russo-Turkish war how ample are its resources, and how well directed is its enterprise. Its voluminous foreign correspondence for the last year is admitted to have furnished some of the most valuable data available for the record of a highly-important epoch. The events in Europe and elsewhere during the coming year will be treated with the same fullness, fairness, and accuracy as have distinguished its treatment of those which now belong to the past.

In the sphere of literary and artistic criticism, of scientific, social, and general discussion, THE TIMES will address itself as heretofore, to the appreciation of the educated and intelligent classes of the American people. It will be lively without being sensational, aggressive without being coarse; at all times it will strive to be fearless and independent in the championship of the right. No theories will find place of the principles on which the sacredness of family ties and the existence of society alike repose will be promulgated in its columns.

THE TIMES rejects all advertisements of lotteries, of quacks and medical preachers, and all other agencies by which the insidious poison of vice is disseminated throughout society. It will be in the future, as in the past, a newspaper specially adapted for family reading.

THE WEEKLY TIMES, containing as it does selected editorials on topics of national and general interest from the columns of the daily issue, as well as a concise summary of political, social, and commercial news, is confident that it can recommend it to all classes of readers, is a paper admirably fitted to circulate in every portion of the United States. No Republican newspaper approaches it in circulation, and it will be the aim of its conductors to use every means, not only to maintain its w ll-earned supremacy, but to make its popularity still more decided.

THE CITY.

See advertisement of assignee's sale of real estate at noon to-day.

Mr. T. W. Fowler, agent for Ruger & Stone's beautiful "Bird's Eye View of Portsmouth," is now in the city, delivering the picture to subscribers.

The Direct Cable Company say that the steamer Ambassador is not now in their service. So the yarn about her laying off Newburyport bar waiting a chance to mend the cable was but a yarn, as we supposed.

The store No. 62 Market street, formerly occupied by Spalding & Parrott, is receiving a thorough overhauling and renovation. A handsome iron front has been put in, and the appearance of the building is very much improved.

It is said that Eastern Railroad certificates were in lively demand on Monday; a dollar and a quarter was the price paid for the loan of certificates for the trip to Boston, while borrowers who did not wish to pay anything were plenty.

The Times says that "at the conclusion of Rev. E. Owen's labor with the Pearl street church, on Sunday, a unanimous vote was taken, requesting him to settle with them as a pastor of the church. It is not known certainly whether he will or not."

Paymaster May of the United States Navy, who relieved Paymaster Charles F. Guild last week in the duty of Inspector of Provisions and Clothing at the Navy Yard, was appointed from Massachusetts in 1861. Mr. May has taken the house of John N. Handy, Esq., on State street, recently vacated by Paymaster Guild.

On Monday afternoon a young horse belonging to Mr. Jefferson Buchanan took fright and ran on Brown's Hill, south end, upsetting the cart to which he was attached, and laid on his back some little time, his feet in the meantime cutting graceful figures in the air. He was released from the cart, and then he and Jefferson had an obstinate battle; the animal not willing to be again harnessed to the cart. Jefferson, by the strategem of throwing his coat over the colt's head, and with the assistance of eleven able-bodied boys, won the fight. It was fun for the youths, but not for Jeff.

THE K. OF P. FAIR.

If the Knights of Pythias do not make their coming Fair a success, it will not be for lack of hard work and judicious management on the part of their executive committee, who are not only arranging for a "big thing," but are taking every useful means of letting the public know what they are doing and propose to do. First and foremost, they are liberally using printer's ink—an outlay which always returns a grand percentage of profit to every one who has anything worth advertising—setting forth the attractions which will be presented at the Fair; then they have procured a large number of really beautiful and useful gifts to be distributed among the holders of season tickets, and having placed a few of them where they can be easily seen by the public—in the window of Mr. C. Dwight Rundlet's drug store—they further call the people's attention to them through the medium of the papers; they have limited the number of season tickets (which are placed at the low price of fifty cents each) to 1000, fixed the price of evening tickets at a figure to suit the times, and put them on sale at a number of places. For further information of what they have done or intend to do, see the advertisement in another column.

HARBOR AND BRIDGE.

At the meeting of the Board of Trade, last week, it was mentioned that two subjects would come up for consideration at the next meeting, viz: the securing of action by Congress looking to the removal from this harbor of certain dangerous obstructions to navigation, and the Portsmouth bridge question.

The subject of harbor improvement has been repeatedly referred to in these columns, and a communication on the subject will be found in another place; the Board of Trade will probably discuss—not the need of something being done in the premises, which is admitted, but the best means of getting Congress to take the first steps.

The "Portsmouth bridge question" refers to the rates of toll, which it is claimed by some are unreasonably high; also, that it is the duty of the judges of the Supreme Court to revise the tariff of tolls, according to the following joint resolution of the Legislature, passed at the late session:

"Whereas, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nineteen, Edward Cutts, Jeremiah Mason, John Langdon, Nathaniel A. Haven, James Sheafe, John F. Parrott, Thomas Haven, William Rice, Henry Ladd, and others, were incorporated by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire in General Court convened, under the name of the Proprietors of Portsmouth Bridge, and whereas, by the fifth section of the act of incorporation aforesaid it was further enacted that when said Portsmouth Bridge was made passable for travellers the said proprietors should exhibit to the justices of the superior court of judicature an account of the sums expended for the same, upon the exhibition of which the said justices of the superior court were authorized and required to establish the rates of toll to be received by said proprietors for the use of said bridge, which rates of toll the said justices might alter at such times as they may deem expedient, and by the sixth section of said act of incorporation said proprietors were authorized to demand and receive from each and every person who should pass over the bridge above named such toll as should be established by said justices of the superior court of judicature; and whereas, the said proprietors have negligently omitted to exhibit said account, and in violation of said act of incorporation have themselves, without legal authority, established excessive and unreasonable rates of toll to be received by said proprietors, therefore,

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

That the justices of the supreme court are hereby instructed to revise the rates of toll now collected by said proprietors of Portsmouth Bridge, and to establish the same at reasonable rates.

[Approved July 14, 1877.]"

It is stated that a petition to the Board of Mayor and Aldermen is in circulation, requesting them to appoint some person to appear before the Supreme Court judges in the interests of the city, and urge action on the foregoing resolution. Whether it is the Board of Trade that has stirred up the petitioners, or the action of the petitioners that has stirred up the Board of Trade to move in the matter, we cannot say; either way, the meetings of the Board are likely to be of interest if not of value, for some time to come, both to the men who own the bridge and those who regularly pass over it.

NO CORRECTION.

We received on Saturday the following correspondence from Rye, in reference to a letter from "Nat," published in the CHRONICLE of Friday:

RYE, Dec. 7th.

Mr. Editor: In my letter printed in today's CHRONICLE there is a mistake, which, if the letter appears in the GAZETTE, I would be obliged if you would correct. Instead of the teacher of the South school being Mr. G. H. Jenness, it is Miss Elzada M. Goss, who is an experienced teacher and a "townswoman," instead of a "townsman."

Yours truly, NAT.

RYE BEACH, Dec. 7th.

Mr. Editor: Your paper beats the world as a disseminator of news. Here I am at home quietly shovelling gravel, building wall and digging ditches—or, at least, I think I am; but the CHRONICLE of this morning locates me as teacher of the South school—a fact that had escaped my notice until I saw it in print. I think the excellent teacher at the "South" will be puzzled to know when I assumed command of that young-idea-shooting establishment, but if you say I have done so I suppose the burden of (dis) proof rests upon me. In the meantime continue to illumine our pathway with the latest news.

Yours, G. H. J.

We will tell a little story, for the especial benefit of "G. H. J." In one of the numerous desperate fights between British and French war ships, during Nelson's time, the carnage on board a British ship was terrible and the wounded were borne to the cockpit and the dead thrown overboard as fast as they fell, to keep the gun-decks clear for fighting. A quarter-gunner, hit by a huge splinter and knocked half-way across the ship, was picked up by a boatswain's mate and another man and taken below, where the surgeon, glancing at the senseless form, remarked "He's dead—overboard," and the unlucky fellow was taken to the gun-deck again to be thrown out through a port-hole. Reviving from his swoon he anxiously asked the boatswain's mate, "What are you going to do with me?" "Pitch you overboard," was the answer. "But I'm not dead," said the poor sailor eagerly. "Why, you impudent rascal," retorted the boatswain's mate, "do you think you know better'n the doctor?" and out through the porthole went the unlucky quarter-gunner.

If "Buggins" will carefully search out the moral of the foregoing true story, and then indulge in a brief season of prayerful self-examination, he will fully understand why we positively refuse to make the correction asked. It is possible that he is not engaged in teaching school—an occupation for which he is eminently well fitted by his interest in educational affairs, his varied information and his ability to impart the same, and his even temper—but if so he ought to be ashamed of himself. It is possible he may be engaged in the festive occupation of shovelling gravel—which is hard work, for which he is eminently unfitted and which he mortally hates to do—but we don't believe it. Anyway, as an old newspaper correspondent he knows that the first duty of such an individual is to get the news,—and if the news and the facts do not agree, so much the worse for the facts.

[Communicated.]

THE HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.

I am pleased to notice that the Board of Trade are to discuss the very important subject of harbor improvements, as there can be no doubt of the project being carried to a successful issue if the citizens will but take hold of it, as it will cost much less to make our river more safely navigable than has been expended on many places having little if any ocean trade. There is not only a very swift current in our river, but it sets directly upon the various points and ledges.

From Portsmouth bridge the ebb tide sweeps toward Church-hill point; from there directly to the ledges in the middle of the river, and thence to the eastern point of the narrows. Below the narrows, meeting a strong eddy, it runs in a narrow space to Full-and-be-damned point, and thence to Clark's island in such fashion as to make it very difficult for a vessel going down with a light southerly wind to get by Fernald's head without striking, as a number of vessels have done, others having just saved themselves by dropping their anchors.

In working up the river with a head wind the point with the improper name is a dangerous place. Sometimes a vessel, mis-staying, will drift down toward Newcastle bridge; and even when she comes around all right there is a risk of her being swept on the far-jutting point. After she passes the narrows the tide sets her toward Peirce's island, and from there directly upon the beacon ledges, which it is difficult for her to clear without a good working breeze. I have referred only to the general set of the tide; but it often changes its direction in an instant, and with the best calculation a vessel will sometimes find the ledges in her way. Badger's island point is another dangerous place; very often, to make the tacks come out right to make a good landing, it is necessary for a vessel to stand well over to the eastern shore, with the result that if she happens to lose her wind and thereby become unmanagable she will most likely go on the ledge. Ham's ledge has been so specially noticed that I need not speak of it now; but there is still another that is very much in the way indeed, and that is the one between the head of Rollins' (or Commercial) wharf and Pier wharf, which is directly in the way of the fishing vessels that rendezvous at those wharves in the winter.

I might call attention to the large number of vessels that have been ashore on the places named, but as people generally are acquainted with these facts it is not necessary; I explain the set of the tides, for the reason that this subject may not be so well understood. And now that the ball seems to be fairly set in motion, I hope it will be kept moving until some good and permanent result has been attained. HAND-LEAD.

THE VICINITY.

Mr. Lewis Knowles, of Seabrook, picked up on the beach after a recent storm, a sturgeon eight feet and a half long.

Mr. Albin D. Tuttle, a young man employed at the Cape Neddick House, in Cape Neddick, Me., undoubtedly "knows beans," for he recently got two quarts of beans from a store and spent two hours and five minutes in counting them; he found the quart of gray beans to number 1650, while the quart of pea beans numbered 1905.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Joy, of Kittery Foreside, were surprised on Thursday evening of last week, on returning home from the Rebecca Lodge, to find their house in possession of about forty of their friends, and the tables loaded for a feast. The surprise was complete, not a hint of the proposed irruption having reached the victims. After the supper was despatched fun and frolic were in order, and "forfeits," blind-man's-buff, Copenhagen and such like games brought midnight long before it was desired, when the pleasant assembly dissolved.

THE

New-York Tribune

FOR 1878.

THE TRIBUNE has long enjoyed the distinction of the largest circulation among the best people. During the year 1876 it will spend more labor and money than ever before to maintain that preeminence. It secured, and means to retain it, by becoming the medium of the best thought and the voice of the best consciences of its time, by keeping abreast of the highest progress, investing the broad discussion, bearing all sides, appealing always to the best intelligence and the purest morality, and refusing to cater to the tastes of the vile or the prejudices of the ignorant. The continued popularity, approval, and the constantly widening political influence it enjoys, are the best proofs that it is still faithful to those ends for which it was founded.

THE TRIBUNE earnestly strove for the election of President Tilden, and will now do its powerful support to the high purposes of his Administration, doubting the wisdom of methods sometimes taken by his zealous friends, and criticising with entire freedom his occasional mistakes, if not errors; it is the duty of the hour to hold firmly and steadfastly the party which alone now sustains him. It underscores the day of danger to the negro has passed, and that of danger to the Union from the Democratic party of the South (at least in full control of every Rebel and Border State) seen its chance to get at the National Treasury, and get back what it lost by the war. Only 47 Northern votes are needed. If Tammany Hall could furnish New York, three Indiana, or Connecticut and New Jersey, would suffice. The danger is upon us: Are we alert to the call, party of Freedom, still the party of the Churches and the School-House, in the close contest, to do done can keep the Solid South from grasping the National Government in 1880. It alone can save us, even now, from the threatened Democratic abandonment of reconstruction and renewed debasement of the currency, which would blockade by and and wickedly place the entire net of business, and treble the country's burdens. In behalf of the old party, therefore, THE TRIBUNE appeals the old appeal to the National conscience, the National honor, and the enlightened self-interest of the Tax-Payers.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE

Combines many of the merits of both the Daily and Weekly issues, and is, in some respects, the best, as well as the cheapest paper sent out of THE TRIBUNE office. It contains all the literary, agricultural, and domestic excellences of all the special articles prepared for THE WEEKLY. It has besides nearly all the news of THE DAILY, and most of its editorials, printed entirely local in their application. It has been enlarged, and changed to the new sixteen-page form as described below, and is now a class of a long been asked by many of its most intelligent patrons.

THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

This has been for a third of a century the favorite paper for our educated country population. A competent critic has said of it: "THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE has done more for the settlement and prosperity of the Great West, and has made more good farmers and good citizens than any other single influence that ever existed in this country." During the ensuing year it means not only to preserve its old merits, but to take a long stride ahead. By the introduction of 30,000 worth of new machinery, and by an enlargement of its size (making it the largest single sheet issued by any newspaper in the country), it is enabled to give subscribers what they have so long asked—their favorite paper in a shape easier to read and convenient for binding. Each issue consists of sixteen pages, of the form and general appearance of Harper's Weekly, but with pages considerable larger, and with unusually large and clear type. All the old and standard features are carefully preserved, while the new form and additional size enable us to offer the following among many

NOVEL and SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS:

I. A graphic series of articles on Domestic Life and Habits Abroad, by BAYARD TAYLOR.

II. A New Jeremiad on Current Topics from the Christian Minister's Point of View, by the Rev. JOHN HALL, D. D.

III. Occasional contributions on Political Problems and Prospects, by GEN. HAMILTON.

IV. A Northern Farmer on Southern Agriculture, by SOLON ROBINSON.

V. Life and Sights in New-York, by Veterans of the City Staff.

These articles will not be mere reproductions from the Daily paper. They will be prepared expressly for THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE, and will first see the light in its columns.

FOR FARMERS.

The Agricultural Department of THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE has always been recognized as the ideal compeer with that of any rival. More good work and more money are now spent upon it than ever before. Arrangements are completed to fill our Professor JAMES LAW, the country's foremost veterinary authority; Professor L. L. ALLYN, unequaled as a practical farmer on the best of dairying; Professor G. C. CALDWELL, of National reputation as an agricultural chemist; Professor A. S. FITCH, the well-known entomologist; Mr. JOSIAH HOOPER, the horticultural authority, and other agricultural specialists of the highest rank.

NO RIVALS TO COMPARE IT WITH.

THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE is now utterly unlike any other weekly newspaper issued from the office of a daily in New York, or in the country—larger, in different and better form, in better type, and filled with matter prepared expressly for its readers—not with the stale news dumped in from the Daily. It can safely challenge comparison with the three and four dollar weeklies, like Harper's, and the great religious and literary journals, while its pages are larger than theirs, and its price, however, remains fixed at such low rates as to defy competition, and the extraordinary premium surpass anything offered in its own history.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE.

Postage Free in the United States.

DAILY TRIBUNE, 1 year	$10 00
SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE, 1 year	5 00

Any number of copies above 20 at the same rate. Additions to clubs may be made at any time. Remit by P. O. order, or in registered letter.

UNEXAMPLED PREMIUM.

WEBSTER'S $12 UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY FREE.

THE TRIBUNE makes to its old subscribers an extraordinary offer. It will give them THE WEEKLY for five years, and a copy of the latest of the great standard Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, in a leather binding, 1,300 quarto pages, with 3,000 engravings, both for $10—being two dollars less than the cost of the Dictionary alone at any book-store! If the old subscriber prefers, he may pay for THE WEEKLY only two years for himself, by sending three new subscribers for one year each. In either case the remittance of $10 secures the Dictionary in addition for THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE as well as the twelve-dollar Dictionary.

Any old subscriber who is now receiving THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE can avail himself of the same offer by sending the regular price of that issue for five years' subscription, $25, in the same manner.

Thus, any subscriber to either edition, renewing his subscription for five years at the regular rate in single subscriptions (or renewing for only two years, and getting three new subscribers), gets five years of his favorite paper for nothing, and the great Dictionary for the cost of two years' regular price; or he gets his paper at the regular price, and the great Dictionary for nothing—which may be phrased as one thinks best.

PREMIUMS TO FRIENDS GETTING UP CLUBS FOR 1878.

FOR A CLUB OF—

5 Weeklies—Any five TRIBUNE Novels.

10 Weeklies—An extra copy of the Weekly, or a copy of the Greeley Memorial Volume, in cloth, or any eight of THE TRIBUNE Novels.

20 Weeklies—THE SEMI-WEEKLY; or one extra Weekly, and either Mr. Greeley's "Political Economy," or "What I know about Farming," $1 50 each at retail.

30 Weeklies—THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE, and any eight of THE TRIBUNE Novels; or Mr. Greeley's "Political Economy" or "What I know about Farming," in sheep $2.50 at retail, and the same Novels.

50 Weeklies—THE DAILY TRIBUNE one year and either of the above-mentioned books, or the series of TRIBUNE Novels.

(One Semi-Weekly will count as two Weeklies in the above. Double numbers of THE TRIBUNE Novels count as two.)

These premiums are better than THE TRIBUNE ever offered before, and are believed to be better and more attractive than any that can be offered by any other responsible establishment.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

Centaur Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Chilblains, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Sparin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.
J. B. ROSE & CO., 46 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey
To the taste but death to Grubs and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is medicinally adapted to Teething and Irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all heads, lions, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human frame the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure sour stomach, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same law apply to the medical profession of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's 3 standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers on Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its tonic properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness; Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its tonic properties add to its equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy foreboding, acrid stomach, and sometimes costive, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

P.P.P.P.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.
The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Medium in Purgative Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.
As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Hard Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Agents do not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved and adapted for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cared the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has done to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were totally gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I don't know what I should have done if it had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I used SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 15, 1876.

AUNT HEPSY'S DOWNFALL.

In the little village of Anywhere, Aunt Hepsy Wiggins was an acknowledged and a shining light in her own particular sphere. She led often and long and loud in prayer at the weekly meetings. Almost every choice bit of scandal owed its start to her indefatigable energy in that special department. In fact she felt herself aggrieved that any one should attempt to rival her in that social duty, and generally distanced all her competitors. She was a sort of nurse in general—doctored all the children with "yarbs," showed all young married women how to make soft soap, and when they had "bad luck," and the soap did not come, made the dwellers in the house sit cross-legged until the "luck" turned. Being so important an individual, Aunt Hepsy, of course, was always busy. One bright, sunshiny afternoon, as she was speeding past Squire Pepper's office, she was about to pass on, when he stopped her with—

"What's the hurry, Aunt Hepsy, on this hot afternoon?"

"I declare, squire, but you take a start out of me!" Aunt Hepsy stopped short.

"Where are you going? On some good work, I'll warrant!" said the squire, who well knew that Aunt Hepsy's works were seldom good.

"Well, I was jist on my way to Deacon Smullet's; his wife's down with the rheumatism; doctor says she's goin' to have a hard time to pull through."

"Is she so bad as that?" said the squire, who knowing Aunt Hepsy's power of exaggeration, was not nearly so much alarmed as he seemed. "It would be a great loss to the deacon if his wife should be called away, and I think it is kind of you to take so much care of her." Hepsy had been giving a graphic account of her activity in taking care of Sister Smullet. "But if anything should happen, you know, Aunt Hepsy, the deacon would need another helpmate; and who knows what may come to pass?"

"Pshaw! now, squire, how can you talk so! I declare, I oughtn't to listen to you!" looking virtuously indignant.

"But now, squire, she continued, "I often think if you would only leave off your worldly ways, and be converted to the Lord, and be a regular church member, what a power of good you might do! You might be a power in church and State," warming with her subject.

"Oh, I don't know," said the squire. "God loves a cheerful heart, and I believe I am about as good as some of your church members. You remember when I went to Boston last fall?"

"Yes, and I mind who went with you—Susie Putters, and your wife, and—"

"Well, never mind who went with me. In fact, Aunt Hepsy, I don't know what makes me say this to you, but I hope you'll forget that I ever said anything to you about it. I would not for the world have what I was about to say be known."

"Now, Squire Peppers, you've knowed me all your life, and if there's anything on your mind you may jist tell me, and I'll take my davy I won't tell no mortal cretur." the

"Will you take a Bible oath," said squire, solemnly, "that you will never breathe a word of what I tell you, nor get me into any trouble any way?"

"I will," said Hepsy, with grim determination.

They entered the office, the oath was duly administered, and the squire said, in an impressive whisper:

"Well, on my way to Boston, I kissed one of the likeliest of your lady church members."

Aunt Hepsy's eyes dilated with horror; for some minutes she was speechless; then she said, wrathfully:

"The trollop! I didn't like so many curls about her head when she made her profession."

"Mind," cautioned the squire, "I mentioned no names."

"No, squire, and for gracious sakes don't! If that was known generally, the congregation would be scattered like sheep without a shepherd. Oh, dear! the wickedness and deceit of this world is jist disheartenin'! To be sure, I seen through her—I never liked her. But, as you say, squire, we'll mention no names, and we need fear no laws. How she ever had the face to show herself!"

Aunt Hepsy leaned back in the chair into which she had sunk, and fanned herself with her bonnet; and after again warning the squire to be guarded in his speech, she departed, when Squire Pepper, leaning back in his chair, gave forth peal after peal of laughter, until the tears stood in his eyes.

In about ten days or two weeks afterward, the squire received a note from Parson Goodwin, requesting his presence at a church meeting, and telling him it might be as well not to mention it to Mrs. Pepper. The squire took the hint, and telling his wife there was a church meeting that afternoon at three o'clock—to be ready and he'd call for her—he prepared to attend. When the worthy couple arrived at the church, they found almost the whole congregation assembled, besides many outsiders. Aunt Hepsy was there, looking triumphantly at Susy Putters, who looked as if she had been crying for a week. Parson Goodwin, after a few scathing words upon the evils of slander, hoped that Squire Pepper could explain the meaning of some remarks he had made to Aunt Hepsy reflecting upon the character of a young lady belonging to the church. Squire Pepper replied that anything he had told Aunt Hepsy had been under the seal of a Bible oath. Aunt Hepsy was called upon to answer the charge of breaking a Bible oath. She, in turn, said that she had sworn Roger Toothaker's sister, who in her turn had sworn Deacon Tuttle's wife, and she had sworn Dr. Adderly's wife, and so it had gone round the congregation, and at length round the village. Mrs. Pepper looked from the squire to Susy in perplexity, and the eyes of the whole audience were upon the squire as he rose and said:

"I told Aunt Hepsy that on my way to Boston I kissed a lady whom I considered one of the likeliest of your church members, inasmuch as she neither hears nor retails slander—the member I referred to being my own lawful wife."

The squire, as usual, burst into a hearty laugh, in which he was joined by Mrs. Pepper, Susy Putters, and indeed, the whole audience. Aunt Hepsy drew her head under her bonnet as a turtle draws its head into its shell, and marched into a back pew with much the air of a sheep-thief dog; and, the oddest of all, every one was ready to declare that they "never believed one word of it, and wondered why people would tell such stories."

Parson Goodwin, however, was heard to declare afterward that Squire Pepper had given a greater death blow to scandal in the village of Anywhere, than all the preaching of the parson had ever been able to do.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1877.

BOSTON CITY ELECTION.

[By Western Union Telegraph.]

BOSTON, Dec. 11, 6:35 P. M.

Henry L. Pierce, citizens' candidate, is elected Mayor by 2000 majority, in the largest vote ever thrown.

The Eastern War.

A despatch from Bucharest, Monday, says: "After a severe engagement yesterday before Plevna, Osman Pasha, who was wounded, surrendered unconditionally. The Turks in Plevna were dying of hunger and cold. There is great joy here. Bucharest is covered with flags." Another despatch says: "Osman Pasha attempted to break through in the direction of Widdin. He was attacked in front and rear and compelled to lay down his arms after a glorious struggle, in which he was seriously wounded. All with one voice praise his conduct."

A despatch from Bogot, Monday night, says the sortie was made at 7:30 that morning, the fighting lasting four hours; the Turks lost 10,000 killed and wounded, and 40,000 prisoners, with 400 guns.

It is feared Osman Pasha's wounds are fatal; after the surrender the Czar placed his carriage and escort at Osman's disposal.

Russian securities took an upward jump in London on receipt of the news.

News and Notes.

William H. Devlin, of Lowell, whose wife and child were found dead in his house on Monday, was arrested at Bellows Falls, Vt., on Monday evening, and confessed the double murder. He killed his wife Saturday night by jumping on her, and smothered the infant on Sunday. He is said to be a savage brute, drunk or sober, so the sentimental criminal-worshippers of Massachusetts will have another excellent chance to gush.

It has been allowed to pass unquestioned that what caused the loss of the Huron was that she sailed on Friday, and it is hard to have to doubt now so very frequent a cause of disaster. Still it seems necessary. It is demonstrable from official record that in the past ten years the country has lost the Huron, Idaho, Saginaw and Saranac, each of which was named after an Indian tribe. From this it is too sadly evident that the North American Indian is at the root of our naval troubles, and to him the superstitious must hereafter turn their attention. The new theory and the old can only be reconciled on the supposition that the original Friday was an American Indian.—Hartford Courant.

Master Conway, who, to save himself, threw away his clothes in order to swim ashore from the wreck of the Huron, and who has been unable by reason of lack of money to buy a new uniform, has been reprimanded by an officer of the Naval Court, now investigating the loss of the Huron, for appearing before that dignified body without his regular uniform.

A flustrated citizen of New Bedford deposited a $2 bill in the ballot-box election day.

Robins have been singing at Newburyport for a few mornings as blithely as if it were Spring time.

The old copper cent of our fathers, it is decided at Washington, is not a legal tendor. Its monetization ought to be agitated by the silver men. Why not pay the national debt with it?—New York Herald.

"Answer a fool according to his folly." But, after all, the old copper cent of our fathers is honest money as far as it goes. It is not adulterated as is the silver coin now minted and palmed off upon the public as money.—National Republican.

Schooner Joshua Grindle, from St. Jago, which arrived at New York on the 8th inst., reports that the captain, W. A. Freethy, and Lincoln Morrill are the only persons remaining of the original crew, the others having died of yellow fever. The mate, G. G. Gapper, and Maurice Olman, seaman, died at St. Jago, and were buried there. November 13th, four days from port, William Twergg, seaman, died; on the 14th the steward, A. P. Carter, and on the 15th Augustus Twergg, who were buried at sea. On the 17th the schooner was spoken by brig Romance, Captain Craig, from Navasso for Baltimore, who gave them four negro sailors to get her into port.

Hon. Elihu Burritt of New Britian, Conn., had a severe hemorrhage of the lungs on Friday, and is considered by his physicians to be in a very critical condition. He has been in feeble health for some months, and at his age, 67 years, it is hardly likely that he will again be restored to full health, after an attack so severe.

Political.

From the time the democratic Senators from the South marched out in 1861, in pursuance of the democratic plan to destroy the Union that slavery might continue to reign supreme, the Senate was never complete until Monday, when Eustis of Louisiana was seated. It seems odd that the first full Congress after the inauguration of the democratic rebellion should find the men who started that rebellion again dominant in National affairs, and the men who saved the Union crowded to the rear as traitors.

A despatch from Standford, Ky., says serious trouble is expected at any moment in Lincoln county over the capture there, last week, of several outlaws. Kentucky, being the banner democratic State, does not propose to allow any crime to be punished except the voting of the republican ticket.

The new Senator, M. C. Butler, of South Carolina, is said to be a nephew of General Pierce M. Butler, who fell at Cherubusco, and a nephew, through his mother, of Commodore Perry; he is also a relative, and apparently a worthy one, of Preston S. Brooks, the ruffian who made the cowardly and brutal assault on Senator Sumner.

Official returns from all but two counties in Mississippi give J. M. Stone, democrat, for Governor, 96,454 votes, and 1168 scattering votes against him. This shows that Gov. Stone knew what he was talking about when he said "it wouldn't do to stir up the matter" of the Chisolm murders by attempting to bring to justice the prominent democrats who committed the murders.

New Hampshire Items.

The arrangement of trial terms of the Supreme Court for the Spring circuit is as follows: Manchester, Jan. 1, Allen, J.; Exeter, Jan. 15, Bingham, J.; Newport, Jan. 22, Clark, J.; Colebrook, Feb. 5, Doe, C. J.; Dover, Feb. 12, Smith, J.; Haverhill, March 26, Stanley, J.; Laconia, March 26, Bingham, J.; Concord, April 2, Foster, J.; Keene, April 2, Doe, C. J.; Exeter, April 9, Smith, J.; Ossipee, April 16, Stanley, J.; Lancaster, April 2, Clark, J.; Plymouth, May 7, Foster, J.; Amherst, May 7, Allen, J.

Edward L. Jordan, of Dover, absconded last Saturday afternoon, selling his personal property, all of which was mortgaged, and raising $1700 on his wife's property; she signing the deed with the idea that it was a building contract.

Rev. George F. Pentecost of Boston has closed his revival meetings at Manchester, but his success has been so remarkable that an effort is being made to induce him to remain another week.

Emery J. Randall, paymaster of the Great Falls Manufacturing Company, and his family, narrowly escaped death by suffocation by coal gas from a furnace Sunday night. All have been prostrated in consequence, but they will recover. Mr. Randall was awakened about four A. M., by his child falling from the bed. With great exertion he staggered to a window, secured fresh air and saved their lives.

Mrs. Charles A. Bennett, who was shot by a tramp, informs the correspondent of the News-Letter, that several weeks ago a tramp called at her house and asked for food. She offered him some cake and pie, or something of that sort, which he refused, and called for cold meat. She told him that she had none for him, when he pushed her aside from the door, entered the house and opened a cupboard door, where he found some meat. He informed her with an oath that she had plenty of meat, and that he should help himself, whereupon she drew a revolver from a drawer in the kitchen, and drove him out doors and away from the house. The supposition is that the tramp who shot her was the same chap.

Harry Mainjoy, a native African, died in Exeter, on the 28th ult., in the 81st year of his age. He was stolen from his home in Africa by slave hunters, when ten years of age, while at play with other boys near the hut of his parents, and hurried to Senegal, where he was bought by Capt. Emery, a native and resident of Exeter, for the sum of $25. Capt. Emery brought him to Exeter, where he was sent to school and learned to read and write, and forgot his native tongue. He has always been a sober, industrious, useful man, and brought up respectably a family of children, who survive him. He was probably the only native-born African in New Hampshire, and possibly the only one in New England.

Mrs. Sarah Woods, a widow, aged 98 years, two months, died suddenly at Belford on Friday. She was midwife at the birth of Horace Greeley, and was visited by a large number of tourists during the Greeley campaign.

Amending the Constitution.

An old subscriber in Maine writes, under date of Nov. 24th, to ask us—

What was the vote in New Hampshire last year on the religious test question?

Did the legislature take any vote in the matter?

Can the Constitution of New Hampshire be changed in that respect or any other without a direct vote of the people?

Was a direct vote taken on the religious test question one year ago last June?

The Constitution of New Hampshire provides that every seventh year there shall be inserted in the warrants for town meetings a clause "to take the sense of the qualified voters on the subject of a revision of the Constitution." After such vote has been taken, if a majority of the qualified voters voting on the question decide that such revision is necessary, "it shall be the duty of the General Court to call a convention for that purpose;" but the amendments proposed by the convention have still to be approved by two-thirds of the popular vote, before they are finally adopted, the General Court being then "fully authorized and directed to fix the time when the alterations and amendments shall take effect."

The "sense of the qualified voters" was taken in March, 1876, on the question of calling a Convention to propose amendments to the Constitution, the vote standing 28,840 for it, and 10,726 against it—majority in favor, 18,114.

The legislature of that year, as directed by the Constitution, provided for the calling of the Convention, which met Dec. 16, 1876, at Concord, and proposed thirteen amendments to be voted on by the people, the first amendment being to strike the word "Protestant" from the Bill of Rights, and the seventh to "abolish the religious test as a qualification for office."

The proposed amendments were submitted to the popular vote in March, 1877; the first amendment was rejected by a vote of 27,665 yeas to 15,907 nays—not two-thirds voting to adopt it; but the seventh (abolishing the religious test) was adopted by a vote of 28,475 yeas to 14,231 nays—four votes more than the requisite two-thirds.

The legislature of 1877 in July passed an act that the amendment abolishing the religious test should take effect on the first of August following, and on that day the amending of the Constitution was completed, so far as the abolition of the religious test was concerned.

Southern Pacification.

Editor Chronicle: If the South is pacificated, and everything there is in so lovely a condition as is represented in the President's annual message, I do not understand how it is that the colored republicans are threatened with the displeasure of the "solid South," by the Charleston News and Courier, if they support the independent ticket, (which is composed of colored republicans and independent white democrats,) for the reason that it may "defeat the democratic ticket." By a right given to them in the constitution, they are at liberty to vote for whom they please, without any but themselves deciding who it shall be for whom they vote. If such is the pacification over which the President is so happy, we could have had it at any time from the commencement to the final caving in of the rebellion. It reminds me of the "old cove" of whom Punch discoursed in rhyme during the war, who, while "throwing sticks and stones" himself, "only wanted to be let alone." Such "pacification" undoubtedly suits the "old cove" to whom Punch referred who got up the infamous rebellion, but it does not suit the "other old cove" who opposed it and put it down at such a cost of blood and treasure, or the kindred of those who so nobly gave their lives for their country. —Gen. Grant has not yet mastered the vernacular sufficiently to hold a polite conversation in French, but he smokes fluently in that language.

—A Boston medium promised one evening last week to show a visitor the spirit of his little girl who had recently died. The gas was turned down, and sure enough, the spirit appeared, resembling in stature at least his little girl. In the excess of his joy he seized her, in his arms. Just then a companion turned up the gas, and he found himself embracing a plump specimen of young womanhood, weighing about 160 pounds, who had walked in on her knees.

The New York Times

FOR 1878.

A Political, Literary & General Newspaper

Devoted to Reform in Municipal, State and General Government.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

During the long and exciting Presidential campaign of 1876, and the months succeeding of unexampled uncertainty which succeeded it, THE NEW YORK TIMES had a very important share in determining the result of one of the most momentous contests in American history. The course of THE TIMES during the whole of that eventful struggle has secured for it a large addition to the number of its supporters, and has placed beyond controversy its position as the foremost republican newspaper in the United States.

The course of THE TIMES will be guided in the future, as it has been in the past, by the consideration that the interest of the Republican Party are in all cases to be set above the interests of its leaders, and that the honor and welfare of the country are to be considered before either. Its attitude is that of independence within the Republican Party, for it is in that way can the interests of the party be most effectually served.

So long as any of the great principles with which the Party has been identified remain in dispute, THE TIMES will refuse to consider the work of republicanism as ended. It will steadily maintain the highest standard of partisan obligation in the treatment of questions affecting the financial honor of the nation, the purification of the public service, and the gradual readjustment of the fiscal system to meet the changing conditions of trade and manufacture. It will steadily oppose all plans, no matter by whom urged, which tend to postpone the date of resumption beyond that fixed by law, to pay the national creditor on any other basis than that of gold, to preserve imposts duties which clog the development of American industry, or to perpetuate in the public service the pernicious principle that "to the victors belong the spoils."

While carefully avoiding all that may tend to promote sectional animosity among our people, THE TIMES will urge, with the utmost decision, the national duty of protecting the freedmen and the Northern immigrants in the South in the possession of rights guaranteed them by the Constitution. It will do all in its power to promote the policy of peace and conciliation between North and South, but not at the sacrifice of the hope that Northern confidence and amnesty must find their return in the enforcement of even-handed justice and scrupulous regard for the letter and spirit of the law on the part of the South.

Its influence as a leading exponent of political opinion will be strengthened by all that is needful to enhance the value of THE TIMES as a daily record of news. It will be rendered exceptionally valuable by the unrivalled excellence of its correspondence by mail and telegraph from all parts of the world will be fully maintained. THE TIMES has shown during the Russo-Turkish war how ample are its resources, and how well directed is its enterprise. Its voluminous foreign correspondence for the last year is admitted to have furnished some of the most valuable data available for the record of a highly-important epoch. The events in Europe and elsewhere during the coming year will be treated with the same fulness, fairness, and accuracy as have distinguished its treatment of those which belong to the past.

In the department of literary and artistic criticism, of scientific, social, and general discussion, THE TIMES will address itself as heretofore, to the appreciation of the educated and refined portion of the American people. It will be lively without being sensational, aggressive without being coarse; at all times it will strive to be fearless and independent in the championship of the right. No theories subversive of the principles on which the success of society rests, and the existence of society alike repose will be promulgated in its columns.

THE TIMES rejects all advertisements of lotteries, of quacks and medical pretenders, and of all other agencies by which the indulgence of vice is disseminated throughout society. It will be in the future, as in the past, a newspaper specially adapted for family reading.

THE WEEKLY TIMES, containing as it does selected editorials on topics of national and general interest from the columns of the daily issue, as well as a concise summary of political, social, and foreign news, besides other features which recommend it to all classes of readers, is a paper admirably fitted to circulate in every portion of the United States. No Republican newspaper approaches it in circulation, and it will be the aim of its conductors to use every means, not only to maintain its pre-eminent position, but to make its popularity still more decided.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

For Purifying the Blood.

This compound of the vegetable kingdom, with Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia, and Mandrake, with the Iodides of Potash and Iron, makes a most efficacious cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system, that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they ulcerate and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear. Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Boils or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and ulcerous diseases, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure health returns.

THE CITY.

A dispatch from President Rockwell, in answer to an enquiry, says: "Stockholders of the Eastern Railroad of Massachusetts, and registered owners of indebtedness, only, will be passed to and from the meeting on Wednesday."

The annual election of officers of the Mechanics' Fire Society was held on Friday evening, the following being the choice: President, John S. Treat; Secretary, Edmund M. Brown; Wardens, Elisha Tripp, Samuel S. Fletcher, Benjamin F. Webster.

An extra passenger train will be run over the Eastern Railroad this morning, leaving this city at seven o'clock and keeping fifteen minutes ahead of the regular train to Boston, to accommodate the holders of certificates of indebtedness and stock of the Eastern Railroad in Massachusetts.

The title of "Bentley's Book-Buyer" will be changed with the first number for 1878, to "Robinson's Epitome of Literature." The reasons for the change are "that Mr. Bentley, whose name the journal has heretofore borne, has had no connection whatever with it since the issue of the second number, and that the other portion of the title is and has been in use for some years by one of our largest American publishing houses." The present proprietor is Mr. Frank W. Robinson, formerly of this city, who will continue the publication at 1420 Chestnut street, Philadelphia; price, $1 per year.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

The sale of one-half of the Cheever & Kimball block on Market street, Tuesday noon, resulted in its purchase by Dr. David Kimball, the owner of the other half of the property. The sale was made subject to Mrs. Cheever's right of dower, above the mortgages, and also to payment of the tax of $184.50 the current year. The price at which it rose from the first bid of $8009, was $8025.

BOARD OF TRADE.

The meeting of the Board of Trade at the city rooms on Tuesday evening resulted in the appointing of William H. Sise, Samuel Adams, Thomas H. Odion and Alfred F. Howard as a committee to draw up a memorial to be circulated among the citizens for an appropriation for harbor improvements.

The committee in charge of the petition for a revision by the courts of the rates of toll over Portsmouth bridge, reported that the petition has been signed by most of the merchants and the heaviest tax-payers of the city.

STOPPED THIEVES.

On Tuesday afternoon the police were notified that some tramps had stolen mats and other articles from the door of the store of Mr. Dennis J. Lynch, on Market street. Marshal Entwistle and Asst. Marshal Gray arrested three of the suspected tramps, and found part of the stolen property in their possession. Later, four others applied at the station house for lodging, and on being searched a lot of clothing which had been lately washed was found distributed among them. If any persons in the city or vicinity have had clothes-lines robbed, they are requested to call at the police station, identify their property and lend a hand toward sending to prison these peripatetic thieves.

MR. KNAPP'S LECTURES.

The fourth and last lecture, by Rev. Mr. Knapp, was a continuation of the Saturday evening subject. From Praxiteles, who excelled in the grace and softness of his statuary, he took up the style of Lysippus, whose genius was shown in the proportions of figures, and blending into them an extreme lightness and slenderness, and in the free play of the muscles, as admirably displayed in the representation of the wrestlers. Among the many statues exhibited by the stereopticon were those of Bacchus, a colossal figure of the Apollo Belvidere, which is considered the finest specimen of perfect manly beauty, Ariadne, Minerva, Diana, Mercury, Hercules, and the Laocoon. Among those famous in history were Augustus and Brutus; and in miscellaneous works of art was the Dying Gladiator. The lecture was replete with fine descriptions, and those who have attended the course have a resource and study which will give recreation to many hours.

Written for the Chronicle.

AN OLD LADY'S MEMORIES OF PORTSMOUTH

IN HER EARLY DAYS.

Very pleasant it was to draw from "Aunt Mary," a venerable lady who furnished Mr. Brewster much valuable information for his "Rambles," her recollections of Portsmouth as it was in her morning of life. When asked if it was true, as tradition reported, that so many little shops and stores were scattered about town in the last, and far into the present century, her answer was that they were so numerous in reality, one acquainted with the facts would have little inducement to misrepresent their number. Counting upon her fingers, she recalled twenty-one that could once be found from the corner of State and Washington streets to the termination of the latter, and yet they extended onward on the left hand to Tattle point, and on the right as far as any dwellings existed on South street; besides scores of others all over town. To the inquiry as to the purpose of so many of these little places of trade, she replied that they were originally constructed, she had been told, before Market street and its neighborhood became the centre of business in a retail way, and having among their stocks groceries and minor articles of dry goods, pins, needles, etc., were a great convenience to people living at a distance from that quarter, often saving them a long walk at inconvenient seasons for leaving home. A widow, she said, whose home had been destroyed by the great fire of 1802, was able, by an addition to a dwelling she owned in Washington street, to open there a business like that of a country store, such as her husband had kept in Daniel street at the time of his death a year two before. Her money drawer having been robbed twice, she devised a plan for catching the thief by setting in it a small steel trap, and hearing next day, from a room adjoining, a noise in the store, on going to learn the cause, found a girl with one arm across the counter, and her hand held fast in the trap, which was secured to the bottom of the drawer. Belonging to parents who had set her a bad example in dishonesty, she was let off with a reprimand, accompanied by much of good advice, by the widow, who took the precaution afterwards to have a bell attached to her door, so that such light-fingered gentry could not enter without announcing their presence. I don't think, she continued to say, that people, on the whole, were any better then than they are now, if we do hear of "the good old times," when everybody was honest and virtuous; and as another instance of youthful depravity, in the "good old times," in the dusk of an evening, the widow saw, through a window, a youngster in his teens steal through the yard in the twilight into the rear of the store, and then make his way to the cellar beneath, for the purpose, she had no doubt, of robbing the store in the night. Without saying a word of her discovery to any of her family, she at once bolted the door of the cellar entrance, and then managed to roll a barrel of flour, that lay near by, upon a trap-door that also led to the cellar, and on which there was no fastening, thus holding fast for the night her prisoner, whom she knew as the one black sheep of a poor but respectable family. The next morning, when her boy had opened the store, and rolled the barrel from the trap-door, she lifted it up, and called by name the would-be thief to make his appearance, and when he did so, but very sheepishly, with many promises, if allowed to go clear, "never to do so again," while letting him off, as she said, for the sake of the worthy people to whom he belonged, she told him he "ought to be sent to bridewell,"—a place, if the truth is told about it, even less attractive than the underground portion of our present jail, that is very apt to remind one of what they have read of the cells of the French Bastile or of the Spanish Inquisition, in "the good old times." "Aunt Mary" had to tell of the widow that she was one of the best of good women; that in her days of prosperity, "before the great fire," and as much as she could afterwards, she went about among the sick and the destitute, administering to their wants, temporally, medicinally and spiritually, and that though her old home had been much changed, the odor of her roots and herbs, in which she had great faith, remained in the attic, a fragrant offering to her memory, when she had gone to rest half a century. Very good company was "Aunt Mary" to one who took an interest in her recollections of the past. Especially did she love to tell of the time when she "went to Mr. Buckminster's meetin'," who were there and where they sat, not one of whom but herself remaining in the land of the living. J. H. D.

THE VICINITY.

A family feud of long standing between two brothers named Drake, of North Hampton, has culminated in a quarrel which is likely to result fatally to one of the parties engaged. Freeman Drake and Joshua P. Drake are brothers, living on farms adjoining, and well-to-do and respected. Tuesday evening of last week Freeman stopped at Joshua's house on his way from work to tell Joshua that a pickaxe had been found which he had accused Freeman of stealing. Words ensued, Joshua struck Freeman, and was himself struck in return. A struggle followed, and Freeman being the more powerful, was fast getting the advantage, when two sons of Joshua, Justin and Elmer by name, came to the rescue, one armed with an ox goad, the other with a club. Freeman then retreated into the road, pursued by all three, when he was finally knocked down and badly beaten about the head and body. After lying some time in the road, he was dragged to one side and left under a wall. Here he was discovered by his family and taken to his home. After many hours hours of insensibility he finally became conscious, but has been gradually failing ever since, and upon the doctor's declaration, Sunday night, that he would probably die, a Justice of the Peace was sent for, who took his ante-mortem statement. The affair has caused much excitement, owing to the respectability of all the parties.

The ladies of the Congregational society of Rye will have a Festival in Rye Town Hall on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Dec. 19th and 20th, when numerous attractions will be presented. If the weather is bad on the 19th, the opening will be deferred until the first fair evening thereafter.

We hear it hinted that there is shortly to come off in Dover or Portsmouth a glove contest between Jo Goss, a noted master of the manly art and the hero of scores of battles in England, and our own handy delineator, James Fogerty. —Foster's Democrat.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions, which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words, among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secure so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long as

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

It has been known to the public about forty years by a long continued series of marvellous cures that have won for it a confidence in its virtues, never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs, Colds, Consumption, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

Colored vs. Bald Heads.

Years ago the theo well known firm of Weld & Co., Boston, agents for a popular line of Australian packet ships, received a letter of inquiry from Cincinnati. Correspondence followed, and second cabin passages were engaged for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hatfield, their son Joseph, jr., and Miss Blanche, who were politely urged to put in an appearance in Boston on or before May 5th, as "the good ship Daniel Sharpe, whereof Joseph D. Cushing is master for this present voyage," would sail on the day following, weather permitting. On the morning designated a young darkey exquisite, sporting a tall hat and ivory headed cane, sauntered into the elegantly appointed office and demanded:

"Is dis yer de office of Weld & Co?"

"Yes, it is," growled the senior Weld from behind his desk, frowning over his gold-bowed spectacles at the intruder.

"Well, sah, me and my folks are gwine out to Melbourne in your ship Daniel Sharpe, and I—"

"Not if I know it—you are not going to do any such thing."

"How so, sah? Didn't I correspond wid you from Cincinnati, and engage passage for my father and mudder and Miss Blanche?"

"What! is your name Hatfield?" roared the dismayed agent.

"Yes, sah, my name's Hatfield, and—"

"Why in the devil didn't you notify me that you were colored?"

"Why in de debbil didn't you notify me dat you was bald-headed!"

The pertinent rejoinder silenced old Weld, and although two or three passengers who preferred to have the color line drawn outside of a ship's cabin gave up their berths and were restored their passage money, the Hatfields sailed comfortably in the Sharpe.—Rochester Democrat.

Evil of Knowing Too Much.

The Washington correspondent of the Hartford Post gives the following for the benefit of those who have upon their minds the idea of a place in the civil service of the Government:

A gentleman acting as private secretary of a Cabinet minister took exception to some heavy wording of a letter he was writing from dictation, saying he knew the party to whom it was addressed, and that the language used would be misconstrued. He was however ordered to write as directed, and the letter was sent. As feared, its language was misunderstood and a reply decidedly sharp and saucy came back. He took it to his chief, calling attention to the fact that he had suggested a different wording from that which occasioned such a reply. He was immediately asked for his resignation, prefaced with the remark, "You know too d—d much for me!" Soon after he succeeded in obtaining employment in a subordinate capacity, as book-keeper in another department. While at his desk a gentleman stopped at the door opening into the hall near him, and the following colloquy occurred:

"Where is the Secretary's office?"

"I don't know, sir."

"In what direction is the White House?"

"I don't know."

"Where is the Capitol?"

"I don't know."

"What do you know?"

"I was turned out of office last week for knowing too much. Now I am in again I know nothing outside of the books you see here—not if I know myself."

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.
This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.
This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a fall cure. Such a case has never been reported to us. Those Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

Honey
To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy that among the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness; Tropid Liver, or "Liver Complaint," and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from the effects of "Biliousness," in many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

P.P.P.P.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No cathartic required while using them.
The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.
As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore-Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them failing it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately, often renews the growth; and always and surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its gentleness and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,
MELBOURNE H. FORD,

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here yesterday all right. I don't know that I should have done it if I had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.
Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

A Hazardous Experiment.

A fool clerk in the employ of Byram, Cornelius & Co. night before last tried to "scare" Edward Tousey, who sleeps in the building. He put on a mask and entering the store slipped upon Tousey, who was sitting in the counting-room, and rushed at him with a drawn knife demanding the safe keys. Tousey felt for his revolver as he replied that he did not have them, when to his chagrin he remembered that he had left the weapon in the northern part of the city. Being a resolute fellow Tousey sprang at the throat of the supposed robber, and bearing him to the floor proceeded to kick him in the head with the purpose, as he explained, of kicking it off. This was more than the practical joker had anticipated and he yelled for mercy. Then there was a tableau. The fool clerk has not yet got through thanking his stars that Tousey left his revolver at home.—Indianapolis News.

The New York Times

FOR 1878.

A Political, Literary & General Newspaper

Devoted to Reform in Municipal, State and General Government.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

During the long and exciting Presidential campaign of 1876, and the anxious period of political uncertainty which succeeded it, THE NEW YORK TIMES had a very important share in determining the result of one of the most momentous contests in American history. The course of THE TIMES during the whole of that eventful struggle has secured for it a large addition to the number of its supporters, and has placed beyond controversy its position as the foremost republican newspaper in the United States.

The course of THE TIMES will be guided in the future, as it has been in the past, by the consideration that the interest of the Republican Party and its ability to serve the interests of its leaders and the honor and welfare of the country are to be considered before either. Its attitude is that of independence within the Republican Party, for the sake of serving the interests of the party be most effectually served.

So long as any of the great principles with which the Party has been identified remain in dispute, THE TIMES will refuse to consider the work of Republicanism as ended. It will labor to maintain the highest standard of political obligation in the treatment of questions affecting the financial honor of the nation, the purification of the public service, and the gradual readjustment of the fiscal system to meet the changing conditions of foreign and domestic commerce. It will steadily oppose all plans, no matter by whom urged, which tend to postpone the date of resumption beyond that fixed by law, to pay the national creditor on any other basis than that of gold, to preserve import duties which clog the development of American industry, or to perpetuate in the public service the pernicious principle that "to the victors belong the spoils."

While carefully avoiding all that may tend to promote sectional animosity among our people, THE TIMES will urge, with the utmost decision, the national duty of protecting the freedom and the Northern immigrants in the South in the possession of rights guaranteed them by the Constitution. It will do all in its power to promote the policy of peace and conciliation between North and South, but will not lose sight of the fact that Northern confidence and amnesty must find their return in the enforcement of even-handed justice and scrupulous regard for the letter and spirit of the law on the part of the South.

Its influence as a leading exponent of political opinion will be strengthened by all that is needful to enhance the value of THE TIMES as a daily record of news. The acknowledged excellence of its correspondence by mail and telegraph from all parts of the world will be fully maintained. THE TIMES has shown during the Russo-Turkish war how ample are its resources, and how well directed is its enterprise. Its voluminous foreign correspondence for the last year is admitted to have furnished some of the most valuable data available for the record of a highly-important epoch. The events in Europe and elsewhere during the coming year will be treated with the same fullness, fairness, and accuracy as have distinguished its treatment of those which now belong to the past.

In its sphere of literary and artistic criticism, of scientific, social, and general discussion, THE TIMES will address itself as heretofore, to the appreciation of the educated and intelligent classes of the American people. It will be lively without being sensational, aggressive without being coarse; pure without being prudish; independent and independent in the championship of the right. No theme is above or below the principles on which the sacredness of family ties and the existence of society alike repose will be promulgated in its columns.

THE TIMES rejects all advertisements of lotteries, of quacks and medical pretenders, and of all other agencies for fostering the delusions or vice is disseminated throughout society. It will be in the future, as in the past, a newspaper specially adapted for family reading.

THE WEEKLY TIMES, containing as it does selected editorials on topics of national and general interest from the columns of the daily issue, as well as a concise summary of political, social, and foreign news, besides other features which recommend it to all classes of readers, is a paper admirably fitted to circulate in every portion of the United States. No Republican newspaper approaches it in circulation, and it will be the aim of its conductors to use every means, not only to maintain its well-earned supremacy, but to make its popularity still more decided.

The New York Customs Nominations.

The Senate was in executive session on Wednesday nearly six hours, adjourning only at 8 o'clock in the evening. The entire session was devoted to the New York custom house nominations, two of which, namely, those of Theodore Roosevelt to be Collector, in place of Arthur, to be removed, and L. Bradford Prince as Naval Officer, vice Cornell, to be removed, were reported from the committee on commerce unfavorably. The third, namely, that of E. A. Merritt to be Surveyor of Customs, in place of Sharp, whose commission has expired, was reported with favorable recommendation. No opposition was manifested to the latter, but the contest in regard to the two proposed renewals was extremely animated, and took a very wide range, covering a discussion of the rights, powers and duties of the President in regard to removals from office, and the subject of the civil service policy in general.

Mr. Conkling, chairman of the committee on commerce, opened the debate with a brief statement of the reason why, in the opinion of the majority of that committee, the two first-named nominations should not be confirmed. These were in brief that no charges either of corruption or inefficiency had been made against the present incumbents, but that on the contrary they were conceded to be faithful, honest, experienced and able officers.

Mr. Bayard followed in an extended argument, maintaining the right of the executive to make changes, which, in his opinion, would be for the benefit of the public service, he being responsible for the execution of the laws, and entitled to select his agents subject to confirmation of the Senate, but without being obliged to furnish to the Senate a statement of his reasons.

Mr. Kernan then delivered a speech of considerable length on the same side of the question, defending the action of the President. His remarks were mostly read from manuscript.

Mr. Gordon was the next speaker. He warmly commended the civil service policy of President Hayes, and in regard to the pending nominations, asserted, emphatically, that the removals which they contemplated were demanded by a proper regard for the purity of the service. He charged that Cornell and Arthur had disgracefully made use of the power and patronage of their offices for merely partisan and selfish purposes, and he intimated that it was time for the one-man power in New York State to be broken.

The debate then became quite general. Mr. Hoar and Mr. Matthews spoke in favor of sustaining the action of the President in the exercise of his constitutional power, and of what they argued was his sound public policy in removing the civil service from the domain of partisan control.

Mr. Tellers and others spoke briefly in reply, arguing that in these instances at least, the President had departed from the principles of civil service which he himself had announced, namely, that faithful and efficient services should protect officers from removal, etc.

Mr. Conkling closed the debate in a speech of considerable length, and great vigor and earnestness. He replied in detail to the various arguments advanced by the supporters of the nominations, and replied with the utmost emphasis to the charges that had been made against the official character and conduct of the officers whom the President proposed to remove. He insisted that they had been faithful, honest and efficient in every particular, and challenged proof that a single charge had ever been made against them, either by a mercantile community or by the Secretary of the Treasury, or the President himself. He also defied any one to show or to assert that his (Conkling's) action in this whole matter has been otherwise than fair, open, courteous and above board. In conclusion he claimed that the Senate would be alike unjust to faithful officers, careless of its own prerogatives and duties, and unmindful of the dictates of true civil service policy, if it failed to vote that these nominations should be rejected.

A vote by yeas and nays was then taken upon the nomination of Roosevelt and it was rejected by a majority of seven, the yeas being 25 and nays 32.

The nomination of Prince was rejected upon another roll call by the same vote.

In each case, Senators Eaton, Dennis, Whyte and Maxey, democrats, united with the great body of the republicans against the confirmations, and Senators Burnside, Christiancy, Conover, Dawes, Hoar, and Matthews, republicans, sided with the mass of the democrats in favor.

The negatives were cast by Messrs. Allison, Anthony, Blaine, Booth, Bruce, Cameron of Pennsylvania, Cameron of Wisconsin, Chaffee, Conkling, Dawes of Illinois, Dorsey, Eaton, Edmunds, Ferry, Hamlin, Howe, Ingalls, Jones of Nevada, Kellogg, Kirkwood, McMillan, Mitchell, Morrill, Oglesby, Paddock, Patterson, Plumb, Rollins, Sargent, Saunders, Spencer and Teller—32.

It is said that the majority against the confirmation of Roosevelt and Prince would have been two or three greater, but for the absence of an equal number of Senators known to be opposed to the nomination, who had temporarily left the capital without pairs, in the belief that the vote would not be reached until a later hour. With the exception of these two or three Senators and Mr. Sharon, who is still absent from Wasington, the full number of Senators were present, or had made their votes effective by means of pairs in favor of confirmation. The nomination of Merritt was confirmed without a division.

Our New York Fashion Letter.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.

It is one thing to have a new bonnet; it is another thing to know how to wear it. A fashionable milliner said to me, "Wear your hair higher, and then put your bonnet away up on the top." She gave my braids a friendly push, and triumphantly placing a high ascending specimen of her art upon the summit, remarked with a satisfied air, "Now you look stylish." With an exceedingly dissatisfied feeling, I undid her work, and remarked sensibly that I thought I looked foolish. "Oh, never mind," was the answer, "it's stylish." To my regret I find that she was right. Extremists do just what she would have had me do. They wear their hair in lofty fortifications far away at the back of their heads, and like a turret on a battlement the bonnet is perched above. Fortunately, however, they are in the minority, and such absurdity is not a necessity. Shapes are "nothing in particular." That is to say, there is no one feature, or features, which stand prominently forth. Crowns are neither high nor low, nor are brims either wide or narrow. Nevertheless, we have both hard and soft crowns, and as to brims, they speak a dozen different languages. We have saucy brims, tender brims, severe brims, coquettish brims, brims turning up and brims going down, etc., etc., to say nothing of dignified brims, poetical brims, very youthful brims, full fledged young lady brims, matronly brims, and elderly brims. But the last mentioned are few and far between, for, as a rule, New York ladies do not grow old. This does not mean that they are a short-lived race. Far from it. Youth here extends almost, if not fully, as far as the days allotted to man's entire pilgrimage upon this planet, nor do silvered locks oppose any obstacle to young lady brims filled in with all the colors of the rainbow. For just now all the colors of the rainbow are in favor, not only in millinery, but in dress goods. Not in plain material, however, for here without exception the colors are dark, but in the bourette fabrics (which, combined with plain goods, are the rage) we find the brightest and most varied hues mixed up in the most indiscriminate and hap hazard way. For a black costume, ladies now prefer the Trillard silks above all others, since, while unequalled for beauty of finish and durability, they are full twenty-four inches wide, this being a gain of from three to four inches on every yard. Made of pure silk only, they are free from changing and are warranted not to turn greasy with wear.

CHILDREN'S FASHIONS.

Bourette goods are as popular for school-girls as for ladies, but are hardly adapted for young children. For misses, a favorite selection is dark bourette goods piped with bright red, and coquettishly finished here and there with a bright red bow to match, while for small children, plain dark materials are chosen, and these in like manner are brightened by gay additions. Pipings of blue or yellow are also seen, but are not in as great favor as red. In consequence of such preferences, we find that Scotch plaids are seldom worn, but in lieu thereof are small shepherd's checks, finished with bright pipings, and sometimes combined with black velvet sleeves. In this case, wide bands of black velvet afford a pleasing harmony in the way of ornamentation. For girls between the ages of four and twelve, the Breton dress, or the robe Princesse afford charming models. The Rita is likewise extremely pretty, being especially adapted to combination suits, while the Mildred, always very stylish, is usually selected for costumes of check with velvet.

THE WOMAN'S HOTEL.

Ladies will be interested in the announcement that about New Year, Stewart's hotel for the accommodation of women will be opened. Although designed more especially for self-supporting women, who, as a class, are condemned to live upon scanty incomes, the appointments in every respect are equal to first-class hotels, while the prices will be less than those charged in third-class boarding-houses. The cooking department will be under the superintendence of an accomplished chef de cuisine, and the best fare will be furnished not only to the inmates, but to outside parties. While every material want is thus cared for, provision is made for improvement and entertainment, since in addition to many well chosen pictures and engravings there will be a large library, and handsome pianos in the parlors. Persons outside the city can hardly realize the cruel hardships undergone by hundreds of self-supporting women here. As a rule, they drag out lives of weary martyrdom, and to provide a way of comfortable living within their means is to accomplish a work of the noblest philanthropy. Whiting of pianos reminds me of the upright piano made by Haines Bro., Fifth Avenue and Twenty First st., which is extremely popular. All the instruments manufactured by this old, established firm are of the best material, put together with the most refined skill, and in consequence of their beauty of finish, durability and superior tone, are found not only in the salons of the fashionable but in the parlors of persons who in purchasing the best article obtain thereby the cheapest. The upright piano is a specialty with them, and for fine finish, sweetness and richness of tone is unsurpassed. I am led to these observations from the fact that the holidays are at hand, at which time a piano is often chosen as a present. Among other advantages the upright, while effective and elegant, is compact, and takes up, therefore, but little room. Everywhere now, the city begins to put on its holiday dress. Novelties in style are always inaugurated by the New Year receptions and festivities, and of these an idea will be given by LUCY CARTER.

The Eastern War.

The London News special gives the following account of the fall of Plevna: For three days the Russians knew that Osman Pasha's provisions were exhausted, and that a sortie was preparing. They received the news Sunday that he would concentrate his whole army near the bridge over the river Vid. This news was confirmed during the night by General Skobeleff, who discovered that the Turks had silently evacuated the Krishing redoubt, and all their positions on Green Hill. Skobeleff occupied these at seven o'clock in the morning. Osman crossed the Vid by two bridges and attacked the Russian positions with such fury that the Turks captured eight cannon, and in a few minutes almost annihilated the Sibirsky Grenadier Regiment. The Turks then found themselves under fire of a hundred cannon of the Russian second line, and were attacked by the Grenadiers, who were resolved to recapture their guns. The Turks were driven back after fifteen minutes of bayonet fighting, but continued the fire from the sheltering banks of the Vid, until 12:30 P. M., when the firing ceased on both sides, and a quarter of an hour afterwards Osman Pasha sent an envoy to treat for surrender. This correspondent says Osman's wound in the leg is not serious.

The Czar of Russia has returned to St. Petersburg. Previous to his departure from Plevna he visited Osman Pasha, and returned his sword as a recognition of his bravery.

Political.

The democrats in the Senate threaten to vote against the confirmation of Collector Simmons of Boston, should he be proposed by the President for reappointment, on the ground that he worked against the democratic party in the recent municipal election in Boston.

The election for State Senator in Beaufort county, S. C., which includes several sea islands containing a large negro population, took place Monday. Notwithstanding a vigorous democratic canvass, J. W. Bollius, the republican candidate was elected by 1500 majority. This is the first election in that State this year which has been carried by the republicans.

Senator Butler is, or has been, in South Carolina, engaged in a missionary effort to placate the incorrigibles, who are persecuting leading republicans, and, if possible, to inaugurate an era more in keeping with reconciliation and pacification. This a part of the arrangement by which he secured his seat in the Senate.—Boston Herald.

It is said that Senator Patterson proposes to return to South Carolina in January and make arrangements for his trial and admission to bail. He says he believes that there is a change in public sentiment there, which will insure him a fair trial.

The Postmaster General has received a letter from one of his old Confederate soldiers, who identifies himself as the man who rode the spotted horse at the siege of Vicksburg, and wants to be a route agent. He argues that his politics will not stand in the way of his appointment, since he is "six of one and half a dozen of the other;" and clinches this part of his argument by innocently remarking that, from what he hears, he reckons his old Colonel is of the same political opinions as himself.

That is rather a remarkable story they are telling in Washington, to the effect that one Huff, a moderate democrat, who was a candidate for appointment as United States Marshal of Georgia, in opposition to Fitzsimmons, was compelled to deny that he was a republican in order to get his claims considered, and was at last defeated by Wade Hampton's relative on suspicion that he had some Republican proclivities. — Illinois State Journal.

Apt remark of the Portland Press: "Of the witnesses summoned for the prosecution in the Kemper county massacre, all but two have either been murdered or driven from the State. The trial has been postponed to January in order to give time to kill these two."

Joseph Hills, the oldest man in Merrimack, recently died, aged 90 years.

A number of Dartmouth College students, mostly freshmen, have been recently dropped for deficient scholarship.

A young man by the name of Daniel Butler, residing in Sandwich, attempted to cross Bearcamp pond on Tuesday, broke through the ice, but managed with his arms to keep from going under, and cried for help. Some neighbors hearing thought it was boys playing and paid no attention, but the cries continuing at last started for the pond, and just before they arrived there he became so chilled and exhausted that he could keep up no longer and went under, and when found was dead.

In the law term of the Supreme Court at Plymouth, Wednesday, the motion for a rehearing of the Francestown Church case is being argued. It is understood that no decision will be reached this term on the Buzzell murder case. Buzzell was once tried for the murder of Miss Hanson of Brookfield and acquitted. Another party was subsequently arrested for arson, and confessed to having committed the murder at the instigation of Buzzell. The question of the right to try Buzzell as accessory before the fact was submitted to the full bench and argued.

Fourteen bushels of chestnuts have been sent from Henniker to Mr. N. H. Webster, of Helena, Montana, this season. They were all sent in small packages through the mail. The postage upon the whole amount was $102.37.

News and Notes.

Judge E. G. Loring, of the U. S. Court of Claims, has resigned his seat on the bench after a service of twenty years, he being seventy-six years old; he resigned under the retiring act, and will receive full pay during the remainder of his life; he was appointed from Massachusetts, and was the only democrat on the bench. The President nominated J. C. Bancroft Davis to fill the vacancy.

As a matter of interest in connection with the recent loss of the Huron it is stated that the captains of steamships in the Southern trade have lately experienced an unusually strong westerly current. Within the past few years many merchant steamers, whose masters had great experience in the navigation of our coast, have been wrecked on and in the vicinity of Body Island, near the point where the Huron was wrecked. Among the number, the steamer Vera Cruz, side-wheeler, Capt. Mussey, from New York to Vera Cruz, was totally wrecked on Body Island in 1868; the steamer Eagle, side-wheeler, Capt. Green, from New York to Havana, was lost on Body Island. The Ariadne, from New York to Galveston, Capt. Duane, was also lost within about two miles of Body Island light. About three years ago the steamer Gen. Sherman, from New York, was also wrecked there. The commanders of these vessels are among the most experienced navigators of our coast.

A despatch from Chester, Pa., says the schooner Oliver Crosby from Jamaica reports that at 2 o'clock, A. M. on the 7th inst., forty-five miles northeast by north off Cape Hatteras, saw a large vessel, apparently a ship, on fire. There is no doubt she had been burning some time, and the cargo apparently petroleum. No one was seen on or about the burning ship.

By direction of the President a board to consist of Major General Hancock, Colonel D. S. Stanley, Twenty-second infantry, and Colonel W. D. Whipple, aide-de-camp, will assemble in New York city the 8th of January next, or as soon thereafter as possible, to determine the following questions: First, what should be considered as being a battle within the spirit of the regulations? Second, what portion of a regiment must be engaged in the battle to entitle the regiment to have inscribed upon its colors and on the Army Register the name of the battle? Third, what record should be made in the cases of regiments consolidated as in 1815 and 1869?

Senator Chaffee, of Colorado, has prepared a resolution which he will offer in the Senate as a substitute for that of Senator Matthews. It proposes to declare that all bonds of the United States now issued or authorized to be issued under the several acts of Congress, for that purpose, are payable, principal and interest, in coin of gold or silver, at the option of the Government, at the standard value of such coin when the bonds were issued, and to restore to its coinage such silver coin as a legal tender co-equal with gold coin, and that this is not in violation of the public faith nor in derogation of the rights of the public creditor.

Senator Daws has replied to the charge that the Act of 1873 demonetizing silver was passed surreptitiously. He showed from the record, that the bill was pending for nearly three years, that it was twelve times printed, and that demonetization of the silver dollar of 412 1-2 grains was recommended by the comptroller of the currrency in a public report, and was explained and defended in debate by Mr. Hooper, Mr. Kelley and others, (who are now rampant for the remonetization of the depreciated metal,) for the reason that it was then worth three cents more than the standard gold dollar.

KNIGHTS of PYTHIAS

FAIR.

Announcement

EXTRAORDINARY!

A special meeting of the Executive Committee was held on Tuesday evening, in accordance with the following telegrams:

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Dec. 11, 1877.

To Henry Peyser, Young's Hotel, Boston: Public pressure will, I think, compel us to issue one thousand more season tickets on the same basis of presents as first. DR. S. C. WHITTIER.

BOSTON, MASS., Dec. 11, 1877.

To Dr. S. C. Whittier: Cause a meeting of the executive committee to be held at your office at eight o'clock. Will be there. HENRY PEYSER.

After mature deliberation concerning the above it was decided not to issue any more season tickets, but in order to comply with the public demand as far as in our power, it was unanimously decided to add to the Grand Fair, not with a view to make money, but that the public may have the benefit of this new feature. It was voted to present to the holders of One Thousand Certificates,

Another New Feature

250 RICH GIFTS,

and that the value of the Presents to be distributed among Certificate holders be

One Hundred Dollars Greater

than the value of Ticket holders' Presents. Also that the Treasurer be authorized to immediately issue one thousand certificates in the distribution of these magnificent gifts, entitling the holders to admission to the Fair on Saturday evening, Dec. 22d. These are

Entirely separate and distinct

from the distributions of the gifts awarded the Season Ticket holders. We enumerate a few of the gifts:

The leading prize will be an Exact Duplicate of the elegant SILVER SERVICE of nine pieces now on exhibition in Rundlett's window; one CASE OF SILVER (42 pieces) and numerous other cases; Coleridge's Ancient Mariner, illustrated by Dore; objects of Art and utility.—In fact every prize will be of real value.

☞ In order to dispose of these certificates at once and satisfy the demand of a generous public, we make this, the most liberal inducement ever offered at an affair of this kind.

It was also decided to hold the Fair five (5) evenings instead of four (4), as was first intended, and that Season Ticket holders be admitted without extra charge on the additional evening.

These certificates can now be obtained at the bookstore of Mercer Goodrich, at the drug stores of J. Dwight Dundlet, W. R. Preston and David Kimball & Co., at the clothing store of Peyser & Kennedy.

THE FAIR.

Another announcement in connection with the Knights of Pythias Fair will be found in our advertising columns. The remarkable sale of the season tickets, one thousand in number, nearly a week before the time of opening the Fair, and the call for more tickets, has decided the management to continue the Fair for five nights instead of four, and to issue one thousand "certificates," admitting the holders to the Fair on the last evening; and to compensate the certificate holders for not being admitted during the rest of the Fair, the two hundred and fifty presents to be distributed among them will exceed in value the same number of presents to be distributed among the "season-ticket" holders, by one hundred dollars. Season-ticket holders will also be admitted to the Fair on the last evening—but only certificate holders will participate in the distribution of the second lot of presents.

A HINT.

A couple of foolish young fellows on Wednesday night succeeded in raising an alarm of fire, by bleating aloud as they ran down Pleasant street from near the city building, and then through State and Penhallow streets to Daniel street. The alarm was abortive, so far as the turning out of the Fire Department was concerned,—hence a gentleman who was within twenty feet of them when they set up their first yawp, and who recognized them both, has not as yet thought proper to give their names to the police. However, he advises them, the next time they attempt such a silly performance, to make sure there is no person in any contiguous door-way.

SOME BEEF.

In the Boston Advertiser's report of the Brighton cattle market, Thursday, we find the following:

"We would like, right here, to call attention to a pair of six-year-old oxen that landed at the new yards, weighing 6000 lbs. It we should say they looked like elephants, would it be very definite? but 6000 lbs is no small scratch for two cattle to weigh, and they were very fat and good proportioned cattle; slaughtered by H. Bird & Co.; raised and fatted by Hon. Frank Jones of Portsmouth, N. H., who has been feeding these cattle, with a number of others, for the pleasure derived therefrom. He had them at Portland at the New England State Fair, with five other pair. We were told that the six pair there represented by Mr. Jones weighed more pounds than any other twelve cattle ever put together in this country."

POLICE COURT.

Thursday, Dec. 15th; Batchelder, J.

Robert Foster, Gideon Carter and George Smith, drunks, fined $3 each, costs $6.90 each, all "went up."

Horace L. Colcord, (continued case,) driving a hired horse farther than was specified in contract when team was hired. Defendant engaged a team of Woodbury Locke to go to Stratham, and drove it to Merrimacport, Mass., Kingston, Nottingham and Manchester; the horse when recovered was badly used up, showing hard driving and poor care. Colcord was adjudged guilty, and sentenced to jail for twenty days; to pay the costs of prosecution; and to pay to Locke fifty cents per mile for each mile the horse was driven over and above the distance specified at the time the contract was made.

Ida Gordon, for using lewd, obscene and profane language, was ordered to pay a fine of $5, and costs taxed at $6.90. She gave notice of appeal, and bonds were set at $50; failing the appearance of some "friend" to go bonds for her, she must either pay up or go up.

THE VICINITY.

Dr. Jonathan Dearborn, of Seabrook, dropped dead on the 12th inst. at the door of his store as he was leaving it to take the cars for Boston.

Joshua P. Drake, of North Hampton, and his sons Joshua P. and Elmer, were arrested on Thursday on a charge of assaulting, with intent to kill, Freeman Drake.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

THE

New-York Tribune

FOR 1878.

THE TRIBUNE has long enjoyed the distinction of the largest circulation among the best people. During the year 1878 it will spend more labor and money than ever before to deserve that preeminence. It secured, and means to retain it, by becoming the medium of the best thought and the voice of the best conscience of the time, by keeping abreast of the highest progress, by wooing the freest discussion, bearing all sides, appealing always to the intelligence and the purest morality, and refusing to cater to the tastes of the vile or the prejudices of the ignorant. The continued popularity approved and the constantly widening political influence it enjoys, are the best proofs that it is still faithful to these early secrets of its strength.

THE TRIBUNE earnestly strove for the election of President Hayes, and has given his Administration a hearty support to the high purposes of his Inaugural. "Doubting the wisdom of methods sometimes taken by his subordinates, and criticising with entire freedom his occasional mistakes, it still thinks it the duty of the hour to hold together and strengthen the party that elected and alone sustains him. It believes the day of danger to the negro has passed, and that of danger to the Tax-payer has come. The Solid South, (at least in full control of every Rebel and Border State) sees its chance to get at the National Treasury, and get back what it lost by the war. Only 47 Northern votes are needed. If Tammany Hall could furnish New York, then Indiana, or Connecticut and New Jersey, would suffice. The danger is upon us; and against it the old party of Freedom, still the party of the Churches and the School Houses, is the only bulwark. It alone can keep the Solid South from grasping the National Government in 1880. If alone can save us, even now, from the threatened Democratic abandonment of resumption and renewed debasement of the currency, which would needlessly and most wickedly shake the revival of business, and treble the country's burdens. In behalf of the old party, therefore, THE TRIBUNE renews the old appeal to the National Conscience, the National honor, and the enlightened self-interest of the Tax-Payers.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE

Combines many of the merits of both the Daily and Weekly issues, and is, in some respects, the best, as well as the cheapest paper issued by THE TRIBUNE office. It contains all the literary, agricultural, and domestic miscellany, and all the special articles prepared for THE WEEKLY. It has besides nearly all the news of THE DAILY, and most of its editorial articles not strictly local in their application. It has been enlarged, and changed to the new sixteen-page form as described below—a change which has long been asked by many of its most intelligent patrons.

THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

This has been for a third of a century the favorite paper for our substantial country population. A competent critic has said of it: "THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE has done more for the development and prosperity of the Great West, and has made more good farmers and good citizens than any other single influence that ever existed in this country." During the ensuing year it means not only to preserve its old merits, but to take a long stride ahead. By the introduction of $30,000 worth of new machinery, and by an enlargement of its size (making it the largest single sheet issued by any newspaper in the country), it is enabled to give subscribers what they have so long asked—their favorite paper in a shape easier to read and convenient for binding. Each issue consists of sixteen pages, of the form and general appearance of Harper's Weekly, but with pages considerable larger, and with unusually large and clear type. All the old and standard features are carefully preserved, while the new form and additional size enable us to offer the following among many

NOVEL and SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS:

I. A graphic series of articles on Domestic Life and Habits Abroad, by BAYARD TAYLOR.

II. A few papers on Current Topics from the Christian Minister's Point of View, by the Rev. JOHN HALL, D. D.

III. Occasional contributions on Political Problems and Progress, by GAIL HAMILTON.

IV. A Northern Farmer on Southern Agriculture, by SOLON ROBINSON.

V. Life and Sights in New-York, by Veterans of the City Staff.

These articles will not be mere reproductions from the Daily paper. They will be prepared expressly for THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE, and will first see the light in its columns.

FOR FARMERS.

The Agricultural Department of THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE has always been recognized as beyond comparison with that of any rival. More good work and more money are now spent on it than ever before. Among regular contributors to it are Professor JAMES LAW, the country's foremost veterinary surgeon; Professor L. A. ARNOLD, unequalled as an instructor in the fine art of dairying; Professor G. C. CALDWELL, of National reputation as an agricultural chemist; Professor C. V. RILEY, the well-known entomologist; Mr. JOSIAH HOOPER, the horticultural authority; and other agricultural specialists of the highest rank.

NO RIVALS TO COMPARE IT WITH.

THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE is now utterly unlike any other weekly newspaper issued from the office of a daily in New-York, or in the country, larger, in different and better form, in better type, and filled with matter prepared expressly for its readers—not with the dish-water dumped in from the Daily. It can only be compared with the three and four-dollar weeklies, like Harper's, or the great religious papers, and likewise is, while its pages are larger than any to these. Its price, however, remains fixed at such low rates as to defy competition, and its extraordinary premiums surpass anything even in its own history.

UNEXAMPLED PREMIUM,

WEBSTER'S $12 UNABRIDGED DICTIONARY FREE.

THE TRIBUNE makes to its old subscribers an extraordinary offer. It will give them THE WEEKLY for five years, and will send, free of cost, to any of the great standard Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, in a leather binding, 1,928 quarto pages, with 3,000 engravings, both for $10—being two dollars less than the cost of the Dictionary alone at any book-store! If the old subscriber prefers, he need pay for THE WEEKLY only two years for himself, by sending three new subscribers for one year each. In this case the remittance of $10 secures five years' subscription for THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE as well as the Webster Dictionary.

Any old subscriber to THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE can avail himself of the same offer by sending the regular price of the paper for five years' subscription, $15, in the same way.

Thus, any subscriber to either edition, renewing his subscription for five years at the regular rate to single subscribers (or renewing for only two years, and getting three new subscribers) gets five years of his favorite paper for nothing, and the great Dictionary for $2 less than its regular price; or he gets the paper at the regular price, and the great Dictionary for nothing—which way he pleases to count it!

PREMIUMS TO FRIENDS GETTING UP CLUBS FOR 1878.

FOR A CLUB OF—

3 Weeklies—Any five TRIBUNE Novels.

10 Weeklies—An extra copy of the Weekly, or a copy of the Greeley Memorial Volume, in cloth, or any eight of THE TRIBUNE novels.

20 Weeklies—THE SEMI-WEEKLY; or one extra Weekly, and either Mr. Greeley's "Political Economy," or "What I know about Farming," $1 50 each at retail.

30 Weeklies—THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE, and any eight of THE TRIBUNE novels; or Mr. Greeley's "Recollections of a Busy Life," in sheep $2.50 at retail, and the same Novels.

50 Weeklies—THE DAILY TRIBUNE one year and either of the above-mentioned books, or the series of TRIBUNE Novels.

(One Semi-Weekly will count as two Weeklies in the above. Double numbers of THE TRIBUNE Novels count as two.)

These premiums are better than THE TRIBUNE ever offered before, and are believed to be better and more attractive than any that can be offered by any other responsible establishment.

Centaur Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures than pretended or hidden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Pollevil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.
J. B. ROSE & CO., 46 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey
To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It delicately and thoroughly assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it to my patrons as the medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN F. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any basis than that of merit.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections, and Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness; Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you may be certain that Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness," in many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

P.P.P.P.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.
The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Nature's Purgative Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the ill-nauseating, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.
As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. Dr. Pierce's Pellets, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

The remedial management of those diseases peculiar to women has afforded a large experience at the World's Dispensary, of which Dr. Pierce is the chief consulting physician, in adapting remedies for their cure. Favorite Prescription is a Powerful Restorative Tonic to the entire system. Ayer's Hair Vigor,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus unsightly, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has done to me. For five years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time it has been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,
MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1875.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I don't know what I should have done if I had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell until I tried Sanford's Cure. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 15, 1876.

THE OLD MAN GOES TO THE FAIR.

BY JOHN H. YATES.

I'm very dusty and tired, wife! I've just come home from the fair;
So give me my pipe and tobacco, and I'll smoke in my easy chair;
Its' tiresome work a playin' for feeble old men like me;
It's tiresome work a seein' where every one wishes to see.

Our faire are runnin' down; they are not like the fairs of old,
Where you took the prize for bread, and butter as yellow as gold;
There were hundreds of useful things, that were well worth seein' then;
Few, dozens of racin' horses and hundreds of beastly men.

What all this sportin' will lead to is more than I can tell;
But, sonnow, it seems to me like the downward road to h—well,
I may be a little harsh, but I'm speakin' the simple truth,
For bettin', racin' and drinkin' are the foes of our noble youth.

We shall come to a nation of gamblers, if matters keep in this way;
Why, what do you think? a youngster accused me of bettin' to-day!
When I laid my hand on his head—that hasn't been ten years yet—
And called him a fine little fellow—he answered me back, "You bet!"

"Tut! tut! little man," said I, "that thing I never have done;
Come stand by grandpa's knee! let me reason with you, my son."
He straightened up in his clothes, and said, with a look so queer,
"I didn't come here for preachin', old man, walk off on your ear!"

We never heard talk like that when you and I were young;
My father and mother—bless 'em—put a bridle upon my tongue,
I'm old, and I'm gettin' blind, but a difference I can see
'Twixt the boys of eighteen hundred and eighteen seventy-three.

How is it about the girls? They, too, from the path have strayed;
I didn't see one a showin' the butter her hands had made;
They stood in their pony phaetons, with woman's ease and grace,
And shouted as loud as any when a favorite won a race.

All eyes were watchin' the track; the race was every man's theme;
And I said to myself, "Is this a fair, or is it only a dream?"
I saw 'bout a dozen boys lookin' 'round at the sheep and swine,
And the frosts of seventy winters had silvered their heads like mine.

Why en airth don't they change the name, when the wrong name it has got?—
No longer call it a fair, but an agricultural trot;
Then men won't be taking things for sensible folks to see,
With nobody there to see 'em but crippled old men like me.

There, take my pipe and tobacco! I'll sleep in my easy chair;
It's tiresome work a lazin' about a fair;
You needn't disturb me, wife, till the bells of the evening chime,
For I may go back in my dreams to the faire of olden time.

Political.

The man who got the highest vote at Boston Tuesday was a woman, Lucia M. Peabody receiving 46,874, or within about a thousand of the total for both tickets on which she ran. She will be the only woman on the new school board, Lucretia P. Hale, the other female candidate, who was on the Pierce ticket, running enough behind to lose her election.

Concerning Conkling's victory the New York Herald says that the President now has an opportunity to profit by his experiences. He can begin the civil service reform anew, with more sincerity, less bumptiousness, and by practical methods. It advises him to change his Cabinet, as he can blame only himself and his counsellors for this defeat.

The Richmond Whig, (dem.,) grandiloquently declares that Virginia is opposed to repudiation in any form,—but adds that the Mother of Presidents, the grand central reservoir of honor and native nobility, doesn't propose to pay her honest debts. Tennessee, another democratic (and always democratic) State, scorns to "repudiate" her obligations, but half her people insist on a "readjustment" by which the State's creditors will be swindled of half their dues; the other half of Tennessee's honest men object to paying any of the debt at all. None of these democratic Southern States propose to "repudiate" their debts; they simply declare that they won't pay anything, and that there is no way of making them.

The idea of passing a bill making ninety cents' worth of silver a legal-tender for one hundred cents, or of a ten per cent repudiation, is not a wholesome one to contemplate. Such a possible contingency ought to stir up the people to insist upon the preservation of the public faith. If we mean repudiation let us say so frankly, and not attempt to add to its dishonor an attempt to accomplish it by indirection.—Boston Post.

—There's a man in Glen Cove, who can now sing "A charge to keep I have." It's a charge of No. 10 shot; he was in a neighbor's hen-roost.

Chronicle Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 12th.

All testimony so far elicited before the Naval Court of Inquiry goes to confirm the now very general opinion that the immediate responsibility of the Huron's loss and the shocking sacrifice of over a hundred lives, must rest upon the officer or officers charged with navigating her away from a stretch of coast perilously beset with bars, shoals, spits, currents, counter-currents and miles upon miles of breakers, dangerous even in mild weather of mid-summer. But they shared the fate of the vessel whose safety was committed to their charge, and are gone beyond the reach of censure or praise. Congress, that failed to man the nearest life-saving station, and Commodore Trenchard, who signaled permission for her to push out into the treacherous waste of water lashed to fury by a November gale, against the warnings of the Weather Bureau, will be held not wholly blameless by the popular verdict. The only reason that appears to have operated against laying her course farther eastward until a sufficient offing had been made to clear the dangers concealed under the shoal water along shore, was the apprehension that the northward current of the Gulf Stream, driven farther in shore than usual by the gale, might be encountered, thus retarding to a slight extent, their progress down the coast. There appears to have beena series of blunders committed from the sailing of the vessel to the time the last life sacrificed was yielded up in the fatal undertow, say one of which, if avoided, would have much abbreviated the long list of casualities. All that is possible to learn from survivors and others more indirectly concerned, will likely be brought out by the rigid method of the Court.

A great many here and elsewhere who believe Dowling, the Toledo Postmaster, to have been removed to make way for Reed because the latter earned Stanley Matthews' gratitude, during his contest to succeed Senator Sherman, are gratified at the rather humiliating necessity imposed on the authorities of re-installing the former in office. A more flagrant disregard of the reform programme for filling Federal positions could hardly be pointed out among the instances alleged against the Administration; and if Mr. Reed's chickens have come home thus early to roost, there will be found few to commiserate his forlorn and wretched condition consequent upon the miscarriage of the joint scheme for his reward.

It is rare for a retiring official of any grade to go out of office carrying more of the good will of those with whom he came in official contact, than will follow Mr. McCormick, late Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, into private life.

The annual report of the Commissioner of Agriculture, just issued and ready for distribution, contains many things of interest to the general reader. The volume is unusually compact and well arranged, and there are several new subjects treated. In looking through the book I notice an article concerning "A Successful Insect Destroyer," accompanied with a drawing or cut of the invention. It is a new thing, patented during the year, and promises to be a great benefit to the farming and fruit growing community. The annual destruction of crops of fruit, cotton, corn, tobacco and vegetables by the curculio, cotton-ball, army, cut and tobacco worms, amounts to millions of dollars. Of all the numerous remedies tried none have so far proved successful. The "Little Turk," as the curculio is called, has almost driven plum culture from the country, while the ravages of the other species named are immense. The worms are all hatched from eggs laid by miller and beetle insects that fly at night, and are easily caught by a properly arranged light. It is estimated that these insects deposit from 10,000 to 1,000,000 eggs each, according to the species, in the seventeen days of their average life. If, therefore, the insects can be destroyed before appearing in the worm stage of existence, this will prove the most successful point of attack. The device referred to by the Commissioner was patented by a firm in Russellville, Arkansas,—Patton & Duke, I believe—and consists of a peculiarly constructed lamp which is to be lighted and set on a pan filled with water, the bottom of which receives a stick or other support, so as to raise the light to the desired height for the crop or tree to be protected. Everybody knows the proneness of insects to "go for" a light. It is one of the curious facts connected with insect life that their eggs are always deposited at night. The miller species never fly by day. On a warm, dark night, when there is no rain or wind, they are, in season, almost numberless and can readily be destroyed by this device. The Commissioner says: "The moths being attracted by the light, dart against it and fall into the pan, and are destroyed before depositing their eggs upon the tender leaves of the growing plants." The patentees, I learn, on inquiry, have just started a factory at Russellville and are manufacturing the lamp, etc., in great quantities, and selling rights of territory. KNOX.

Congress.

In the Senate, Friday, most of the time was occupied in the discussion of the resolution declaring the right of theGovernment to pay bonds in silver. Mr. Bayard spoke in opposition thereto, and made a powerful and logical argument. Senator Allison took the floor when Senator Bayard had concluded, but yielded to Senator Hill, who spoke briefly, yet effectively, in favor of the gold standard. Senator Allison then commenced an argument in favor of remonetizing silver and of having a double standard of value, and was followed by Messrs. Dawes and Beck. Beck is opposed to resumption, paying the bonds in gold, or anything else that is honest if it is and has been supported by the republican party; still and Bayard, just as good democrats as Beck, and evidently much more sensible ones, are urgent that the nation shall be spared the shame of wholesale swindling. No vote was reached.

The House settled the Colorado contested election case by the seating of Mr. Patterson, democrat, by a vote of 116 to 116. The proposition that the case be remitted to the people came within one of being adopted, the vote standing 116 to 117. Why the democrats should have seated Patterson is hard to understand, as there is no pretence that he was elected and the democratic majority in the House is large enough for all partisan purposes; but the outrage confirms Colorado as a republican State at the next election.

The Huron Disaster.

In one of the metropolitan papers a well-known former shipmaster and able maritime writer discusses the causes, in his judgment, of the loss of the Huron, in an able and impartial manner; and we can but agree with him as to the possibility of there having been a disarrangement of her compasses. True, before leaving Hampton Roads all due precaution might have been taken, and the compasses properly adjusted by bearings or other methods; but we have several times known of a metal substance being placed near enough to the binnacle to have affected the compasses, which may have been the case at this time; or as some have suggested, electricity might have been the cause; but it is fair to believe that some local attraction was the cause of the disaster. The writer spoken of above thinks that no blame should be attached to the commanding officer of the fleet. We ask if orders are generally issued that are discretionary with the subordinate? We think not. With the provisions that government has made to notify all vessels ready for sea of the proximity of a storm, the Huron was allowed to proceed to sea while storm signals were displayed from their proper places, and the Huron within signal distance of the flag-ship. The writer says the ship was staunch in every respect. Should the jib-stay, (a very important part of her rigging,) or the sails, have blown away at that time, with no more wind and the ship so short a time from a navy yard? Either there was neglect, or a parsimonious economy used which is not asked for by government in their sea-going ships. Now a man-of-war is as liable to be wrecked, or meet with accident, as the merchant ship is. We speak in no disparagement of the officers of the navy when we say that they are not so skillful seamen or navigators as those in the merchant service; they have not the practice,—and practice makes perfect, and certainly makes the merchant sailor more efficient. It has often been remarked that during the rebellion very few causalities happened to government ships that were in the blockade and cruising along the coast. We admit it, as all of the ships had watch-officers who were from the Merchant Service, who had experience. We know of two sloops-of-war that got ashore on the Florida coast a short distance from each other and both within two weeks time, (in both cases in fair weather,) one of which had to discharge every-thing movable, even to running out the water tanks and taking them out, before she could be get off, and then had to be hove over the reef on the inside. The accident would not have happened if the commanding and navigating officers would have listened to the suggestions of some of subordinates. Both were fortunately got off, and took an important part in the capture of New Orleans. We suppose the Court of Enquiry will place the blame of the Huron's accident on some one. ***

News and Notes.

During the last few weeks there has lingered along the coast a school of codfish of unusual size and excellent quality. It is quite a remarkable event for such an abundant supply of fish to come to the shore at this season of the year, to stay so long, and, withal, for the weather to be so favorable at this season for catching them. It is quite a providence for the fishermen, so long unlucky, now to go out of a morning and come in at sunset with $10 to $15 worth of fish. Mr. William B. Parsons of Rockport, Mass., brought in one evening 1600 pounds of codfish in his dory, making a day's work of $24. During the last two months $30,000 have been paid out at Rockport and at Pigeon Cove for fresh fish from this school.

The big steamer "Massachusetts" left New York for Providence at 4:30 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, on her first special trip since her misfortune near Greenport. She arrived at Providence Friday morning. She is now a better, stronger and in every way a more seaworthy boat than when she was wrecked in October last.

A San Francisco mob assaulted a party of one hundred and fifty Chinamen, Wednesday night, robbed them and seriously injured not less than fifty of them, the police meanwhile interposing no protection. The Chinese Six-Companies have laid the matter before President Hayes, urging their helplessness without federal aid.

A procession of several thousand working men called Friday night upon the President, who spoke a few words in acknowledgment of the compliment. They then proceeded to Ford's Opera House, where a mass meeting took place. After the passage of resolutions in support of the labor movement, a committee was appointed to wait upon the President and urge him to enforce the eight hour law in the mechanical department of the government.

Barney Donahue, leader of the Erie railway strikers last summer, was arraigned in the county court at Bath, Steuben county, N. Y., Friday, and pleaded guilty to the count in the indictment against him charging him with conspiracy against trade and commerce, and was sentenced to the county jail for three months.

The brick dye-house of the York Mills in Saco, Me., was nearly destroyed by fire Wednesday night, involving a loss of $25,000. As the York Mills manufacture only colored goods, the greater portion of the work must shut down until the damage can be repaired.

The crew of barkentine John J. Marsh, Patterson, from Port Johnson, of and for Portland, which arrived at Vineyard Haven Wednesday, mutinied shortly after her arrival. At sunset the revenue steamer Gallatin, Capt. Gabrielson, arrived, assistance was rendered from her and the crew were put in irons. The Gallatin hauled schooner E. Stanley, of and for Camden, Me., off Succannessett Shoal, on the afternoon of the 12th. The schooner was not damaged and proceeded on her voyage.

The Continental Telegraph Co., capital $10,000,000, has been chartered by the State of New York. Alfred Nelson, late treasurer of the defunct Atlantic & Pacific, is president of the new line.

McMahon has come down from his high horse, and all fear of another French revolution is past.

Herr Driesback, the lion-tamer, for many years well-known for his performances in connection with Van Amburg's menagerie, died recently in the west.

At the New York hospital last week a remarkable surgical operation was performed, consisting of joining an ununited fracture of the ulna and radius of the arm. Holes were drilled through the ends of the joints, and the bones joined together by silver wires. The patient was a young lady.

The New York Board of Health has decided not to prosecute the German chemist who cremated his infant, and that it has no objection to this form of disposing of the dead under proper forms and restrictions. The President of the Board even has under consideration the regulations which are in force in the Duchy of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha in Germany, and it may be that Mr. Kircher has been an humble instrument in introducing into the metropolis this new or rather revived old form of bestowing the last offices upon the dead. We certainly believe that cremation of the dead would operate in the interests of the health of the living.—Post.

Says the Newburyport Herald: "A couple were married in this city a few days since, and not having the wherewith to set up housekeeping, accepted a home in the cabin of a fishing schooner which is hauled up for the winter. The individual who made this offer is a fisherman and makes his home on board. The bridegroom is also a fisherman and attends to his duties daily, and the trio live like turtle doves. No cards."

Scarcely a youth of seventeen is to be found among the Samoanites who is not elaborately tattoed. Candlenut ashes and water are used for coloring matter. That part of the body from the waist to the knee is covered with a variegated pattern that at a short distance resembles lacework. The operation consumes two or three months, and the operator is very exacting about his pay. When he gets half through he demands his recompense, and if it is not forthcoming he refuses to finish the work. A young man is in deep disgrace if he goes about half tattoed. The girls laugh at him, and the men scorn him. The process is very painful, and the victims are dieted while undergoing it. Some become mere skeletons before they are completed, but it is the fashion, and they are repaid by the admiring glances of the women. The gentler sex are rarely tattoed. Sometimes a delicate garter is seen twining around the leg, sometimes an armlet, or a strawberry design in the middle of the back, but such instances are rare.

The trade of Canada is taking on a better look both in imports and exports. It has perhaps suffered greater depression in proportion than our own country, and this activity is doubly welcome. The goods exported and entered for consumption during the four months ending the 31st of October, 1877, exceed by over $30,000,000 the goods exported and consumed in the same time in 1876. In imports for those months there is an increase in value of $2,215,918 over the imports for the same period last year.

A New Orleans paper tells us that a Puritanical wave has lately passed over Louisiana, some half a dozen towns in the State having refused to allow a drop of liquor to be sold; and a dozen or more parishes have ranged themselves under the Sunday-law banner and prohibit work of any kind upon the Sabbath. It is quite natural that New Orleans should be as much shocked as any part of the country by the threat of Sabbatarian influences, but it is likewise probable that a few restraints would not make society any worse in the Crescent City.—Post.

Scribner for January is to have a paper on "Dr. Schliemann at Mycenæ," illustrated by cuts of some of the most interesting objects found by the explorer, including the crown of gold, the second tomb-stone, the cow's head of silve;r the writer acknowledges the unequalled archæological value of the discoveries, but differs with Mr. Gladstone in refusing to accept some of the most important of the Doctor's theories.

Henry Ward Beecher's paper, the Christian Union, says of "St. Nicholas," a propos of its being "interesting without being vicious, good without being stupid, and refined without being priggish:" "the question, 'Will live, irrepressible children read such a periodical?' is answered in the affirmative every month by at least a quarter of a million of girls and boys, whose saintliness is not all times apparent. There is, therefore, reason to believe that there are at least five million more little Americans into whose hands this excellent periodical should find its way."

New Hampshire Items.

The New Hampshire State Grange holds its annual meeting at Manchester on the 18th, at which the election of officers for the next two years will take place.

James McArdle of Dover, while walking on the Boston and Maine track between Great Falls and Rollinsford, was killed Thursday evening.

Detective Moses Sargent of Boston and Sheriff Rice of New Hampshire passed through Washington, D. C., Thursday evening, with George Hamilton, the alleged murderer of A. C. Foster of Keene in 1876.

George W. Nesmith of Franklin, Trustee of Dartmouth College, has resigned the Presidency of the State Agricultural College. He has been settling old accounts and transacting other business respecting the Agricultural College, which will be made public soon. There is a strong feeling for a removal.

The Bank Commissioners have completed their investigation of the Wolfeboro' Savings Bank, and the loss to the depositors will reach nearly, if not quite, twenty per cent. The deficiency between the face of the assets and the liabilities is nearly $2000, which amount the Treasurer, Joseph L. Avery, will personally make up. The loss to depositors is larger than was expected.

Edward L. Jordan, the very fast young man of Dover who has fulfilled the predictions of the wiseacres by running out his fortune and absconding to escape his creditors, married a young woman with a snug little property (over ten thousand dollars in cash) about a year ago, and at once began to play the part of a rich young man. He bought a hotel at Saco, Me., but was obliged to leave the State for violating the liquor law. He then returned to Dover, built an expensive house, bought horses and carriages, and was beginning to live in style, when his wife's money gave out, and he fled from the wrath to come. It has since transpired that he is a forger, so it is possible that he may find his way into the State prison, where he belongs. He has probably gone to Nevada, where his father is living. His wife is left penniless.

The various military organizations of Manchester will be inspected by Inspector-General D. J. Vaughan as follows: Head Guards, Dec. 17; Straw Rifles, Dec. 18; Sheridan Guards, Dec 26; War Veterans, Dec. 27; Battery, Dec. 28; Amoskeag Veterans, Jan. 16.

—When a girl begins to take an interest in a young man's cravat, it is a sign she does not love him as a sister.

KNIGHTS of PYTHIAS

FAIR.

Announcement

EXTRAORDINARY!

A special meeting of the Executive Committee was held on Tuesday evening, in accordance with the following telegrams:

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Dec. 11, 1877.

To Henry Peyser, Young's Hotel, Boston: Public pressure will, I think, compel us to issue one thousand more season tickets on the same basis of presents as first. DR. S. C. WHITTIER.

BOSTON, MASS., Dec. 11, 1877.

To Dr. S. G. Whittier: Cause a meeting of the executive committee to be held at your office at eight o'clock. Will be there. HENRY PEYSER.

After mature deliberation concerning the above it was decided not to issue any more season tickets, but in order to comply with the public demand as far as in our power, it was unanimously decided to add to the Grand Fair, not with a view to make money, but that the public may have the benefit of this new feature. It was voted to present to the holders of One Thousand Certificates,

Another New Feature

250 RICH GIFTS,

and that the value of the Presents to be distributed among Certificate holders be

One Hundred Dollars Greater

than the value of Ticket holders' Presents. Also that the Treasurer be authorized to immediately issue one thousand certificates in the distribution of these magnificent gifts, entitling the holders to admission to the Fair on Saturday evening, Dec. 22d. These are from the distributions of the gifts awarded the Season Ticket holders. We enumerate a few of the gifts:

Entirely separate and distinct

The leading prize will be an Exact Duplicate of the elegant SILVER SERVICE of nine pieces now on exhibition in Rundlett's window; one CASE OF SILVER (42 pieces) and numerous other cases; Coleridge's Ancient Mariner, illustrated by Dore; objects of Art and utility,—in fact every prize will be of real value.

☞ In order to dispose of these certificates at once and satisfy the demand of a generous public, we make this, the most liberal inducement ever offered at an affair of this kind.

It was also decided to hold the Fair five (5) evenings instead of four (4), as was first intended, and that Season Ticket holders be admitted with out extra charge on the additional evening.

These certificates can now be obtained at the bookstore of Mercer Goodrich, at the drug stores of J. Dwight Dunclit, W. E. Preston and David Kimball & Co., at the clothing store of Peyser & Kennedy.

THE CITY.

Collector Howard was called away to Marlow on Friday, by a telegram announcing the death of his father.

The Festival of the Sunday school of St. John's church will be held in Franklin Hall on the evening of St. John's Day, Thursday, Dec. 27th.

Rev. Mr. Hubbell will commence a series of lectures, at the North church, Sunday evening, upon "Bunyon's Pilgrim's Progress." All are cordially invited.

Gentlemen wishing to attend a school to learn fancy and other dances will please send their address to P. O. Box 1553. Please apply within a week, as the number is to be limited.

Mr. Channing Folsom, formerly principal of the Haven school, and latterly principal of the Belknap school in Dover, also School Superintendent of the south district in that city, has resigned to accept a position as teacher in the Elliot School, Boston.

Miss Amanda Pickering, of Newington, who has taught school in this city and later in Dover, and some weeks ago passed an excellent examination for a position as teacher of a Portsmouth school again, which she declined to accept after winning, has secured a good position as teacher in a Boston school.

Harper's Magazine for January is published, and ready for delivery at Myers' and Moses Brother'r bookstores. This number is fully up to the average of this periodical in merit—praise enough for any magazine—containing one hundred and five illustrations, with stories, history, poetry, science, art, and the ever popular "editor's drawer,"—variety and quality to suit all tastes except depraved ones, which must go somewhere else to be catered for.

POLICE COURT.

Friday, Dec. 14th; Batchelder, J.

George Williams, a tramp, (one of twenty-four who occupied the police station Thursday night,) was sent to jail for thirty days and ordered to pay $6.90 costs, for stealing a pair of rubbers from the store of Joseph Pettigrew.

Ida Griswold withdrew her appeal from the sentence imposed Thursday, and contributed $11.90 to the treasury.

WHAT ABOUT THE RINK?

To thoughtful and indulgent parents and guardians of children, and ladies and gentlemen generally:—

Now that the season for drowning by breaking through the ice is set in—the papers having mentioned three or more fatal accidents during the past week—the question is often asked "What about the Rink?" The answer is this: By dint of the personal efforts of one individual the Rink has been put in perfect repair and much improved during the summer, promising a complete success till the spring. The house is cosy and comfortable, and everything is most attractive; a faithful man is ready to take daily care of it, keep the ice smooth and cleared of snow, the house warm and the lamps lighted in the short winter afternoons. The pleasure, health and exhilaration accruing from the exercise of skating are too well known to need comment. If there are fifty applicants for tickets the Rink will invite its patrons to enjoy fine skating as soon as the weather permits. Tickets $3 each; for two tickets in the same family, $5. Those wishing tickets will apply at once at Mr. Myers' book store, Congress Block.

RAILROAD DAY.

Not a few of the excursionists to Boston, "railroad day," found their stock not good for a free ride, they having stock of the Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire instead of in the Massachusetts corporation; there was some embarrassment and some growling,—some paid the fare demanded and some didn't,—but nobody was turned off the train, so far as we have heard, on account of their stock not being of the right stamp. As usual, a large number of the impromptu "stockholders" stopped over a night in Boston, returning next day; but—not as usual, heretofore—they were all obliged to pay full fare home, the conductors being inexorable. "Orders are orders." In vain was stock of the most orthodox brand stuck under the conductors' noses; they wouldn't look at it, but demanded $1.70 from each unlucky passenger. A goodly sum was handed over, but not a few of the "stockholders" had spent all their money in Boston and were obliged to promise to pay up after reaching home, on receiving which promise the persecuting conductor would pass to the next victim. There will be less stock in the New Hampshire corporation produced, next year, and probably no stop-over passengers at all.

On railroad day curiosity led a gentleman of this city to visit Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s store, in Boston, and while looking around the first floor he counted one hundred and eleven persons from this city intent on making purchases. Immediately repairing to R. H. White & Co.'s, the same party counted sixty-eight Portsmouth folks "buying things." In this connection we may add that a lady from this city carried two good-sized empty trunks to Boston on that day, wherein to pack her purchases. Comment on this is unnecessary.—Times.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS FAIR.

PORTSMOUTH, Dec. 14th.

To the Executive Committee of Knights of Pythias Fair:—Gentlemen:

The unusually rapid sale of your limited number of season tickets for your Fair has left many of our friends unsupplied; they are buying "certificates" in your separate distribution of gifts, entitling them to admittance on the 5th or extra night of the Fair, only.

As you have tendered free admission to season ticket holders for that extra evening of the Fair, we should like for you to extend your liberality to certificate holders, and admit them during the Fair. As the distribution of prizes of season ticket holders and of certificate holders are to be entirely distinct, we do not think it will conflict either with your interests or the interest of season ticket holders in the Fair, to comply with our wish to accord certificate holders full admission. Respectfully, etc.,

Jerome C. Butler, A. T. Pickering, Elbridge Prior, John Laighton, Thomas Kennedy, Jr., Wm. P. Walker, J. D. Rundlett, C. H. Sides, J. K. Simpson, J. H. Emery, J. A. Stevens, and thirty-seven other season ticket holders.

PORTSMOUTH, Dec. 14th.

In reference to the above communication from the season ticket holders, the executive committee of K. of P. Fair decided not to be behind the season ticket holders in liberality, and heartily comply with their request. Therefore certificate holders will be admitted to the Fair during its continuance, without extra charge.

S. C. Whittier, M. D., Henry Poyser, William O. Sides, H. Fisher Eldredge, Executive Committee.

THE VICINITY.

The examination of Joshua P. Drake and sons, of North Hampton, for assault on Freeman Drake, with intent to kill, has been postponed to Jan. 4th. The injured man is improving.

The triangular fight at Dover for the postmastership between the present incumbent, Geo. W. Colbath, Major Wm. H. Trickey and Mr. Joshua R. Varney, was ended on Thursday by President Hayes sending the latter's appointment to the Senate. Had all Mr. Hayes' appointments been equally judicious there would have been less growling.

—A puzzled pupil—A bewildered eyesight.

—Brigham Young's grave is watched constantly by Mormons living for the purpose in tents near the spot. Their vesper song is "We're tenting to-night on the old scamp ground."

—One day last week the Buffalo poormaster published a card asking for a home by adoption of a bright little girl of eight years, who had been deserted by her parents in that city. There were fifty-three applications for the waif and she was placed in a comfortable home. Subsequently it transpired that the child's grandfather, a physician named Ayer, lived in Detroit, and on being communicated with, expressed the greatest joy at hearing of the little one's whereabouts. He had lost track of her mother, his daughter, whose second husband, the child's step-father, had thus earned the little girl on the world. She will be at once returned to her grandfather's home.

—Bishop Clark of Rhode Island always will have his joke, and it's always worth having, too. Once upon a time his brother was visiting him, and the good bishop showed him to his bed-room, in due course. "Good night! I'll put my boots outside the door," said his brother. "All right, Sam," replied the bishop; "nobody'll touch 'em." By the way, that same brother of Bishop Clark was one of the wittiest men alive. It runs in the family. He once went to see one of his parishioners, a lady with a prodigious family, which had recently been increased. As he rose to leave, the lady stopped him with: "But you haven't seen my last baby." "No," he quickly replied, "and I never expect to!" Then he fled.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are so wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is neatly applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur
Liniments.

They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.

The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures than any medicines combined. They have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle human or brute, which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

Honey

To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and infant children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castorir is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.

COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.

MESSRS. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.:

I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.

Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

NATURAL SELECTION.

Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and prosperity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported feels up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery

By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness, Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.

Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or when blood-poisoned, scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness," In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.

The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.

As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness and Fullness of Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sensitive influence. Age does not impair the prompt, yet mild action of these pills. Some of the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR
O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is prized for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH
Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by
SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,
MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here tonight all right. I don't know that I should have done it if had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches, Sprays, and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.
Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 15, 1876.

A Boy's Composition.

Ma is my mother; I am her son. Ma's name is Mrs. Shrimp, and Mr. Shrimp is her husband. Pa is my father. My name is George Washington Shrimp. Therefore pa's name is Shrimp; so is ma's. My ma has a ma. She is my grandma. She is mother-in-law to pa. My pa says mother-in-laws ought to be voted. I like grandma better than pa does. She brings me ten-cent stamps and bolivars. She don't bring any to pa. Maybe that's why he don't like her. Aunt Jerusha is my aunt. When pa was a little boy, she was his sister. I like little sisters. Dicky Mopps has a little sister. Her name is Rose. I take her out riding on my sled. Aunt Jerusha don't like her. She calls her that Mopps girl. I think Aunt Jerusha ought to be ashamed of herself. Aunt Jerusha lives with us. Sometimes I think ma would rather have her live with somebody else. I asked Aunt Jerusha once why she didn't marry somebody and set up for herself. She said that many a man wanted to marry her, but that while poor Susan Jane was in such a state of health, she couldn't think of leaving. "Besides," she said, "what would become of your papa?" Aunt Jerusha has a state of health, too. On washing day she has a headache, and does her head up in brown paper and vinegar; and I have to make toast at the kitchen fire. I make some for myself, too. Aunt Jerusha says that nobody knows what she has done for that boy. That boy's me again. I told pa what she said. Pa said it was just so. Nobody did know. Ma said Aunt Jerusha means well, and that she is pa's dear sister. I don't see why that's any reason she should always scold me when I eat cabbage with a knife.

High Heeled Shoes.

In descending stairs or steep declivities while wearing high-heeled shoes, which throws the weight of the body upon the front part of the foot, the extra effort made for the purpose of retaining the body within the centre of gravity produces a direct strain upon these tendons, causing rupture or stretching of the annular ligaments sufficient to allow them to be displaced. It is no wonder, then, that fashionable women waddle in a most ungraceful manner when they attempt to walk. They destroy their comfort to follow a ridiculous fashion, and acquire an ambling and undignified movement. People do things to follow fashion that their good sense would cause them to be ashamed of under any other circumstances. Ladies wearing such shoes are often obliged, for safety, to go down stairs backward; and they can be seen every day descending the stoops of our fashionable residences in this manner, making pretense of talking to some imaginary person in the front door as an excuse to hide their awkward movements.—Dr. Carbally.

All Alike.

There is a picture in a recent Punch, in which a stout lady is indignantly observing to a person in front of her at a railway station waiting-room: "Are you aware, sir, that this room is for ladies?" The party addressed, turning around, revealed a pretty young girl, but dressed in an ulster and felt hat of the kind worn by gentlemen. The mistake was quite natural, as was also one made this morning. A young lady, similarly attired, was passing down George street, on her way to Dartmouth, when she dropped a gauntlet, and an urchin who just came along shouted after her: "Here, mister, yer lost yer glove." The surprise of the youth when the fair owner turned to get her property, was ludicrous.—Halifax Recorder.

—Theatre parties are the rage with some of the New Yorkers. Whole "blocks" of seats are taken for a certain number of persons acquainted with each other, and they make themselves very much at home. But there is some complaint that they make themselves too much at home, and annoy others in the audience by their exceeding freedom.

—It is related that one evening when Miss Cushman was playing in Washington, President and Mrs. Grant entered the theatre during the second act, just when the actress had started to "come on," and the orchestra, at that moment, began to play "Hail to the Chief." "Duffield, Duffield," she cried, "what is that noise about? The orchestra is composed of fools, I verily believe." "It is the President," said poor Mr. Duffield. "And suppose it is!" said she angrily. "Mr. Ford has given orders that the orchestra play 'Hail to the Chief.'" "Hail to the mischief. I would not stop a performance for the best man living."

Lively Times.

The Senate, in executive session, Friday, finished much more work than has been usual of late. The session was the scene of a passage between Conkling and Gordon, which caused a sensation among the Senators. Mr. Gordon was bitterly opposing the confirmation of Wade, a republican, as Collector of the Third District of Georgia. Mr. Thurman interrupted to say that if the relations of the North to the South were to be passed in review at length on every confirmation, business could not be expedited; at this Mr. Conkling and several others spoke out, as is usual in a session where business is pressing, "Go on with the calendar." At this Mr. Gordon exclaimed in a very offensive manner: "The Senator from New York is issuing orders to the Chair." Mr. Conkling, after asking Mr. Gordon to repeat his exclamation, replied: "If the Senator from Georgia means to say that I issue orders to the chair, he says what is not true, and lest the Senator should not understand me, I repeat that if he means to intimate that I issue orders to the chair, he says what is not true." This was spoken with great emphasis by Mr. Conkling. Mr. Gordon retorted, "This is a matter that can be settled outside of this chamber." Mr. Conkling replied, "Yes, or we can settle it now," and he then again repeated his first remark to Gordon, and the latter only said it was a matter to settle outside the Senate chamber. Messrs. Thurman and Hamlin and other Senators undertook to smooth the matter over and effect an immediate reconciliation, saying that Mr. Conkling's exclamation, "Go on with the calendar," was a usual one, and there was no cause for Gordon's feeling. But both Gordon and Conkling sat still under these attempts to smooth the matter over and said nothing. There are wild rumors as to a hostile meeting, but friends of neither party seem to have any clear idea of what is to be the sequel of the row. Blaine and Ben Hill also had a lively passage. Mr. Hill protested against the Senator's interfering where those from the State interested were agreed. Mr. Blaine desired to know of him if he helped the Senator from New York when he was needing help of the same kind Mr. Hill now claimed. The controversy was brief but pointed, and noteworthy from this being the third opportunity Blaine has taken to help Conkling in executive session.

The Eastern War.

The Turks have made another tremendous effort to retrieve their falling fortunes. They attacked Metchka six times, but were repulsed with great loss, and withdrew to their original positions after a seven hours' fight. Three thousand Russians were killed.

Turkey has sent a circular note to the treaty powers of 1871, asking their good offices with Russia in the interests of peace.

News and Notes.

Fred. Blaisdell, son of Hiram Blaisdell, of Orland Ridge, Me., on Wednesday, while fooling with a revolver in the house, accidentally discharged it, the ball entering the side of his little sister, aged seven years. She died in a few minutes.

An unknown lady was taken ill in the waiting room at the Northern depot in Lowell, Mass., Friday evening, and died in twenty minutes. She was well dressed, and wore a diamond ring.

About two thousand live geese, chickens and ducks were captured Friday in New York, by the police, in cellars, basements, bed-rooms, stores and yards and areas in the thickly settled part of the city, all owned by Irish people.

The Brazilian Government has agreed to subsidize a line of steamers belonging to John Roach between New York and Rio Janeiro, and the service will commence in March.

An Havana letter mentions the capture, on the 25th ult., of a valuable Spanish military train, composed of 106 ox carts, 800 men being in charge. The Spaniards were completely demoralized and became panic-stricken, their commanding officer having fallen pierced by bullets early in the battle. Overwhelmed by numbers, after fighting desperately, the Spaniards who fled were made prisoners, and the whole train captured by the enemy. The attacking force was under the leadership of Gen. Gomez. The capture is one of the most important made at a single blow since the war commenced.

Maryland is to have a convention in Baltimore on the 20th and 21st inst., to consider the tramp nuisance, especially as an annoyance to farmers. Hon. Montgomery Blair will preside.

The new opposition telegraph company legally organized and chartered under the name of the Continental Telegraph Company has a capital of $10,000,000. Five wires are to be built to Philadelphia from New York this winter, and as subscriptions for stock are received lines will be extended in all directions. Alfred Nelson, formerly Treasurer of the Atlantic & Pacific Telegraph Company, is president of this new company, and James G. Smith is superintendent.

The letter mail brought by the steamer Andes, which arrived at New York Thursday from Kingston, Jamaica, was found, on examination at the post office, to have been badly damaged on the voyage by rats, a large number of the letters having been gnawed by the destructive rodents to such an extent as to render them almost unreadable.

Joseph King, of Lawrenceville, Ind., was shot Thursday night by his son, who is fourteen years old and was hired by his mother to do the shooting. The wounded man lay dying in the road beside his house all night, begging for water, his wife and son taking no notice of his appeals. The pair have been arrested.

Hon. Richard McCormick is to be Commissioner General of the United States at the Paris Exposition.

Ann Carey, of Lynn, Mass., was arrested Friday afternoon for inhumanly beating a little orphan girl named Day, who had been given in her charge by the Sisters of Charity of Boston. The little girl's nose had been broken, her hair pulled out by the roots, and her back, neck and ears shockingly burned with a red hot iron. The child has been taken charge of by the police, and is receiving medical attendance.

The Governor of Texas has called on the President for troops to quell a Mexican raid and insurrection at El Paso.

Congress adjourned on Saturday, over the holidays.

New Hampshire Items.

Locomotive Engineer Note of the Nashua & Rochester railroad recently met with a somewhat singular accident. He runs the freight train that leaves Rochester before daylight, and when near Lee, and running his engine at a good rate of speed, he was suddenly struck by some object which knocked him back upon his seat rest. His face was badly cut and bled profusely. Investigation of the singular affair revealed that a partridge had been frightened at the train or attracted by the head light, and had flown through the double-plate glass window, cutting the partridge directly in two parts, one of which, with pieces of glass, struck Mr. Note in the face.

The wind of Friday took from the Catholic Church of Newmarket a portion of its roof and carried it some thirty rods, striking the Baptist Church with such force as to break two large holes in the side wall.

Political.

Since the Cincinnati Convention, all sorts of anecdotes bring Mr. Blaine and Don Cameron across each other's social paths. The last quotes a remark from the young Senator to Mr. Blaine, that Postmaster Fairman, of Philadelphia, was turned out "not because he voted for you, but because he lied to us." "Hamlin says," said Mr. Blaine, that if all the men from Pennsylvania who lied at Cincinnati were turned out of office there'd be d——d few left." "Did Hamlin dare to allude to me?" was Senator Cameron's hasty reply. "He didn't allude to you—by name," said Mr. Blaine, and the remark seemed to bring the conversation to a full stop.—Wash. Cor. Utica Herald.

Senator Butler has gone to South Carolina, and seems to be working to have proceedings against Patterson dropped, but Governor Hampton is outspoken against any such compounding with felony, and declares that he won't have anything to do with it.

Referring to the vote on the confirmation of the New York custom house appointments, the New York World says: "The republican Senators for the most part voted squarely against their own Administration, a few only possessing the courage to be loyal to the President whom they moved heaven and earth—to say nothing of the other place—to put into office a year ago. To be candid, the democracy does not present a more imposing spectacle. On a question involving the supremacy of one of two republican factions they were without a plan. In a matter involving the partial divorce of Federal office from personal and partisan politics in this State, they were without a principle. In a matter involving intricate considerations of party stratagem they were without a scheme."

—A young lady in Clinton, Iowa, sent twenty-five cents and a postage stamp in reply to an advertisement of "How to make an impression," and received for an answer, "Sit down on a pan of dough."

—A conductor on the Winona and St. Peter Railroad recently missed a brakeman from his train, and believing he had fallen from the train and been killed, telegraphed to headquarters. He was ordered to back his train to the next station, and look for the body. He did so without success; but on the return trip, passing through a passenger car, he discovered the missing man stretched across two seats and fast asleep.

—"Come, pa," said a youngster just home from school, "how many peas are there in a pint?" "How can anybody tell that, you foolish boy?" "I can, every time. If you don't believe it, try me." "Well, how many are there, then?" Just one p in every pint, pa."

Announcement

EXTRAORDINARY!

A special meeting of the Executive Committee was held on Tuesday evening, in accordance with the following telegrams:

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Dec. 11, 1877.

To Henry Peyser, Young's Hotel, Boston: Public pressure will, I think, compel us to issue one thousand more season tickets on the same basis of presents as first. DR. S. C. WHITTIER.

BOSTON, MASS., Dec. 11, 1877.

To Dr. S. C. Whittier: Cause a meeting of the executive committee to be held at your office at eight o'clock. Will be there. HENRY PEYSER.

After mature deliberation concerning the above it was decided not to issue any more season tickets, but in order to comply with the public demand as far as in our power, it was unanimously decided to add to the Grand Fair, not with a view to make money, but that the public may have the benefit of this new feature. It was voted to present to the holders of One Thousand Certificates,

Another New Feature

250 RICH GIFTS,

and that the value of the Presents to be distributed among Certificate holders be

One Hundred Dollars Greater

than the value of Ticket holders' Presents. Also that the Treasurer be authorized to immediately issue one thousand certificates in the distribution of these magnificent gifts, entitling the holders to admission to the Fair on Saturday evening, Dec. 22d. These are from the distributions of the gifts awarded the Season Ticket holders. We enumerate a few of the gifts:

Entirely separate and distinct

The leading prize will be an Exact Duplicate of the elegant SILVER SERVICE of nine pieces now on exhibition in Rundlett's window; one CASE OF SILVER (42 pieces) and numerous other cases; Coleridge's Ancient Mariner, illustrated by Dore; objects of Art and utility,—in fact every prize will be of real value.

☞ In order to dispose of these certificates at once and satisfy the demand of a generous public, we make this, the most liberal inducement ever offered at an affair of this kind.

It was also decided to hold the Fair five (5) evenings instead of four (4), as was first intended, and that Season Ticket holders be admitted with out extra charge on the additional evening.

These certificates can now be obtained at the bookstore of Mercer Goodrich, at the drug stores of J. Dwight Dundlet, W. R. Preston and David Kimball & Co., at the clothing store of Peyser & Kennedy.

THE CITY.

The United States Senate on Friday confirmed Alfred F. Howard, Esq., as Collector of this District for another term. That's proper.

Rev. James Thurston, of Dover, formerly pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in this city, will preach at Faith Home this (Monday) evening at half-past seven o'clock.

The free evening school opens in the State street ward-room Tuesday evening at seven o'clock. Sessions will be held each Tuesday and Friday evening; pupils must be over fourteen years old, and in circumstances which prohibit their attending the public schools.

There will be a hearing before the County Commissioners at eleven o'clock this forenoon, upon the appeal from the decision of the Mayor and Aldermen concerning the laying out of the proposed extension of Jackson Hill street to North street. The hearing will take place at the Common Council room.

The writer of the notice of the skating Rink in Saturday's issue made an error in the scale of price for tickets. The prices are $3, single tickets; $4 for two tickets, $5 for three tickets, and so on, diminishing the price of tickets in proportion to the number bought, provided they are bought by one family,—Miss Morgan's boarding scholars considered as her family.

CHRISTMAS!

WHERE TO BUY THE BEST ARTICLES.

Now that Christmas, with its merry festivals and social and family reunions is close at hand, we have appointed a committee of one to see what preparation has been made in this city for carrying out the will of his beneficent majesty, Santa Claus. We would gladly appoint a committee "with power" to accompany Santa on his rounds, see that he goes down every chimney and fills every stocking, and make sure that everybody has a suitable Christmas dinner, and that everybody gives everybody else a present; but as this is a little beyond our jurisdiction, we must be content to let our energetic committee's duty stop at telling the people where they can get the best of everything, whether to eat, wear or give away, at the lowest prices. As the observance of Christmas includes an extra good dinner, and a large proportion of the people of this city live almost wholly upon victuals and drink, our committee begins with the grocers, as follows:

We will commence with Charles E. Laighton & Son, No. 5 Exchange building. Mr. Laighton, senior, is one of the veteran merchants of this city now in business. At the age of fifteen he entered the grocery store of Ebenezer Wentworth, where the Rockingham Bank now is; was afterward with Joshua Hall, who was also a grocer; then with Thomas J. Penhallow, who dealt in hardware. In 1822 Mr. Laighton commenced business for himself on the corner of State and Washington streets, and in 1835 sold out to John Harratt and went into the wholesale West India goods trade with J. H. & T. Hall, under the firm of Hall & Laighton. In 1840 he withdrew from the wholesale business, and bought out the stock of William Goodrich, with the stand and business, where he is now located. His upright dealing and strict attention to business have placed him high on the list of the respected merchants of Portsmouth, and his customers of years ago are among his customers of to-day. At this store can be found all of the best quality of articles required for family use. The firm keep on hand all of the varieties of fancy groceries, such as canned goods in meats, vegetables and preserves, also the favorite sauces, pickles, and salad oils; he also has the superior brands of wines, and in fact everything that is necessary to help make up the Christmas dinner, in the grocery line.

Butler & Laighton, No. 1 Market square, are worthy successors to William Simes & Co. and William A. Peirce, who formerly carried on the grocery business in this building. They have placed themselves on the list with those who are acknowledged as the first-class dealers. Their assortment of family groceries is large and of the superior qualities. They make specialties of Mediterranean productions, and freshly packed canned goods,—such as corn, peaches, plums, pears, etc.; olive oil for the table, and especially essential for salads; potted ham and tongue, anchovy paste, and all the various condiments necessary for family use. Superior brands of wine for the well, sick, or convalescent, and any or all of the articles connected with a grocery store can be found there.

Henry F. Gerrish, Nos. 14 and 14 1-2 Market square, has been in the grocery trade for thirty-eight years. He commenced as clerk in the store of Hon. William Simes in 1839, and was taken in as partner in 1844. In April, 1859, he started in business at his present stand, which was formerly occupied by Mr. Stephen Pearse. Purchasers at this store can rely on getting first-class goods at a fair price; but Mr. Gerrish has never dealt in goods which are "cheap" only because they are of poor quality or adulterated, and such goods must be sought elsewhere. He keeps constantly on hand a large stock of the standard groceries and an excellent assortment of canned goods, in which are classed meats, fruits of the various kinds, olive-oil, chowchow, pickles etc., both of foreign and American preparation, imported and native wines of the approved brands, and everything in this line essential for family use.

J. W. P. Carter, Nos. 10 and 12 Daniel street, has been in the grocery business several years, and won a good name for upright dealing and attention to his customers. He keeps on hand a well selected stock of groceries, and besides his grocery business does a lively trade in glass and crockery ware, and also the various articles used in housekeeping, of which he has a very great variety. Mr. Carter is always pleased to see his friends, and will insure them as good bargains as can be obtained elsewhere.

Having notified the people of the best places in the city to get just what is paid for in the grocery line, our committee has turned his attention to their outward adornment and comfort, and notifies them where they can most profitably trade for clothing, as follows:

William P. Walker, No. 8 Market square, bought out Alonzo Brown (who was then keeping in the Gray block, on Congress street,) in September, 1848, and in March, 1849, moved to his present place of business. Mr. Walker is one out of (we believe) only three or four in that vicinity whose sign has stood uninterruptedly for the past twenty-five or thirty years. His stock of woollen goods of both foreign and American manufacture, is well selected and adapted to custom trade, which he strictly adheres to. His assortment of the various articles of furnishing goods for gentlemen's wear includes all of the most desirable styles, and those wishing to make a present to themselves or their friends will find here just what is wanted. He makes a specialty of army and navy regulation uniforms, and warrants satisfaction in all cases.

Charles E. Myers & Co.'s, No. 3 Bow street, stands on the list as being one of the oldest tailoring establishments in the city. Mr. Myers having been in business thirty-five years. He learned his trade with Mr. Benjamin Cheever; afterward kept the well known institution, "The Sailors' Home," and in connection with that, "The Sailors' Clothing Rooms;" in later years he has had associated with him Mr. Charles E. Simpson. In connection with their custom work and an assortment of woollens suitable for that trade, they keep on hand an immense stock of ready-made clothing, including everything needed for the sailor's outfit. In what are called furnishing goods they have a great variety, and persons wanting coats, pants, vests, gloves, hosiery, underwear, cardigan jackets, etc., can purchase them there at the lowest prices.

John E. Ham & Co., No. 27 Market street, started in business in this city in 1852, in the old Congress block, where they remained a few years and then moved into Market street; not having there sufficient accommodations for their increased trade they again returned to Congress street, to the Gray block, and remained there a number of years. Within a short time they have again returned to Market street, where they have all of the necessary facilities. They carry an extensive stock of woollens from the best manufacturers, and also have a large assortment of gloves, hosiery, neckties, etc. They can furnish at the lowest price all that is needful for gentlemen's wear, from an elegant coat to a neat-fitting pair of kid gloves.

John Malsbenden, under Franklin Hall on Fleet street, keeps on hand a first-rate assortment of woollen goods for the custom trade. He has succeeded in establishing himself as one of the tailors of Portsmouth, takes pride in giving good fits, and those who patronize him will be sure to be well pleased with his work. He also alters, cleans and repairs garments, in good style and at reasonable rates.

Cynical people may consider it incongruous to mention ladies' bonnets and hats as "clothing," but we don't know where else to put them. John M. Tebbetts, No. 14 Market street, has a most desirable line of millinery goods. It requires artistic skill and taste to combine with effect the great variety of materials and colors that are requisite for the make up of the different styles of hats and bonnets, and it is curious to see what beautiful patterns are produced at this establishment from a little heap of silk and flowers. We advise all who intend giving Christmas presents in this line to give Mr. Tebbets a call.

Assuming that after a man is well filled with a good dinner, and warmly clad in a neat fitting suit of clothes, he will feel inclined to show his good will toward others by presenting generous tokens of regard to his friends, our committee briefly mentions the best places to purchase such tokens, commencing with the jewelry stores:

C. E. & J. E. Dixon, No. 7 Congress street, are celebrating the holidays by an exhibition of useful and ornamental articles that are a feast to the eye.—there is always a charm in gold or silver, whether in the shape of coin or worked into the innumerable fancies that decorate the table or form a part of the costume of a lady or gentleman,—silver tea sets, dishes for fruit and cake, dessert spoons, gold lined goblets, watches in gold and silver, jewelry in sets, chains and lockets; and in rings one seldom sees so fine an assortment. A present selected from their stock will be an inducement for a happy return of the absent one. This store can claim to be the oldest stand in the city used for one special branch of business. In the early part of the present century it was occupied by Mr. Robert Gray, who included in his stock of silver ware and jewelry a line of military goods; Mr. Gray was succeeded by Mr. Alfred Bennett, who sold out to Mr. Gershom F. Melcher; and after his decease the business and stock were purchased by the present occupants, the Messrs. Dixon.

Hutchinson & Connell, No. 10 Market square, have one of the best selected stocks of jewelry and silver ware ever exhibited in this city. There are few finer displays than that produced by a well selected assortment of gold, silver and plated goods, and it is a pleasure to visit this store and examine the many elegant designs, and the superior workmanship of the numerous articles which they offer to the Christmas trade, silver tea sets, cake dishes, water pitchers, card receivers, spoons of every kind, knives and forks, mugs, gold and silver watches. Sets of jewelry, rings, etc., are temptingly displayed and will not fail to find admirers. The store occupied by this firm has for many years been used for the sale of jewelry. The name of "John Abbott, Jr., Gold and Silver Smith, 10 Congress street," is in the first Directory, published in 1821. The successors of Mr. Abbott (in rotation) were Mr. Charles T. Emery, Hutchinson & Rowell, John H. Hutchinson, and the present firm, Hutchinson & Connell.

AN IMPORTANT SUIT.

A bill in equity has been brought in the Supreme Court for this County in the name of Joseph H. Converse of Cambridge, in the County of Middlesex and State of Massachusetts, the Somersworth Savings Bank, at Great Falls, James W. Emery of Portsmouth, in his individual capacity and as administrator de bonis non with the will annexed of Albert L. Jones, deceased, Nathaniel Wells and William R. Burleigh of Great Falls, against the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway Railroad, the Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire, and the Eastern Railroad Company, claiming that the plaintiffs are holders and owners, as purchasers for a valuable consideration, of the bonds or obligations of the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway Railroad, issued by it and delivered to the Eastern Railroad Company, the latter having guaranteed the payment of said bonds and coupons, then put in the market and sold them, and received the proceeds to its own use. The suit is brought in behalf of above complainants and all other holders and owners of such bonds purchased as before stated who may choose to become parties to the suit and participate in the expense incident thereto.

The bill sets forth at some length that the Eastern Railroad claims that the P., G. F. & C. R. R. were indebted to their Company in the sum of $1,000,000, and these bonds were issued to pay that indebtedness. Of this $514,000 (which the complainants are informed or say they believe is much more than the amount that was owed the Eastern Railroad Co.) were issued, and the E. R. R. Co. now holds $486,000 of these bonds without having paid any consideration therefor, and the complainants ask to have them cancelled. The complainants say that of the $514,000 they own more than $90,000. They also contend that under the lease of the Conway Railroad the E. R. R. Co., who are the assignees for the E. R. R. in N. H., are bound to apply the income of the P., G. F. & C. R. R. to the payment of the interest on these bonds, and that a proper sum should be set apart for the purpose. The bill prays for the appointment of receivers, and that the E. R. R. Co. shall be decreed to pay the interest now due, and set apart sufficient sums to meet accruing interest and for general relief.

The question as to the liability of the Eastern Railroad in N. H., under the Conway lease, will now be determined. If the E. R. R. in N. H. can obtain a legal decision as to just where it stands, whether it is bound as principal, or simply acted as the agent of the E. R. R. Co., in making the lease of the Conway and the Portsmouth & Dover Railroads, its value can be determined. If its lease with the E. R. R. Co. is held to have become invalid, and it can hold the other leases, it may by the continuation of a few miles of road turn all its business upon the Boston & Maine line. The Eastern road, with its fifteen millions of debt, instead of having a length of main line (as the report states) of 179 miles, would then have 41 miles of main line and 80 miles of branches upon which to pay over a half million of dollars annual interest.

The Conway bondholders, like the Eastern in New Hampshire stockholders, say to the E. R. R. Co., "if you wish to use our property you must pay us a rental," and they have confidence that the Courts will order this to be done; and the bondholders of the Eastern road will be far more sure of their future interest by hastening a solution of this question than by any of the law's delays which postpone but do not avert a result.

The result of this last suit will be looked forward to with much interest. There is a large number of these bonds, purchased in good faith by many banks and individuals in New Hampshire, and in the belief that it was a sound local investment. That the property can be made to pay the interest there can be no doubt, and the hope is an early solution of the present difficulties, and that the investment may be placed on a sound basis.

What Does It Mean?

The Bland Silver Bill provides that any man possessing ninety-two cents worth of silver may take it to the U. S. Mint, and receive for it a silver coin which shall be legal tender for one dollar. What does this mean? It means:

That Senator Jones can compel the people of the United States to pay him for the silver from his silver mines eight cents on the dollar more than any one else will give him for it.

That every man who owes $100 may pay $92, and demand a receipt in full.

That every working man who has $100 in a savings bank must be content to take $92 for it.

That every woman whose husband is insured for $1,000 must submit to a reduction of the policy to $920.

That every workingman who receives one dollar a day shall only receive ninety-two cents.

It injures the banker; it injures the merchant; but it injures the working man most of all. For:

Congress has power to require Americans to take ninety-two cents for a dollar. It has no power to require an Englishman to do so. The working man will give a dollar's worth of work and only receive ninety-two cents; but he will not get a dollar's worth of tea from China or of coffee from the West Indies for ninety-two cents. Moreover:

The merchant can easily raise his prices; he has only to mark them up; the men that work for wages cannot raise their prices by any so simple process. The laborer will only get ninety-two cents' worth of silver for his day's work, for which he used to get one dollar. But the grocer will not sell him a dollar's worth of groceries for the ninety-two cent; nor the dry goods merchant a dollar's worth of calicoes; nor the farmer a dollar's worth of grain; nor the miller a dollar's worth of flour. All commodities will rise in price; labor will not.

This is what the owners of the Nevada silver mines want Congress to do "for the benefit of the laboring man!"—Christian Union.

Financial.

Parties desiring to invest large or small sums of money where they will receive a larger rate of interest than is usually to be obtained, and at the same time have their funds absolutely secure against loss, and readily accessible if required, are invited to communicate with the banking House of ALEX. FROTHINGHAM & Co., 12 Wall Street, New York. dec2-16-17

Avoid Danger.

Don't put an enemy in your mouth to steal your teeth. Avoid deleterious dentifrices. Rely on Sozodont. Nothing can be purer or more certain to prevent the teeth from becoming diseased. After each brushing they glitter like pearls, and the gums grow rosy red.

The strongest attachments are formed with Spalding's Glue.

Health is an inestimable jewel. The cough that deprives you of it may take your life too. One bottle of Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar will avert the evil, and save you from consumption. Will you weigh Life against a half-dollar? Sold by all Druggists

Tiffe's Toothache Drops cure in 1 minute. 13

FROM The Christian Union, Aug. 22, 1877:

"A valuable horse of the writer's was kicked on the hock. Swelling and lameness caused, rendering the animal nearly worthless. We were advised to try GilES' Liniment, and are gratified to say it acted like a charm. About two inches of hoof came away, the sore healed up, and the lameness and swelling are fast disappearing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.
This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It prevents premature baldness. Itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

Centaur Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been specially restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.
J. B. ROSE & CO., 46 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey
To the taste but death to Grubs and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castorin is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. Rose & Co., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES

Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specific in the diseases for which they are recommended.

NATURAL SELECTION.

Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery

By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Spitting of Blood; Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Bilious ness, Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint," and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.

Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy foreboding, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from "Torpid Liver or Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

P.P.P.P.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.
The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo "Pills," scarcely larger than mustard seeds and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.
As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either or them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often restores the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus lustrous, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, disease of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me. Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

Sunday Life in San Francisco.

This cosmopolitan city is not made up of church going people. The Sabbath is more of a day of recreation than of religious observance. Thousands go over to Oakland, or ride out to the Cliff House to spend the day. It is a regular holiday. The three thousand bar-rooms and beer-gardens do a lively business. Sunday target companies have now given way to hunting parties in search of field sports, and you have only to ride a few hours in the cars before you will hear the crack of the huntsman's gun and the yelling of his dogs. All sports and gayeties are open and above board. There is no attempt at concealment. The representatives of every nation have their own way of enjoying themselves in passing the Sabbath, and those who do not observe its sanctity are the foreign classes, which are so largely in the ascendency here in point of numbers. The theatres and other places of amusement are generally crowded. The most popular resort is called Woodward's gardens, which attracts thousands of people on Sundays. It is such a remarkable place of entertainment that it calls for more than a passing notice. The price of admission is only two bits. When inside you find the grounds very extensive, covering a good many acres, while the variety of sights are of such a rare and unique character that you don't wonder that thousands go and see them. On all sides you find curiosities from all parts of the world in mineralogy, botany, ichthyology, crustaceans, mollusks, insects, ornithology and quadrupeds. Strolling on the grounds the eye falls upon parterres of the rarest of exotics, while the melodies from aviaries of birds of every clime delight the ear. You can plunge into illuminated caverns filled with aquariums of fish of all kinds; you can recline on green, velvety slopes, shaded with grotesque trees from all quarters of the globe, while at your feet runs a crooked, rippling stream over its rocky bed, and then forming a succession of cascades before it debouches into a pond, where a boat is at the disposal of amateur oarsmen; you may behold various strata of rock of immense size piled up to imitate wild, natural beauty, with dimples of hillocks wet with the spray of fountains and fringed with trailing vines; you can step into an immense inclosure and take a look at an unsurpassed collection of wild, ravenous animals confined in cages, and who, when prodded by their keepers, will startle you with their roarings; you can while away an hour in a concert room, where visitors are refreshed with beer and a band of music; or you can pass another hour in an amphitheater and become dazed with feats of zampille-rostation and all sorts of wonderful performances. All this for twenty-five cents, and of a Sunday as well as week days. Such is life in San Francisco that I cannot realize I am living in an American city. —Cor. Boston Journal.

English Swindlers in America.

Sharp as Americans think themselves the recent examination of the London Inspectors of Detectives for complicity with swindlers developed the fact that they have not all cut their eye-teeth yet. Perhaps some Americans will learn for the first time, from the evidence of Edwin Murray, one of the convicts, how they lost their money. Murray, and a man named Walters fled to America, forfeiting bail for participation in an enormous swindle, and to improve their time here Walters set up as an Englishman who wished to loan money on landed property. When people called upon him he referred them to his surveyor, Murray, who would survey the land, and, when he thought he had found fair game, propose to "beat" the Englishman by sending in a glowing report of a poor lot of land. Most of his customers jumped at this proposal, and gave considerations to Murray for his report. But as Walters never loaned any money he never lost anything, but received half the money paid to the "surveyor." When the reports were handed in, Walters would express his satisfaction, but demand that the would-be borrowers should insure their lives as collateral security, and send them back to Surveyor Murray, who was a life-insurer as well. The two rascals lived in clover while the game lasted, making about $400 a day, and as the victims were always "beaten" while trying to "beat," they dared not apply to the courts. The operators were finally arrested on a charge of smuggling, but it fell through, and as Murray said on the witness stand with fine humor, they "left the court without a stain upon their characters."—Ex.

The Eastern War.

The Turks burned and evacuated Elena on Friday and the Russians have occupied it.

The Servians have crossed the Turkish frontier and occupied, with artillery, the heights of Topalintza and Secanika, commanding Fort Wramor, near Nisch.

It was reported from Vienna, Monday, that Osman Pasha killed himself while on the way to Bucharest.

Germany replies to the Turkish appeal for mediation that Germany's participation depends on Russia's consent to parley. The Russian minister of finance has notified the loan contractors that he has determined not to receive the second installment of the war loan, amounting to fifteen million marks, the option of refusing which he had reserved.

News and Notes.

Lucy Ann Mink, who shot Charles Ricker at Lowell last August, was on Saturday sentenced to the house of correction for nine years.

J. W. Westcott, son of the landlord of the Ocean House at Newburyport, was on Monday fined $30 and costs and bound over in $200 to keep the peace, for assaulting Mr. Ivory M. Blood, the detective.

The governor of Texas on Monday telegraphed that the State troops at El Paso were surrounded, and would be massacred unless promptly relieved. Five Texans were killed on Sunday.

The difficulty between Senators Gordon and Conkling has been amicably settled, a document signed by Senators Hamlin, Ransom, Howe and McDonald, mutual friends of the parties, having been unanimously put on record by the Senate that the offensive words spoken on both sides were the result of a mutual misunderstanding, and as such were mutually withdrawn and considered as having never been spoken.

Gen. Sherman says that the whole trouble on the Mexican border is a fight for some salt wells which Americans and Mexicans have used indiscriminately and freely for years, and which Texas men have recently fenced in. No serious consequences are apprehended.

William C. Gilman, the New York forger, by his careful attention to the prison rules in Auburn, has gained the confidence of the warden and keeper, and has recently been placed in the hospital, where his duties are not severe. His health has improved while in Auburn. So far as he is concerned, the rumors that an application will be made for his pardon are untrue. He does not desire it, and is willing to serve out his full term, believing that his punishment is just.

When the executive session of the Senate terminated, Friday afternoon, and spectators were again admitted to the galleries, Senators Blaine and Conkling were seen sitting together and having an amicable conversation. This is the first time, it is said, that the Senators have spoken since their memorable row in the House in 1867. Blaine made the advance to-day in speaking to Mr. Conkling, as he has done in seeking the reconciliation, but of course Mr. Conkling was at last not averse to "making up."

A soldier named Schaffer, belonging to Co. A, Third U. S. Cavalry, bound to Black Hills, on Friday shot John A. Van Mott, the orderly sergeant. The men were greatly excited, as Van Mott was much respected by them, and that night the guard over Schaffer was overpowered and the murderer hung to the ridge-pole of the guard tent.

Capt. Brown's official survey of the South Pass Jetty channel, on Saturday, shows a depth of twenty-two feet and a width of two hundred feet, entitling Capt. Eads, the contractor, to the second payment of half a million.

Schooner Gazelle, Capt. Johnson, of Gloucester, Mass., arrived at Eastport, Me., on Saturday, with the captain terribly wounded, so much so that it is feared he cannot live. The captain and a man named Jones, with whom the captain had some words Friday night, were left alone on the schooner while the rest of the men went off in their dories to haul their trawls, and on returning to the vessel the captain was found prostrate and Jones throwing water on him. Jones was arrested by the crew.

A notorious outlaw named Schamme was taken from jail by a mob and hanged, at Georgetown, Col., Friday evening. A mob broke up the court at Hot Sulphur Springs, Middle Park, and drove the judge out of the district, on Friday; State troops will be sent there to enforce the laws.

One of the latest patents is a system of aerial signals, an improvement upon the night signals now in use. The latter consist of a combination of colored fires displayed from a fixed location, and serving to telegraph orders with unmistakable certainty. The latest patent connects with these signals a contrivance for burning them in the air. They can be seen from a great distance, and when sent off do not reveal the locality from which they are transmitted.

Secretary Schurz, in a letter submitted to the Senate, calls attention to the law relating to the rates authorized to be paid to newspapers for government advertising, and to the fact that many newspapers have refused to publish advertisements at these rates. He suggests that the law be modified, and that he be authorized to readjust bills against the government.

New Hampshire Items.

The dwelling house of Mr. David Sawyer at Belmont, says the Laconia Democrat, was entered by thieves on Sept. 17th, and notes, bank securities, bonds and money, amounting to about $30,000, stolen. Mr. Sawyer has not until recently given publicity to the robbery, hoping that some clue might be gained whereby his stolen property could be recovered and the robbers brought to justice. Some four years ago he had $600 stolen and since then $200 more, all taken from the same room.

Three business blocks in Laconia, owned by A. J. Farrar, W. L. Swain and J. G. Gilbert, occupied by Ladd & Keaser and C. K. Sanborn & Co., grocers, and J. Gilbert, undertaker, were burned Sunday morning. Loss about $10,000; insured for $7500. The cause of the fire is unknown.

George Hamilton, the suspected murderer of Alvan C. Foster, arrived in Keene Saturday afternoon.

Isaiah Rollins of Wolfeboro died Saturday morning from the effects of poison administered by himself early Friday evening. He was under bonds for appearance in the Court for being connected with other parties in store-breaking at Cotton Valley in November. He was about 30 years old, and leaves a wife and one child.

A Good Idea.

The Secretary of the Navy has commenced the issuing of quarterly circulars, giving the percentage of seamen punished on each ship of the navy in active service. The first one, which we take from the Army and Navy Journal, is as follows:

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, Oct. 18, 1877.

Sir: The Department herewith encloses for your consideration, the order of merit of the various ships in commission in the Navy, as exhibited by the "Conduct Report" submitted to the Bureau of Equipment and Recruiting for the quarter ending June 30, 1877.

The Department is of the opinion that in most cases the efficiency of a ship is due to that kind of discipline which inspires harmony and content, and which is not usually obtained by excessive punishment of the crew. Reward for duty faithfully performed is deemed more efficacious than punishment for its neglect.

The commanding officer is alone responsible for the infliction of punishment, and the Department will look to him for the endeavor to maintain the discipline of his command without any excessive use of the power which the law has placed in his hands. The exercise of this power is his highest prerogative, and the abuse of it is discreditable alike to himself and to the Navy.

The Department is gratified to find that on board of many ships, known to be efficient, but little or no punishment has been necessary, and hopes that the number will be increased by the appreciation on the part of officers and men of the Department's desire to maintain the discipline of the fleet, without undue resort to the rigor of military law. Very respectfully,

R. W. THOMPSON,
Secretary of the Navy.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
BUREAU OF EQUIPMENT & RECRUITING,

Not Yet Vindicated.

In April last a murderous and brutal mob in Kemper county, Mississippi, attacked Judge Chisolm and Mr. Gilmer. The mob was composed entirely of democrats, included the democratic county officials, and was led by the most prominent democratic politicians; the attacked parties, though native Mississippians, and secessionists all through the war, were republicans at the time of the assault, and the leaders of the Kemper county republican party. Chisolm and Gilmer, after being lodged in jail and disarmed, were butchered in cold blood by the mob; Chisolm's son, a mere boy, was shot dead by his side; and his daughter Corlia was shot, and afterward knocked down and had her eyes blackened and her face bruised and disfigured by the chivalrous democracy—who further showed their nobility of soul by refusing to allow the poor girl (who was only sixteen years old) medical attendance, for want of which she died. The Kemper county democracy—those of them who could read—were astounded at the indignation expressed throughout the North at this little diversion of theirs, and loudly proclaimed that Chisolm and his family were murdered because Chisolm had previously hired a negro named Walter Riley to murder John W. Gully, a leading democrat, whose family were foremost in the mob. True, there was not a particle of evidence to implicate Chisolm; and the negro, who was under arrest and confessed the murder, flatly denied that Chisolm had anything to do with it. But Chisolm was a powerful political antagonist and must be put out of the way; and ever since then the Kemper county democracy have been waiting for Riley's dying confession to "vindicate" their murderous deeds. Riley has been hanged. As the fatal day approached, Kemper county pricked up its ears and waited for him to confess that he was hired to murder John W. Gully, by Judge Chisolm and Mr. Gilmer; the friends of the Gully family pleaded with him in prison to make a clean breast of it, and boasted that his confession would implicate the Judge. But he could not say the word they were so anxious to hear. Even when he was led to the scaffold, on his last day on earth, and the rabble cried out, "Take down every word he says—he'll confess who put him up to it," he could only accuse himself. It is a strange scene which a correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette describes:

The guards, with double-barrelled shot-guns; 400 men and boys gathered to see the show; the upright beams, with cross-piece and noose, and a rude platform underneath; the pine coffin in the cart close by; the mulatto bowing gracefully to the crowd, and telling in a quiet voice how he had murdered Gully and Dobbs, without aid or counsel from any man. Kemper county was disappointed, and in no humor to give up the game. A dozen men began to cross-examine this man, who stood before them, a self-confessed murderer, ready and anxious for death. "Let Dr. Fox talk," said the Sheriff, and question and answer followed fast. "Tell us who got you to do it!" shouted several hoarse voices, and an old man begged him not to go into the presence of God with a lie in his mouth. Then Dr. Fox questioned him again, and for an hour and a half did this sickening business go on, the poor tortured man replying with gentleness and dignity that he had told the truth, and the crowd contradicting him and teasing him to implicate Judge Chisolm. At last he took a hymn-book, and sang in a clear voice, "And must this feeble body fall?" His brothers and his old master shook hands with him, and the black cap was drawn over his head. "I want to speak last to Dr. Fox," he said. "Now he'll tell who hired him," shouted the mob. But as the Doctor bent down to listen, all that he heard was: "One minute and I shall stand before God. All I have said is true." Then he was hanged.

Kemper county still waits for a vindication.

First Time a Message Was Telegraphed.

The telegraphing of President Hayes' message, consisting of 13,000 words, all over the country the same day when it was presented to Congress was so commonplace a feat as to attract no special attention. But in the early days of Morse's invention, such an achievement would have been deemed preposterous. The first complete President's message sent over the telegraph wires was in 1846, when Hugh L. Hastings, now editor of the New York Commercial Advertiser, was conducting the Albany Knickerbocker. At that period it was the custom to run the message by a locomotive from Washington to New York—leaving the Capital at noon on the delivery of the message to Congress, and reaching New York at nine o'clock. On this occasion Andrew White and H. H. Vandyck, representatives of the Albany Journal and Argus respectively, went to New York and chartered a steamer, refusing to admit Mr. Hastings into the arrangement, to carry the message to Albany immediately on its arrival at the metropolis. At the suggestion of Mr. Beach, of the New York Sun, Hastings arranged to have the entire message telegraphed over the wires though there were great doubts whether they would stand such a test. When Hastings reached Albany by boat next morning at five o'clock the entire message was already in type, and when the Journal and Argus steamer reached the dock about eight o'clock, White and Vandyck were astounded to hear newsboys on the dock crying out loud and long, "Extra Knickerbocker! President's message received by exclusive and extraordinary express." Says Hastings, in a description of the event, "There was weeping and wailing in the offices of two of the leading journals in Albany that day." The morning train westward bore copies of the Knickerbocker, which express messengers furnished to all the newspapers, hotels, etc., from Albany to Buffalo. In this case, as in many others, where the wit of man has discovered striking means of accomplishing desired results, the stimulating force was keen and remorseless rivalry. The next year the President's message doubtless went to New York without the aid of a locomotive, and the Albany Journal and Argus were on time with their neighbor, the Knickerbocker, in printing it.

Books, Magazines, Etc.

We have received from W. S. Crown & Co., of No. 2 Bromfield street, Boston, "The Rise and Fall of the Mustache, and other Hawkeyetems," by Robert J. Burdette, the humorist of the Burlington (Iowa) Hawkeye, appropriately illustrated, and published by the Burlington Publishing Company. Mr. Burdette is one of the (if not the) best of the newspaper humorists of the day; his fun is genial and rollicking but never vulgar or profane, and never appears strained; he "wears" well, and is more quoted by the scissors editors of the day than any other man in the country. The book mentioned above is well printed and handsomely bound, and contains about 250 pages of mirth-provoking yet often pathetic sketches. Sold only by subscription, at $2 per volume. Send to W. S. Crown & Co., for agency.

With the January number the Eclectic enters upon a new volume and a new year (the 24th,) making this a favorable time to subscribe. The magazine will be very strong in 1878, and the January number is rich in valuable articles, including "Science and Man," Tyndall's famous Birmingham lecture; Archibald Forbes' article on "Russians, Turks, and Bulgarians at the Theatre of War" (the best contribution yet made to the literature of the Russo-Turkish war;) "The Murder of Thomas Becket," by J. A. Froude; "The Science of Electricity as Applied in Peace and War;" a "Study of Thoreau," by Tom Hughes; and a sketch of Rev. Joseph Cook, with a steel engraved portrait. Subscription price, $5 per year; single number, 45 cents. E. R. Pelton, publisher, 25 Bond street, New York.

We have received No. 1, Vol. 1, of the Haverhill (Mass.) Daily Gazette, published by F. J. Stevens & Co.; the semi-weekly edition will hereafter be merged in a weekly. The new daily is a twenty-eight column paper, well edited and printed, and we hope it will succeed; the first number promises to merit success, at any rate, and Haverhill ought to be able to support at least one good daily paper.

ON Friday last, Dec. 14, a FUR BOA. It was dropped from a carriage going out Middle Street, around the Plains, and to the Navy Yard. The finder will be suitably rewarded on leaving it at the Rockingham House, Portsmouth.

—Feminine critics are beginning to observe, of Miss Von Hillern's recent pedestrian feats, that the average woman who "walks the floor" of her own apartment night after night with a crying child, and then goes through her ordinary active house-keeping the next day, and doing this for many days and weeks together, is, perhaps, quite as much of a heroine as the pedestrienne, so far as courage, physical endurance and energy are concerned.—Philadelphia Ledger.

FAIR.

Announcement

EXTRAORDINARY!

A special meeting of the Executive Committee was held on Tuesday evening, in accordance with the following telegrams:

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Dec. 11, 1877.

To Henry Peyser, Young's Hotel, Boston: Public pressure will, I think, compel us to issue one thousand more season tickets on the same basis of presents as first. DR. S. C. WHITTIER.

BOSTON, MASS., Dec. 11, 1877.

To Dr. S. G. Whittier: Cause a meeting of the executive committee to be held at your office at eight o'clock. Will be there. HENRY PEYSER.

After mature deliberation concerning the above it was decided not to issue any more season tickets, but in order to comply with the public demand as far as in our power, it was unanimously decided to add to the Grand Fair, not with a view to make money, but that the public may have the benefit of this new feature. It was voted to present to the holders of One Thousand Certificates,

Another New Feature

250 RICH GIFTS,

and that the value of the Presents to be distributed among Certificate holders be

One Hundred Dollars Greater

than the value of Ticket holders' Presents. Also that the Treasurer be authorized to immediately issue one thousand certificates in the distribution of these magnificent gifts, entitling the holders to admission to the Fair on Saturday evening, Dec. 22d. These are from the distributions of the gifts awarded the Season Ticket holders. We ennumerate a few of the gifts:

Entirely separate and distinct

The leading prize will be an Exact Duplicate of the elegant SILVER SERVICE of nine pieces now on exhibition in Rundlet's window; one CASE OF SILVER (42 pieces) and numerous other cases; Coleridge's Ancient Mariner, illustrated by Dore; objects of Art and utility.—in fact every prize will be of real value.

In order to dispose of these certificates at once and satisfy the demand of a generous public, we make this, the most liberal inducement ever offered at an affair of this kind.

It was also decided to hold the Fair five (5) evenings instead of four (4), as was first intended, and that Season Ticket holders be admitted with out extra charge on the additional evening.

These certificates can now be obtained at the bookstore of Moses Goodrich, at the drug stores of J. Dwight Dundlet, W. R. Preston and David Kimball & Co., at the clothing store of Peyser & Kennedy.

THE CITY.

Lieut. Charles Seymour is ordered to duty at this navy yard.

The Hutchings Association of the Universalist church will not give any entertainment this week, not being able to get ready in time. It will be given next week.

Hon. Frank Jones returned home on Saturday evening, from Washington. The Congressional recess will allow members a rest from public duties till the 10th of January.

The Episcopal, Unitarian and Universalist churches are to be decorated for the Christmas season. On account of the work, the Unitarian service next Sunday is to be held in the chapel on Court street; the ladies of the parish commence their labors on Thursday morning.

That the skating community may fully appreciate the advantages of the Rink,—smooth ice, warm house, courteous attendant, etc.,—there will be a free day Wednesday, for all who choose to partake of the pleasure of skating; all are invited—the more the merrier. If the weather is unfavorable Wednesday, the invitation holds good for Saturday.

The County Commissioners' hearing in the Jackson Hill street case, at the Common Council room, Monday, was largely attended, both advocates and opponents of the proposed new street being numerous. The Commissioners viewed the premises in the forenoon. John S. H. Frink, Esq., appeared on behalf of the petitioners for the street, and City Solicitor William H. Hackett for the city.

The grand Fair of the Knights of Pythias opens this evening in Franklin Hall. An immense number of tickets has been sold and big preparations made to entertain the crowd, and the Fair promises to be the most successful one of any held in this city for a long time past. For particulars see the advertisements—always remembering that "season tickets" and "certificates" alike admit to the Fair every evening of its continuance.

TEMPLARS' ELECTION.

At the annual conclave of De Witt Clinton Commandry of Knights Templar, held at their Asylum on Monday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

W. Freeman, E. C.;
Wm. P. Walker, G.;
John Christie, P.;
Charles W. Gardner, S. W.;
John H. Cheever, J. W.;
Wingate N. Ilsley, Treasurer;
James H. Jenness, Recorder.

POLICE COURT.

Monday, Dec. 17th; Batchelder, J.

Frank Collerans, Peter Keary, Frank J. Rogers, Robert Williams, John Jeffers, James Atkins, Harry Howard,—all drunk and all tramps, were each assessed $9.90, and in default of payment all were sent to jail. These seven tramps have been in the police station three times each this season, and four of them were sent out of town by the Marshal on Saturday, an officer accompanying them to see that they actually left town,—but they were back again Saturday evening, all drunk. Each of the seven had on his person small articles which he acknowledged to have been stolen, though none of them would confess where.

CHRISTMAS!

WHERE TO BUY THE BEST ARTICLES.

Willis G. Myers, No. 1 Congress block, though he has but lately introduced himself as one of the business young men of Portsmouth, is yet well known as having been clerk to Mr. Joseph H. Foster, whom he succeeds in the stationery and fancy goods department of trade. Mr. Myers continues the circulating library, and is constantly adding all of the works of the best authors. He has largely increased his general assortment of stationery, etc., among which can be found a large lot of elegant gift books, all the standard works in prose and poetry, and a fine selection of miscellaneous articles, including Christmas cards, pictures and frames, Bibles, games and toys, and gold pens (of Leroy W. Fairchild & Co's make—one of the favorites, and giving the best satisfaction;) in the various styles of pocket-books, in Russia leather, etc., he has one of the best assortments in the city. He invites former patrons of the store and everybody else to give him a Christmas call.

William B. Lowd, No. 6 Exchange building, has been in business in Portsmouth for thirty-eight years. He has the only book bindery in the city, and in this department he is not surpassed, as the work which comes from his hands is not only ornamental but substantial. He has also a fine lot of miscellaneous books, stationery and fancy articles, which he will be happy to dispose of to those who give him a call.

C. Dwight Hanscom (C. Dwight Hanscom & Co., No. 16 Congress st.,) is never more happy than when he has a store full of bidders to whom he is knocking down goods at low prices at auction, or is serving them at private sale with some of those elegant China or stone ware breakfast, dinner and supper setts, from his well loaded shelves. His stock embraces a great variety of articles, including crockery, glass, cutlery, new and second hand furniture, stationery, plated ware and gents' furnishing goods. The upholstering work done there, either in new or repairing, is first-class. Persons going housekeeping, or those fitting up hotels or boarding-houses, will find it to their advantage to give him a call.

Fletcher & Tanton, No. 58 Market street, are constantly securing and selling the most elegant designs of black walnut parlor and chamber sets. They have all styles of chairs, including the student's, smoking, invalid's, and folding patterns; marble top tables and stands, black walnut towel racks, slipper wall baskets, and a large variety of other articles that will grace the chamber, hall or parlor on Christmas or any other day. They invite all to call and examine their goods, before purchasing elsewhere.

James M. Carr, No. 34 Market street, was an apprentice to Elisha C. Crane in 1824, with whom he served in that capacity for five years and as foreman for six years. In 1835, in connection with Mr. Aaron H. Hill, he purchased the stock of Mr. Crane and commenced the manufacturing of boots and shoes, which they continued until 1876, when the firm dissolved, Mr. Carr continuing to carry on the business. It is proverbial that at this store one gets a good fit and the very best quality of goods; satisfaction is warranted in all cases.

For a gentleman, a neat Christmas present is a handsome whip or carriage robe, or both. John S. Tilton, No. 18 Congress street, has a complete variety of "nacker's" goods. His harness work is not to be excelled, either in that light and silver mounted, for the carriage, or that needed for heavy draught. He has a large stock of very handsome double plush and buffalo robes, carriage mats, whips, travelling bags and trunks, etc. He is also doing a good business in neat's foot, sperm, vacuum and castor oils, and in everything sells the best quality of articles at the lowest living prices.

Freeman's Wholesale and retail Oyster House, Nos. 24 & 28 Congress street, is the place to visit if you want the most delicious bivalves either by the measure or cooked to order in any of the various styles. He is selling the Norfolks at greatly reduced prices, and those who want the larger sizes have them in the Providence River, New York, Fire Island, etc., fresh from the water and fresh from the shell. His saloons for both ladies and gentlemen are fitted up in modern style, and all citizens of Portsmouth are aware that nothing to offend the eye or ear of a lady is ever allowed in this establishment. He sends oysters to any part of the city, and if you want a feast for an epicure don't fail to put some of them into the turkey stuffing or into the gravies.

THE VICINITY.

The school at Hampton Falls is to be taught this winter by Charles H. Salsman of Waterville College, Maine.

The Christian society and congregation at Kittery Point had a two days' Fair last week, in aid of the church, which is somewhat embarrassed financially. The Fair was quite successful. A pleasing incident, during its continuance, was the presentation of a handsome cloak to the pastor's wife.

Portsmouth Chronicle

—An Elko Chinaman went home drunk, and was met at the door by his wife, who clubbed him unmercifully. A passer-by remarked: "John, your wife heap fight." "Yes," he replied, "she too muchee sabee. She live 'long side Melican woman tree month."—Elko (Nev.) Post.

—Turkish beggars—sufferers of the present war in the East—have put in an appearance. One of these mendicants presented himself at the door of an uptown residence a few mornings since, with his hat extended in a supplicatory manner, and muttering "Allah Bishmallah ababoes rustachuk," or something that way. When a cross dog came up and seized a mouthful of his baggy breeches he exclaimed: "Git out o' that, ye dirty brute, or I'll knock off the head o' ye!" He knew the dog wouldn't understand the Turkish language.—Norristown Herald.

— Jimmy Todd, one of Lee's favorite scouts in the West Virginia campaign, was killed last week in a dispute with a hunter on the mountain near Staunton. He was the most remarkable hunter in the valley of Virginia, having killed over 2700 deer up to 1860 with one old muzzle-loading rifle, which he had bored so often that you could get your thumb in it. He was a dead shot, and could perform the feat of putting a bullet through a hat on the opposite side of a tree by placing an axe-blade for the ball to glance upon.

— The St. Louis Journal says: "All women play cards alike. Watch a woman at a game of whist and you'll get a pretty good idea how all women play whist. 'La, me, Henry, is it my play? Let me see—second hand low—that's the first time round of that suit, ain't it? Well, I'll play—no, I hardly think I will—now you stop looking at my hand—did you see anything? Of course I'm going to play, but I must have time to think—what's trumps—spades—I thought 'twas clubs—well, I'll—no—yes—well, there!" Then she will clap an ace on her partner's king, and insist on keeping the trick for fear she will be cheated out of it in the final count."

Financial.

Parties desiring to invest large or small sums of money where they will receive a larger rate of interest than is usually to be obtained, and at the same time have their funds absolutely secure against loss, and readily accessible if required, are invited to communicate with the Banking House of ALEX. FROTHINGHAM & Co., 12 Wall Street, New York. dec3-1m17

Avoid Danger.

Don't put an enemy in your mouth to steal your teeth. Avoid deleterious dentifrices. Rely on Sozodont. Nothing can be purer or more certain to prevent the teeth from becoming diseased. After each brushing they glitter like pearls, and the gums grow rosy red.

The strongest attachments are formed with Spalding's Glue.

Health is an inestimable jewel. The cough that deprives you of it may take your life too. One bottle of Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar will avert the evil, and save you from consumption. Will you weigh Life against a half-dollar? Sold by all Druggists.

Tiffany's Toothache Drops cure in 1 minute. 13

FROM The Christian Union, Aug. 22, 1877:

"A valuable horse of the writer's was kicked on the hock. Swelling and lameness caused, rendering the animal pretty worthless. We were advised to try Giles' Liniment, and are gratified to say it acted like a charm. About two inches of bone came away, the sore healed up, and the lameness and swelling are fast disappearing.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its efficacy as are wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all dandruff, itching and humor; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

Centaur Liniments.

They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.

The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been specially restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

Honey

To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castorin is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.

COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.

Messrs. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.:

I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.

Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest discovery for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES

Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.

NATURAL SELECTION.

Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial property of man? An article cannot succeed a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's standard medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the annual exports peck up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery

By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or Kings Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness. Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint," and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.

When the Tongue is yellow and covered with blotches and pimples, or when there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, costiveness, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only partial if any relief is obtained from ordinary medicinals, and expect a certain cure.

Sold everywhere.

P.P.P.P.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.

The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Nature in Parvo "Physic," scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They are now necessarily of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.

As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved uninjured for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Scaldhead, Pimples, Sores, Tumors, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and elder of them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thin brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was painful to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I don't know what I should have done if I had not been for this remedy. I have used Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 15, 1876.

Trashy Literature.

In the windows of shops where newspapers and periodicals are sold is constantly displayed a class of literature for boys which deserves the reprobation of every person of taste and of all parents who are concerned for the moral and mental well being of their children. That so much of this unmitigated trash is published and sold is not at all creditable to the training which the youth of the country is receiving, and is far from reassuring to those who are hoping for an improvement in the character of the rising generation. We cannot better characterize this pernicious stuff than by taking up the current numbers of several publications especially intended for boys, and showing what they contain.

Conspicuous in the windows just now is seen an illustrated weekly paper with the title Our Boys. Its first page is nearly covered with a hideous picture representing a frightened youth bound to the outside of a huge bell, which a supernaturally ugly dwarf is vigorously ringing. Below it in staring letters is the title of the story it illustrates—"Nero, the Hunchback; or, The Bellringer of Trinity Church." It is of the abominable, blood-curdling style of romance so fascinating to the minds of undisciplined youth and so demoralizing in its effects. There are instalments of other stories full of slang and crime, in which rowdyism and vulgarity are glorified and nature and simplicity outraged. Here are some of the savory titles: "Free and Easy Ned;"—"Tipton Blue, or the Jockey's Mission;" "Corkey, or the Tricks and Travels of a Supe;" "Bob Short, or One of Our Boys;" "Detective Dan, or the Irish Ferret;" and "That Boy of Ours, or Tom on His Muscle." Sandwiched between these are delicacies in prose and verse: "The Chemist's Murderer;" "The suspicious Wife," and "A Terrible Secret." A worse mess of unwholesome or worthless reading for either young or old could not be concocted, and its viciousness is unrelieved by anything instructive, witty or to a healthy mind entertaining.

The Boys of New York is another publication of the same class, garnished with pictures of hags, highwaymen and cutthroats. Its opening story is "Black Diamond Bill, or the Young Hero of the Coal Mines," in which a bowie knife combat forms an exciting incident. Then we meet with such taking titles as "Emerald Jim, the Irish Boy Detective;" "Tim Tippin, or the Terror of the Swimming Gang;" "American Vidocq, or Life and Adventures of a Famous Thief Taker;" "Young Will Watch, the smuggler King," and "The Danite's Revenge, or the Mountain Meadow Massacre." Murder, theft, vengeance, brutality and ghastliness make up the stock of the material of this edifying sheet. There are bits of song sprinkled in the corners of the pages, and the following chorus of one of them will show their general character:

"'Twas on one pleasant summer night,
But never mind how late,
I vowed to kiss the charming miss
When parting at the gate."

There is another of those illustrated abominations called the New York Boys' Weekly containing such stories as "One of the Boys;" "The Idiot Witness;" "Dashing Dick, the King of the Highway;" "Chip and Chin Chin, the Two Orphans;" "Bound to be an Actor;" "Tom Trump, the Boy Pilot;" "A Lightning Flash, or the Mystery of a Minute." The publishers of this atrocity, not content with a weekly dose of this mental poison, have appended a monthly supplement, which for the time being is given away with the Weekly. It gives an interesting account of "Jack Rushton, or Alone with the Pirates;" relates the adventure of "The Monte Christo, or Back from Death;" and contains a silly burlesque of "Romeo and Juliet," besides a lot of shallow songs and anecdotes.

These are by no means all the publications of this class to which we have alluded, but they will serve. They show what is provided and sold cheap for the delectation of our youth. A healthy public sentiment should make the publication or sale of this whole class of periodicals for the young disreputable for any one engaged in it, and the reading of it should be no more allowed in families than indulgence of any other vice.—Boston Globe.

—Columbus, O., has a wonder. A lock of hair cut from the head of Dr. S. Halsey's eighteen-months-old boy, which was two inches long at the time of the cutting is now over six inches long, with every sign of life. For fourteen years it has laid in the family Bible, carefully folded and marked, and it retains its natural color, though the boy's hair has materially changed.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1877.

United States District Court.

The regular term of this Court was to have been held at Exeter on Tuesday. Judge Clark was confined to his home by sickness, and unable to be present.

The jurors in attendance were: Amos H. Noyes, Washington B. Warren, Atkinson; Richard B. Bartlett, Enoch B. Bartlett, Kingston; Jos. F. Kimball, Alban W. Burley, East Kingston; John H. Johnson, Henry J. Perkins, Hampton; George O. Paul, Henry T. Tapley, South Newmarket; Horace Adams, Thomas M. Arnold, Hampstead; J. C. A. Wingate, C. W. Scott, Stratham; Thos. C. Folsom, John Wiggin, Epping.

Certain suits brought by Hiram C. Abbott, as assignee in bankruptcy, which were expected to be tried, were settled.

The case Woodman, assignee of A. B. Lane, vs. Gardner Towle, was postponed until the first Monday of February, to which time the Court took a recess.

Gen. Howard's Campaign.

After reading the mass of sneers and cheap wit aimed at Gen. Howard (by newspaper scribblers who love to fight Indians in comfortable parlors, with pipes and hot punches close at hand,) while he was conducting the long campaign which resulted in the capture of Chief Joseph and his band, the following from the Army and Navy Journal sounds quite oddly:

We take pleasure in acknowledging the receipt from Gen. Howard of a file of his special field orders, while on the march after the Nez Perces, ranging from Nos. 62 to 76 inclusive, and closing October 16th. They show from their neatness of typography no trace of the tremendous strain brought on the command by the long march, and are therein striking instances of the power of modern civilization to overcome material obstacles. One or two we quote from the mass, which is generally composed of routine orders now of no special interest. No. 69 shows how resolute in the pursuit Gen. Howard was, with horses broken down and men exhausted, at the time when his only a valiable means were the 7th Cavalry. He says: "Col. S. D. Sturgis, 7th Cavalry, after turning over the command to the senior officer present with his regiment, will proceed with his headquarters, by steamer, to his proper post, there to make arrangements for the present and prospective needs of his regiment. To insure against the escape of the Nez Perce prisoners and prevent their recapture by the hostile Sioux under Sitting Bull, the senior officer present with the 7th Cavalry is hereby directed to report with that regiment for duty with Col. Nelson A. Miles, 5th Infantry." Had it not been for this order Miles might never have struck Joseph with the success he did. The next order shows how prompt Howard was to support Miles without jealousy of his success. Miles' command was in a helpless state for want of surgeons and medical supplies. Howard says in No. 74: "Surgeon Charles T. Alexander, U. S. A., is hereby relieved from duty as chief medical officer of the expedition against hostile Nez Perce Indians, and will report to Col. Nelson A. Miles, 5th Infantry, to take charge of the wounded with his command. After accompanying the wounded to Fort Buford, D. T., or if necessary, to Bismarck, D. T., Surgeon Alexander will join his proper station at Portland, Oregon, via St. Paul, Minnesota, and report to his department commander." The last order is interesting as showing the possible approach of scurvy to the troops. No. 76 runs thus: "Upon the recommendation of the medical officer in charge, the troops of this command will receive, in addition to their regular ration, one pound of potatoes to each ration, until the arrival of the troops at Omaha. The acting commissary of subsistence is hereby authorized to purchase a sufficient quantity of potatoes to make this issue." The main interest of all these orders now is in showing how methodical, systematic and complete was Gen. Howard's pursuit, and how ready he was to support others, so long as the end in view was attained.

News and Notes.

Senator Jones has had six silver dollars of 412 1-2 grains struck off at the Philadelphia Mint, and has sent two of them to the President. They are said to present an engaging appearance.

The Treasurer of the United States has signed checks for payment of moneys due the survivors of the wrecked steamer Huron.

The Naval Court of Inquiry into the Huron disaster has completed its work, reported to the Secretary, and dissolved. There is no reason to suppose the Secretary will delay the promulgation of the finding and opinion of the Court.

A despatch from Deadwood, on the 17th inst., says: "A bottle of petroleum was brought into this city to-day, from an oil well discovered a few weeks ago eight miles from Jenny's stockade, and one hundred miles south of Deadwood. The petroleum is pronounced by experts superior to that of West Virginia. No Indian depredations have been committed in this vicinity or any of the routes leading to the Hills for some time."

Concerning the trial trip of the steamer Massachusetts, wrecked on Long Island last October, and since repaired, the New York Times says: "The steamer behaved admirably on both the eastward and return trip through the Sound. It was proved that the additions made to her hull have rendered her much more buoyant, stiffer, and better able to keep up against a gale. During the repairs to the steamboat, not only was a great part of her original hull replanked, but a thick outside hull was built for 240 feet of her total length along the water-line, which is 353 feet. In parts, the bottom of the Massachusetts is now 80 inches thick."

The story of the abduction and outrage of Fannie Burt, which has been making such a stir in Westport, Conn., and vicinity, has taken another phase. She confesses that she was in Westport all the time of her disappearance, a prisoner in the barn of Amos Barnes, a neighbor with whom Mr. Burt (the girl's father) has been on ill terms; and that, when released, Barnes threatened that he would burn her father's house down if she told where she had been.

Three pairs of twins have been borne by Mrs. Jeremiah Cooney of Staffordville, Conn., within four years, and now she has just given birth to a fifteen-pound boy.

Michael and Richard Kelly, twins, 11 years old, were drowned while skating in Templeton, Mass., last Saturday.

The War Department has ordered all the troops within reach of the scene of the trouble to El Paso, Texas. No regular or recognized Mexican forces have any part in this matter, and affairs are still regarded as nothing more serious than a local riot. A very significant feature of the action taken is that while ever effort has been made to hurry to El Paso, strict orders have been issued by the Secetary of War, under the direction of the President, forbidding the troops to cross into Mexico under any circumstances.

A suspender buckle saved the life of the watchman in Hon. Lot M. Morrill's house in Augusta, Me., when he was stabbed by a burglar last week. And a few days ago a suspender buckle stopped the ball from a pistol which a young man fired at a dog in St. Louis, but which struck Samuel Bland, a bystander, in the right breast.

New Hampshire Items.

Adolph Walter, a weaver of Manchester, disappeared on Sunday, 9th inst., and nothing was learned of his whereabouts until the following Wednesday evening, when he returned and astonished his friends by informing them that the Lord had directed him to walk sixteen days for Him in the fields and woods, and that he had been obeying the command. He seems to be religiously insane, his conversation indicating that his mind has been temporarily dethroned by religious excitement. Still it is not known that he has been an interested attendant at the recent meetings, and he makes no mention of them in his talk. He is a foreigner of considerable culture, being able to speak French, English and German, and is well spoken of by his acquaintances.

The New Hampshire State Grange on Tuesday commenced a two day's session at Manchester, with fifty granges from various parts of the State represented. Dudley L. Chase of Claremont, master, delivered the annual address.

On Saturday evening a little daughter of James Bressenhan of Wolfeboro', about a year old, was fatally scalded by falling into a boiler filled with hot brine. The mother was near at hand and instantly took the child out, but she lived only about an hour. Mrs. Bressenhan is severely scalded about the hands and arms.

George Hamilton, the negro arrested in Louisiana on suspicion of being the murderer of A. C. Foster at Keene in May, 1876, arrived on Saturday in charge of detectives and was lodged in jail. The evidence against him, so far as the public know is confined to the seemingly trivial circumstance of the finding upon his person of a pin of the lodge of Odd Fellows to which Mr. Foster beloaged. It is not yet proved that the pin is the identical one owned by Mr. Foster, and there are many ways in which it might have come into the negro's possession. Hamilton is recognized as a man who came to Keene in search of work in 1876, but some who know him say that he did not appear until several weeks after the Foster murder. He used then to display a badge similar to the one found upon him, and often proclaimed himself an Odd Fellow. But there is probably other evidence than that which appears on the surface, which would warrant his transportation 2000 miles to stand a trial for murder.

Books, Magazines, Etc.

"The drunkard's diseased appetite,—what is it? If curable, how? By miraculous agency or physical means,—which?" is the title of an able paper by Rev. J. Willett, superintendent of the Inebriate's Home at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., showing the fallacy of expecting the saving of drunkards by miraculous means. Another temperance tract by the same author is entitled "The dogma of human responsibility, more especially as it relates to inebriety."

The New York Tribune is issuing a series of popular novels in a cheap form—only ten cents a number, each number containing one standard novel, unabridged and well printed. This "dime literature" is the opposite of the vile trash that has done so much to debauch the youth of to-day, being carefully selected, and if not of decidedly moral tendency, certainly not immoral; and the Tribune is engaged in a good work in thus putting wholesome reading within the reach of all, at as cheap a rate as the veriest trash has hitherto been offered. The new novel, "Cherry Ripe," just issued as No 14 of the Tribune's cheap popular series, is from the pen of Helen B. Mathers, whose charming story "Comin' Thro' the Rye" won such a quick success. It is a tale of English life and love, full of delicate descriptions and fascinating interest, and we have little doubt that it will be one of the favorite numbers in this marvellously cheap library of the best fiction. It can be had of almost any news agent, or by addressing the Tribune, New York, with ten cents inclosed in the letter.

Political.

The Conkling and anti-Conkling fight in the Union League Club on Thursday night was chiefly in the imagination of the reporters. When it is solemnly reported that the Conkling ticket is headed by E. D. Morgan, who has never been a Conkling man, and the anti-Conkling ticket by Benjamin K. Phelps, who has never been anything but a Conkling man, the members may be excused for considering the printed stories of their great commotions a close approach to moonstruck idiocy.—Tribune.

The democrats of the California legislature have nominated, for United States Senator, J. T. Farley, who will of course be elected. Farley was nominated on the seventh ballot.

The seat in the United States Senate now occupied by Senator Eustis is one of the most expensive and luxurious in the chamber. He gets about $20,000 in a lump as back salary, with some $3,000 mileage, while it has realized some $15,000 to Pinchback since it became vacant. It is a sort of bonanza.

Senator Blaine's illness is reported to have left him materially unchanged in voice, manner and nervous action. There is nothing listless about him, and he sits in the Senate in the old crouching attitude, an arm across the desk, ready for the spring and toss with which he handles argument and opponent.

Announcement

EXTRAORDINARY!

A special meeting of the Executive Committee was held on Tuesday evening, in accordance with the following telegrams:

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Dec. 11, 1877.

To Henry Peyser, Young's Hotel, Boston: Public pressure will, I think, compel us to issue one thousand more season tickets on the same basis of presents as first. DR. S. C. WHITTIER.

BOSTON, MASS., Dec. 11, 1877.

To Dr. S. C. Whittier: Cause a meeting of the executive committee to be held at your office at eight o'clock. Will be there. HENRY PEYSER.

After mature deliberation concerning the above it was decided not to issue any more season tickets, but in order to comply with the public demand as far as in our power, it was unanimously decided to add to the Grand Fair, not with a view to make money, but that the public may have the benefit of this new feature. It was voted to present to the holders of One Thousand Certificates,

Another New Feature

250 RICH GIFTS,

and that the value of the Presents to be distributed among Certificate holders be

One Hundred Dollars Greater

than the value of Ticket holders' Presents. Also that the Treasurer be authorized to immediately issue one thousand certificates in the distribution of these magnificent gifts, entitling the holders to admission to the Fair on Saturday evening, Dec. 22d. These are from the distributions of the gifts awarded the Season Ticket holders. We enumerate a few of the gifts:

Entirely separate and distinct

The leading prize will be an Exact Duplicate of the elegant SILVER SERVICE of nine pieces now on exhibition in Rundlett's window; one CASE OF SILVER (42 pieces) and numerous other cases; Coleridge's Ancient Mariner, illustrated by Dore; objects of Art and utility,—in fact every prize will be of real value.

☞ In order to dispose of these certificates at once and satisfy the demand of a generous public, we make this, the most liberal inducement ever offered at an affair of this kind.

It was also decided to hold the Fair five (5) evenings instead of four (4), as was first intended, and that Season Ticket holders be admitted without extra charge on the additional evening.

These certificates can now be obtained at the bookstore of Mercer Goodrich, at the drug stores of J. Dwight Dunclee, W. R. Preston and David Kimball & Co., at the clothing store of Peyser & Kennedy.

E. G. PIERCE, JR., P. M.

THE CITY.

Mr. Jno. O. Hanscom, formerly of this city, has assumed full control of the Golden Era, an eight-page weekly paper published in San Francisco.

The Hutchings Association will give their entertainment on Thursday evening after all, in the Universalist vestry, when the drama "The Chimney Corner" will be presented.

Francis M. Hatch, Esq., the youngest son of Hon. Albert R. Hatch, started on Tuesday for Honolulu, Sandwich Islands, where he intends to open a law office. Hon. C. Coffin Harris, who is Chief Justice of the Hawaiian Kingdom, is an uncle to Mr. Hatch.

There was good skating on the North pond, Tuesday, the ice being smooth and firm—firm enough to bear all the skaters who appeared, at any rate, for none of them were drowned, so far as we have heard. The South pond was at the same time clear of ice, except a small patch near its western end, where the brook empties into it.

An alarm of fire was occasioned at the navy yard during the noon hour on Tuesday, by the igniting of the woodwork near the chimney of the lodge. The yard fire department turned out but their services were not required, a man with an axe having knocked down and dragged out the burning lathing before the engines arrived. The damage done was trifling, and would not have been very heavy had the fire got under full headway, the lodge being a brick structure, with very little wood in its composition. The fire caught from the chimney, which has been used for years and never acted so before.

POLICE COURT.

Tuesday, Dec. 18th; Batchelder, J.

Harvey Runnion, a war veteran from the Soldiers' Home at Togus, Me., was arraigned for assaulting an officer while the latter was engaged in the execution of his duty. It seems the old soldier had been engaged in a battle with King Alcohol, (in which of course he was worsted, though he did not at once find it out,) and was vociferously rejoicing over a supposed victory when Assistant Marshal Gray appeared, only to receive a blow on the head from a bottle in the hands of the "inspired" warrior. The old fellow seemed very penitent when brought before the Court, and got off with a sentence of twenty days in jail, without costs.

CHRISTMAS!

WHERE TO BUY THE BEST ARTICLES.

H. B. Buzzell & Son, No. 12 Exchange building, make their usual fine Christmas display. Here we find an extensive lot of goods, including toys of every description and all grades of cost, juvenile story and toy books, fancy boxes, games, albums, escritoire papetoire, fine porcelain ware, and a general collection of articles adapted for the young and old. There is no danger of passing them by, as their store is so attractive that the viewer is pretty sure to go in, and once in is sure to purchase something.

Mercer Goodrich, under the City Rooms, has a large stock of goods suited for the holiday trade, including books, stationery of all kinds, hellotypes, albums, quaintly ornamented table ware, games, stereoscopic views, fancy boxes, and other articles in great variety. The store is neatly and attractively arranged, and the would-be purchaser must be hard to please if he cannot find in it something to suit.

George H. Tripp, No. 37 Market street, keeps on hand as fine a collection of room papers and decorations as can be found in the city, direct from the best importers and manufacturers. His window curtains are well selected, and their fixtures of the latest patents. One in want of aught in this line cannot fail to get suited at his store.

John P. Sweetser, No. 46 Market street, is one of the largest stove dealers in the city. The oil stoves which he sells are said to be a success for parties camping out and fishing boats, as well as for use in the house. Nearly anything required in the housekeeping line can be found at this store. He keeps on hand an extensive assortment of lamps, (including the "Library" pattern, which is universally recommended,) and a fine assortment of gas fixtures, in chandeliers, etc.; children's carriages of the newest styles he has always on hand in large numbers, and is selling them at the extreme low prices.

John H. Bailey, No. 16 Market street and No. 1 Ladd street, has been connected with the hardware trade for thirty-five years. He was first clerk to Mr. Thomas D. Bailey, who kept on Congress street and was a well known and respected merchant at that date. The building occupied by Mr. Bailey has been used for the hardware business for many years. The sign of Richard Jenness will be well remembered, as also Mr. Edwin Bennett, who was a clerk for a number of years with Mr. Jenness and succeeded him in business. The extensive business of this establishment necessitates a large stock. Scarcely an article of hardware for use in the various branches of trade but can be found here; also a good assortment of cutlery and skates, which are selling at prices to suit the times.

Rider & Cotton, No. 69 Market street, are among the enterprising men of Portsmouth. Their stock embraces the great variety of articles included under the head of "ship chandlery," a general assortment of hardware, carriage and tire bolts, and all kinds of supplies used by painters. They have lately added iron and steel, which they intend to make a prominent feature of their business.

J. L. O. Coleman, Nos. 96, 111 and 113 Market street, has in connection with second hand and antique furniture, some fresh patterns direct from the manufacturers. His store rooms are filled with almost everything required in the household. The "Eaton cook stove," a specialty of his trade, is claimed to have no superior, and those who call and examine his stock will find that he is selling at the lowest market prices.

THE R. OF P. FAIR

The Fair at Franklin Hall under the direction of the Knights of Pythias opened on Tuesday evening. The managers have done all in their power to make it a great success, and the prospect is good. The attendance on the opening night was very large, the room being full to overflowing.

The hall is very handsomely and tastefully dressed, with bunting mainly, though some evergreen is to be seen. From the centre of the ceiling six festoons descend to the sides, but in such a way as not to interfere with the view of persons in the gallery. The front of the gallery is also trimmed; the different colors of the bunting being judiciously blended, and in the strong light of the gas adding wonderfully to the appearance of the hall. The decorating was done by Mr. James H. Dow, assisted by Mr. Elbridge T. Philbrook.

There are ten tables for the sale of such articles as are usually offered on such occasions, presided over by ladies; and a kitchen department where a turkey supper is served free to all who pay twenty-five cents for a seat.

The presents (of which there are 500,—250 in each class) were displayed on tables, and attracted a great deal of attention, having been selected for use as well as beauty. Among them are silver epergnes, tea sets of nine pieces, and cases of silver, all made to order by first-class houses in Boston; Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner," illustrated by Dore; a music-box playing twelve tunes and which cost $125; and many other articles. In addition to the presents to be distributed to the holders of season tickets and certificates, there are handsome articles to be voted for, viz.: a silver epergne, to the most popular manufacturer; Goethe's "Faust," (one of an edition of five copies, and the only copy for sale in New England,) to the most popular teacher or professional man; carving set to the most popular hotel keeper; toilet set to the most popular barber; and hunter's cup to the most popular sportsman.

During the evening the comedy "Turn him out" was performed, the well known members of the Portsmouth Dramatic Club, Messrs. Kennedy, Bryant and Archibald, and Misses Kennedy and Peterson, taking part. The play was finely rendered and received with frequent applause.

This (Wednesday) evening a burlesque will be given, and also tableaux; and Professor Arts will make his first appearance here in his wonderful magic tricks.

On Thursday evening there will be singing and instrumental music; and it is proposed on that evening to award the gifts to the season ticket holders. The Fair will be open every night this week, including Saturday night.

FAIR PLAY REQUESTED.

RYE, Dec. 17th.

Mr. Editor: Near the close of the boarding season there appeared an article in your paper * and copied by several others, concerning the boarding place of W. F. Groves, who was lately burned to death at Straw's Point, Rye Beach, which does great injustice to the subscriber and shows a malicious intent of the writer, as it was utterly false in every important particular, and but for the severe illness of the subscriber from the time of its publication would have been promptly corrected. It stated that I charged board for Mr. Groves two days after his decease. The truth is this.

The party that engaged the room and board for Mr. Groves was very solicitious for us to take him below our usual price, which we at last consented to do, charging him but one dollar per day. His death occurred on Saturday. His apparel and valuables remaining in the room we felt responsible for the same. Subsequently a friend of his came to my house and with a member of my family entered the room; on leaving it, it was locked, and their friend not only requested but demanded the key, which I very reluctantly delivered to him, and it was not returned until the following Monday, when the room was vacated. My charge was made to this time, and no longer. Every travelling man well knows this to be customary. If it had been intimated that aid to Mr. Groves was desirable none would have rendered it sooner than I, as I found him a very pleasant gentleman. During this time some of my boarders were sleeping on lounges, and I had to refuse applications for want of room.

The article further stated that the rest of my boarders left on learning "the fact." This was utterly false, as none of them left previous to the close of their engagement, and some remained longer.

Since partially recovering from my sickness my friends have been urgent for me to make a statement correcting such an unjust insinuation against me personally, and against the whole neighborhood; I therefore in justice ask you to publish this, and request all papers that copied the original article to give this an insertion. Respectfully,

JOHN H. FOSS.

Note.* Mr. Foss is mistaken in saying the article he complains of appeared in this paper and was copied by others; it first appeared in (we think) the Manchester Union, and though copied by a number of other papers it was not copied or in any manner referred to by us, so far as our memory goes.—The Editor.

Aunt 'Liza Wins the Good Fight.

"Doctor, is I got to go?"

"Aunt 'Liza, there is no hope for you."

"Bress de Great Master for his goodness. Ise ready."

The doctor gave a few directions to the colored women that sat around 'Liza's bed, and started to leave, when he was recalled by the old woman, who was drifting out with the tide.

"Marse John, stay wid me till it's ober. I wants to talk ob de old times. I knowed you when a boy, long 'fore you went and been a doctor. I called you Marse John den; I call you de same now. Take yo' ole mammy's hand, honey, and hold it. Ise lived a long, long time. Ole marster and ole missus hab gone before, and de chillun from de ole place is scattered ober de world. I'd like to see 'em 'fore I starts on de journey to-night. My ole man's gone, and all de chillun I nussed at dis breast has gone too. Dey's waitin' for dere mudder on de golden shore. I bress de Lord, Marse John, for takin' me to meet 'em dar. Ise fought de good fight, and Ise not afraid to meet de Savior. No mo' wo'k for poor old mammy, no mo' trials and tribulations—hold my hand tighter, Marse John—fadder, mudder—marster—missus—chillun—Ise going home."

The soul, while pluming its wings for its flight to the Great Beyond, rested on the dusky face of the sleeper, and the watchers, with bowed heads, wept silently. She was dead.—Missouri Brunswicker.

Avoid Danger.

Don't put an enemy in your mouth to steal your teeth. Avoid deleterious dentifrices. Rely on Sozodont. Nothing can be purer or more certain to prevent the teeth from becoming diseased. After each brushing they glitter like pearls, and the gums grow rosy red.

FROM The Christian Union, Aug. 22, 1877:

"A valuable horse of the writer's was kicked on the hock. Swelling and lameness ensued, rendering the animal nearly worthless. We were advised to try Gibbs' Liniment, and are gratified to say it acted like a charm. About two inches of bone came away, the sore healed up, and the lameness and swelling are fast disappearing.

lectic Magazine

OF

Foreign Literature, Science & Art.

THIRTY-FOURTH YEAR.

The ECLECTIC reprints monthly from all the foreign Quarterlies, Reviews, Magazines and Journals, their choicest contents, including ESSAYS, SCIENTIFIC PAPERS, BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES, TALES, STORIES and POEMS. The field of selection is very large, and it is believed that the ECLECTIC presents a greater variety and higher standard of Literature than any periodical that depends exclusively upon home talent.

In GENERAL LITERATURE such writers as Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, James Anthony Froude, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Francis Power Cobbe, Leslie Stephen, Arthur Helps, Alfred Tennyson, Thomas Hughes, William Black, Mrs. Oliphant, Thomas Hardy, Turgenieff, William Morris, Miss Thackeray, and others equally eminent, are represented in its pages.

In SCIENCE, the best articles of such thinkers and writers as Profs. Huxley and Tyndall, Richard Proctor, B. A., Prof. Owen, Dr. W. B. Carpenter, Max Muller, J. Norman Lockyer, St. George Mivart, E. B. Taylor, and others, are given.

The ECLECTIC offers its readers the best serial stories, together with the short stories for which the English magazines have a high and deserved reputation.

Its EDITORIAL DEPARTMENTS comprise Literary Notices, (dealing with current books), Foreign Literary notes, Science and Art, (summarizing briefly the new discoveries and achievements in that field), and Variedas (containing of choice extracts from new books and foreign journals).

Each number contains a Fine Steel Engraving—usually a portrait—executed in the best manner.

TERMS.—Single copies, 45 cents; one copy one year, $5; two copies, 09; five copies, $20; Trial subscriptions for three months, $1. The ECLECTIC and any $4 magazine to one address $8.

Special offer to New Subscribers.

The publisher takes pleasure in announcing that he has made arrangements which enable him to furnish to every subscriber of the ECLECTIC (for one dollar in addition to the regular subscription price) a large and fine steel engraving, entitled "Highland Pets."

This engraving is from one of Landseer's most celebrated paintings, and represents a Highland girl surrounded by a group of fawns, which she is feeding, while her young brother holds a staff by pair of antlers, probably the trophy of some former chase. The size of the plate is 12 x 27 in., printed on heavy plate paper, making a picture suitable for the wall of any home. The regular price of this engraving is $2, but we furnish it only to subscribers of the ECLECTIC.

Centaur Liniments.

They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.

The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

J. B. ROSE & CO., 46 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey

To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Flicker's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.

COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Gout, Colds, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES

Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.

NATURAL SELECTION.

Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial property of man? An inferior article supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery

By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness. Tropid Liver, or "Liver Complaint," and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.

Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy foreboding, irregular appetite, and you are conscious you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness," In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

P.P.P.P.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.

The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They cause no pain or fear of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.

As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their salutive influence. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden and pasted boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Pimples, Blotches, Pimples, Sore-Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VIVACITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,
MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here tonight all right. I don't know what I should have done if it had not been for that remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I used SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.
Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 15, 1876.

Unbelief in High Places.

In continuation of what I wrote last week respecting the revolution in religious belief now in progress in this country, I may say that on last Sunday, in no less a place than Westminister Abbey, and by no less a personage than one of the canons of that church, the old orthodox doctrines of a material hell and eternal punishment were openly disavowed and ridiculed. For a boldness of opinion far less than this, only a few years ago, Mr. Maurice was driven from King's College. After his expulsion, clergymen were careful what they said on such subjects, whatever they may have thought, and the next man to give utterance to such sentiments was the author of the celebrated political skit "Dame Europa's School." He publicly declared that neither he nor the majority of the clergy really believed these doctrines, although they preached them. But he was only a young country curate, and what he said made little impression upon the public mind. Somewhat later—in fact, only last year—the incumbent of one of the Oxford churches—indeed, of the Corporation Church—a ripe scholar and a man much esteemed in the community, not only repudiated these doctrines from his pulpit, but engaged in a controversy in the Oxford newspapers, and maintained his position until his antagonists were silenced. The marvelous thing was that in neither of these instances were the offenders brought to book by their respective superiors. On the contrary, the former was appointed by the Government Chaplain to the late Arctic Expedition, and the latter still holds his position as rector of Carfax church, at Oxford. And now, in the most venerable of all the religious establishments in England, Canon Farrar, the author of the "Life of Christ," whose name only need be mentioned to insure his identification (for his reputation is world wide,) boldly declares his disbelief in what he described as the vulgar notions of a material and general and eternal hell, for which he says that St. Augustine was chiefly responsible, and which he asserted were really disproved by the isolated Scripture texts on which a belief in them had been founded. Canon Farrar even went so far as to say that the present revisers of the Bible will utterly fail in their duty if they allow such words as "damnation," "hell" and "eternal" to appear at all in the new version. You will naturally expect that this discourse must have created an intense excitement, and that all the vengeance of the religious community would ere this have been poured out upon the head of Canon Farrar, and upon the Dean of Westminster and his colleagues for permitting such heterodox sentiments to be sent forth from the old Abbey. Not a bit of it. Except an occasional expression of surprise in the newspapers, no public notice has been taken of the matter, and the fair presumption is that Canon Ferrar merely enunciated opinions that are really entertained by the great body of the community. But of what a revolution is this only the commencement! And where will disbelief stop?—Lon. Cor. Chicago Journal.

Woman's Head Gear.

Joseph Addison says of woman's headgear, "I would desire the fair sex to consider how impossible it is for them to add anything that can be ornamental to what is already the masterpiece of nature. The head has the most beautiful appearance as well as the highest station in the human figure. Nature has laid out all her art in beautifying the face; she has touched it with vermilion, planted in it a double row of ivory, made it the seat of smiles and blushes, lightened it up and enlivened it with the brightness of the eyes, hung it on each side with curious organs of sense, given it airs and graces that cannot be described, and surrounded it with such a flowing shade of hair as sets all its beauties in the most agreeable light. In short she seems to have designed the head as the cupola to the most glorious of her works, and when we load it with a pile of supernumerary ornaments, we destroy the symmetry of the human figure, and foolishly contrive to call off the eye from real beauties to childish gewgaws, ribbons and bone lace."

—Snoring is now politely described as indulging in sheet music.

—How to make a catfish—Leave her alone in a room with an aquarium.

—A method has been discovered for making more than the usual quantity of tea from any given quantity of leaf. The whole secret consists in steaming the leaf before steeping. By this process, it is said fourteen pints of good quality may be brewed from one ounce of tea.

The Loss of the Huron.

The opicion of the Naval Court of Inquiry into the Huron disaster has been promulgated by the Secretary of the Navy. The officers composing the court give a synopsis of all the testimony taken in the course of the inquiry, and refer frequently to it in their findings. Their conclusions are that Commander Ryan is primarily responsible for the loss of that vessel, and that Lieut. Palmer, the navigating officer, made errors in navigation; also that the deck officers, on the night of her loss, might have been at fault in not ascertaining the accuracy of the perpendicular soundings reported to them from time to time. The ship is reported to have been in every respect well found, staunch and seaworthy, and she was in that condition up to the time that she struck. They find that no one of the survivors from the wreck has any cause of complaint to make against any officer or man upon the vessel for want of hearty co-operation or loyal assistance in the midst of the perils that surrounded them, and find that every man was cool, ready, willing and brave up to the last moment.

News and Notes.

The Galveston (Texas) News of the 18th published what purports to be a despatch from the Sheriff of El Paso county to the Governor of Texas, stating that the State troops surrendered to the Mexican mob on the previous day, and that Howard, Atkinson and McBride, the owners of the salt lakes, were immediately shot in cold blood by the Mexicans. The War Department had received no such advices up to the morning of the 19th, but it was feared the statement would prove true. Howard was the slayer of Lewis Cardis, the Italian leader of the Mexican mob, some months ago, when the El Paso troubles commenced.

A team containing three men and a boy, returning to Groversdale, Mass., from a drunken carousal in Dudley, ran into obstructions by the roadside, Sunday afternoon, the result of reckless driving. The wagon was smashed and Henry Nickerson instantly killed. A young man named Haffie was seriously and probably fatally injured. A third man had all his ribs broken, but may survive, and the boy was badly bruised.

There is a serious strike of laborers on the Lachine canal, at Montreal, Canada. The men have been getting from eighty cents to ninety cents per day, and were paid very irregularly; they struck for regular payments and one dollar a day. Low as their pay was, others were found to take their places, and on Tuesday, the 18th inst., an attack was made on the latter by a mob of the strikers; the assailants were beaten off by a fusilade which killed one man and wounded several others.

There was almost a riot in New London, Conn., one evening recently. The principal show hall in that town, Lawrence Hall, had been hired by a travelling combination, and paid for in advance; but the janitor of the hall claimed the right to pass in, free, as many of his friends as he wished, asserting that the proprietor of the hall had given him that permission. This preposterous claim the manager of the show refused to submit to, and the janitor refused to open the hall; and it was not until the Mayor of the city authorized the showmen to chop down the door, and the waiting crowd threatened to hang the cheeky janitor, that the latter yielded and opened the doors. Frank Mayo and other theatrical managers have had similar trouble with the same fellow.

An exchange says: "The verdict of nine years imprisonment against Lucy Ann Mank, for causing the death of Charles Ricker in Lowell, was an important one from the fact that the shooting of Ricker was accidental, occurring while he was trying to prevent Miss Mank from shooting herself. The court ruled that, while suicide is felony, homicide resulting from it is manslaughter." It is more likely the jury considered the shooting of Ricker a premeditated murder, notwithstanding the woman's story and the ingenious defence of the counsel, and that the murder of another one of her paramoors in Maine a few years ago, had something to do with the verdict in this case.

About 300 of the employes of the cartridge factory, in Bridgeport, Conn., were temporarily dismissed from work, on the 15th, on account of a partial suspension of operations in the company's Turkish orders. The suspension is caused by the tardiness of the Turkish government in making payments.

A shrewd, keen-eyed Scotchman is employed to do nothing else than board, outside the New York Central Depot in New York, all incoming passenger trains, and go through the cars immediately after the passengers have left them, looking for lost articles. No train men or other employes are permitted to precede him, and if one may judge from his findings, his search must be very thorough. Scarcely a train comes in from which he does not gather up something. Overcoats, shawls, rubber shoes, satchels, umbrellas, canes, packages, silk hats, pocket books and jewelry are turned in by him in a steady stream, that has, notwithstanding the constant out-go to claimants, made up an accumulation that fills a huge closet and the greater part of a storeroom besides. Some things have been on hand for five years.

Charles E. Cutler of Massachusetts, who with Potter of Portland, Me., had building contracts amounting to $50,000 at St. John, N. B., absconded with $4,000. He has been arrested at Calais, Me., but it is doubtful if, under the reciprocity treaty, he can be taken back.

On Wednesday, the 16th of January, Senator Cockrell will submit in the Senate resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Senator Bogy, upon which there will be eulogistic remarks by six or eight Senators; and on Thursday, the next day, Senator McDonald will submit resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Senator Morton, upon which a number of Senators will speak.

Rear Admiral Henry Walker, a retired officer, was robbed by a stranger in the Seaman's bank in New York of $1,100 he had just drawn from the sub-treasury, and was about to deposit in the bank.

An expedition under the auspices of the French government is to be sent to San Francisco to observe the transit of Mercury, which occurs on May 6, 1878.

As 150 girls and boys were leaving Krebs & Speis' cigar factory at Forty-fourth street and Second avenue, New York, they were attacked by fifty strikers. The girls were the special objects of attack. Their hair was pulled down and their clothing torn. The faces of many of them were covered with blood. The boys defended them as well as they could, but were easily overcome by the superior strength of the men. The strikers avoided the police.

A vote of the New Haven Board of Education at its last meeting to exclude the Bible from the public schools, and that no religious exercises whatever be allowed, has caused considerable excitement, and Postmaster Sperry, in an address delivered on Sunday night, took strong ground against it.

Two sailing ships and a steamer will be ready to sail in February and March, under direction of the Secretary of the Navy, with goods for the French International Exposition. The Commissioner of Agriculture will prepare an extensive display of cotton, tobacco, wool, Indian corn, sugar, rice and other products of this country. He also intends to exhibit a choice collection of the different kinds of wood of this country.

A former conductor on the Metropolitan horse railroad of Boston has fallen heir to thirty thousand dollars. Honesty is the best policy.

The National Reform Convention at Rochester, N. Y., to advocate the express acknowledgment of God in the Constitution, met there Tuesday. Resolutions were adopted, the drift of which is that the duty of all good citizens is to favor express acknowledgment in the Constitution of the authority of God and Jesus Christ.

Mark Twain made a speech at the Atlantic dinner, recently, which was in bad taste. We refer to it, because Mark's sense of propriety needs development, and it is not his first offence. He told a story in which Messrs. Longfellow, Emerson and Holmes were represented as crowding their society upon a California miner, guzzling his whiskey and cheating him at cards. It was, of course, meant to be a piece of incongruous absurdity, and although the idea was not at all original, it might have seemed funny in some circles, when told with Mark's drawl, but men who have attained the years and fame of Longfellow and Emerson are entitled to some degree of respect amongst a company of their friends. The offence is easier to feel than describe, but it is one which if repeated would cost Mark Twain his place among the contributors to the Atlantic Monthly, where indeed his appearance was in the beginning considered an innovation. —Worcester Gazette.

Political.

If ever there was in this country a more disgusting exhibition of the prostitution of the machinery of justice for partisan purposes than was exhibited at the late execution in Kemper county, Miss., of the negro murderer Walter Riley, no record of it has been kept. When the doomed man took his place on the scaffold he was allowed to be questioned for more than an hour by some of the democratic spectators, in the hope that he would implicate Judge Chisolm in the murder of the democratic leader, Gully, whose assassination was the pretext for the brutal butchery of Judge Chisolm and his son and sixteen-years-old daughter; but he failed to do so, saying, "I can't go before God with a lie in my mouth. If any white man had anything to do with the murder I don't know it." This last exhibition of Kemper county decency but intensifies the popular contempt for its brutal population.

The President's special message on the civil service will be ready soon after the re-assembling of Congress. It will set forth at length the President's views in regard to patronage, and will take the position that Congress, as well as the President, has been instructed by the national conventions and by nearly every State convention on this subject, and that he is simply attempting to carry out the letter of these instructions, given him in advance by those who elected him. The constitutional right of the President to originate nominations will be insisted upon, and in that the message will be a notice to the country and to Congress that, in the pending contest with the Senate, the President has not thought of surrendering.

Senator Gordon has gone home to Georgia. The democrats opposed to him says that his failure to send Conkling a challenge will weaken him very much in Georgia, and injure his prospects for re-election, from which it appears that the fire-eating democrats of the South hope to yet re-establish the plantation whip in the position it once held as the sceptre of power in the National Congress. It cannot be done; the supreme rule of the plantation bully was ended some time ago.

James T. Farley, just elected United States Senator by the Legislature of California, declared recently to a representative of the San Francisco Bulletin that he is opposed to the government's paying a subsidy to the Texas Pacific or any other railroad; that he believes a silver dollar should be a dollar in fact as well as in name; that he agrees with Tilden on the financial and resumption questions; that he is emphatically opposed to Chinese immigration; and that he believes the present protective tariff should be reduced until we have reached free, open trade with the world for our market.

The scholars sit in Rindge while the teacher stands on the floor in New Ipswich, and recreation is taken in Ashburnham, from which place come seven of the pupils.

THE CITY.

"The Chimney Corner," this (Thursday) evening.

There are thirty prisoners now confined in Portsmouth jail—the largest number ever there at any one time.

See H. B. Buzzell & Son's advertisement of goods for the Christmas and New Year's trade, in another column.

There is to be a business meeting of the Reform Club this evening at half-past seven o'clock, in Mechanics' Hall; a full attendance is requested.

Schooner Utica, Martin, from Boston for Calais, while trying to beat into Portland for a harbor Dec. 17th, broke her foreboom and tore sails so that the captain was compelled to put her before the wind and run for Portsmouth harbor, where she arrived on the 18th; she will repair before proceeding.

The house of Mr. Robert Bickford at South Deerfield, together with the barn and outbuildings, were destroyed by fire on the 15th inst. Some of the furniture was saved. Insured $2000. Mr. Bickford, who married a Portsmouth lady a few weeks since, was absent at the time of the fire, which caught from a defective chimney; he formerly kept a store on Christian Shore.

A committee of Lincoln Hook and Ladder Company, of Dover, visited this city on the 15th inst. to make arrangements for the 47th annual supper of the organization, to be served at the Kearsarge House this (Thursday) evening. They extended invitations to Chief Engineer Fletcher and the foremen of the Portsmouth engine companies, and to all the officers of the Portsmouth hook and ladder company, to be present. The Dover company and their guests will number about sixty persons.

Franklin Hall was crowded again on Wednesday evening, and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The evening's entertainment consisted of music by the Harlow brothers, singing by the Casey brothers, comic songs by Thomas Faulkner, and a burlesque sleight-of-hand performance by "Prof. Arts," all of which were entertaining and well received. The hall was more attractive than on the opening night, the tables being filled with fancy articles and the gifts more prominently displayed. The presents will be allotted to the holders of season tickets this evening.

The Boston papers of Wednesday contained the following: "The store of John Haber of Portsmouth was broken into Monday night by tramps, and robbed of liquors and other articles. The money drawer was also tapped and over $200 taken therefrom." On enquiring of the police respecting the truth of the statement quoted, we were informed that Haber's "store" is a one-horse liquor saloon, and that though it was broken into Monday night, as stated, the police regard the $200 part of the story as a poetical license indulged in by the reporter.

POLICE COURT.

Wednesday, Dec. 19th; Batchelder, J.

Poor day for business; only one customer. Joseph Faben, for brawl and tumult, was assessed $9.90, fine and costs.

THE VICINITY.

The late W. F. Groves, who lost his life at the fire at Straw's Point, Rye Beach, had a life insurance of $2000, the avails of which have been sent to his mother in England.

The large two-story house and ell owned by E. C. Moody and Eliza E. Moody, at York, was burned about one o'clock, Wednesday morning. A part of the furniture owned by I. P. Moody, Esq., of Boston, was saved. It was one of the best built houses in town, and was partially insured. Loss about $2500.

—It is buckwheat that, crushed to earth, will rise again.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 162.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

Concord was settled about 1725, and incorporated in 1733. The first houses and its first meeting house were of logs. The meeting house was toward the north end of Main street where the large church edifice long occupied by the oldest Congregational Society stood. In this last, on what was called "Election Day," the Legislature used to assemble, with the Governor, Council and others, in great numbers to hear the Election Sermon. The building finally was occupied by the Methodist Biblical Institute, and a few years ago was consumed by fire.

The account I have, which I suppose is correct, is that the first house in town built of timber and boards is still standing. It is north of the State House several rods and on the same side of Main street. A street leads off to the west, called Montgomery street. Near the corner of this and Main street, this house stood, but it has been moved some, to make room for a good dwelling, that now stands there. The old house is now used in part for a stable and in part for a woodshed.

How old this house is I do not know. Several in the lower parts of the State are older. It is not large and probably had but two rooms.

When I stood within this dwelling, about six months ago, my reflections were on the period when it stood in the forest, with a small opening, and a few rude cottages, mostly further north. The inhabitants at times were in terrible fear of the Indians, and this house was a garrison, with probably a log defence around it. The Indians, without doubt, saw it, and their warwhoop was heard in places not far away.

Correction.—In No. 161 of the Old Time Chronicles, recently published, the name "Ralph," frequently occurring, should have been printed "Rolfe."

The Romance of a Sleeping Car.

It was in the Cedar Rapids sleeper. Outside it was dark as the inside of an ink-bottle. In the sleeping-car people slept.

Or tried it.

Some of them slept like Christian men and women, peacefully and sweetly and quietly.

Others slept like demons, malignantly, hideously, fiendishly, as though it was their mission to keep everybody else awake.

Of these the man in the lower number three was the "boss." When it came to a square snore with variations, you wanted to count "lower three" in. With a full hand and a pocket full of rocks.

We never heard anything snore like him. It was the most systematic snoring that was ever done, even on one of those tournaments of snoring, a sleeping-car. He didn't begin as soon as the lamps were turned down and everybody was in bed. Oh no. There was more cold-blooded diabolism in his system than that. He waited until everybody had had a little taste of sleep, just to see how good and pleasant it was, and then he broke in on their slumbers like a winged, breathing demon, and they never knew what peace was again that night.

He started out with a terrific

"Gn-r-r-r-t!"

That opened every eye in the car. We all hoped it was an accident, however, and trusting he wouldn't do it again, we all forgave him. Then he blasted our hopes and curdled the sweet serenity of our forgiveness by a long drawn

"Gw-a-h-h-hah!"

That sounded too much like business to be accidental. Then every head in that sleepless sleeper was held off the pillow for a minute, waiting in breathless suspense to hear the worst, and the sleeper in "lower three" went on in long-drawn, regular cadences that indicated good staying qualities.

"Gwn-a-ah! Gwa-a-a-ah! Gahwahwah! Gahwahwah! Gahwah-a-aah!"

Evidently it was going to last all night, and the weary heads dropped back on the sleepless pillows, and the swearing began. It mumbled along in low, muttering tones, like the distant echoes of a profane thunderstorm. Pretty soon the "lower three" gave us a little variation. He shot off a spiteful

"Gwook!"

Which sounded as though his nose had got mad at him and was going to strike. Then there was a pause, and we began to hope he had either awakened from sleep or strangled to death, nobody cared very particularly which. But he disappointed everybody with a gutteral

"Gurooch!"

Then he paused again for breath, and when he had accumulated enough for his purpose he resumed business with a stentorious

"Kowpf!"

That nearly shot the roof off the car. Then he went on playing such queer tricks with his nose, and breathing things that would make the immortal gods weep if they did but hear him. It seemed a matter incredible, it seemed an utter, preposterous impossibility that any human being could make the monstrous, hideous noises with its breathing machine that the fellow in "lower three" was making with his. He ran through all the ranges of the nasal gamut, he went up and down a very chromatic scale of snores, he ran through intricate and fearful variations until it seemed that his nose must be out of joint in a thousand places. All the night through he told his story.

"Gawoh! gurrah? gu-r-r! Kowpff! Gawawah? gawah-hah! gwock gwarrt! gwah-h-h-ll whoof!"

Just as the other passengers had consulted together how they might slay him, morning dawned, and "lower number three" awoke. Everybody watched the curtain to see what manner of man it was that had made that beautiful sleeping-car a pandemonium. Presently the toilet was completed, the curtains parted, and "lower number three" stood revealed.

Great heavens!

It was a fair young girl, with golden hair, and timid pleading eyes, like a hunted fawn's!—Burlington Hawkeye.

There is an advertisement in our columns to which we take much pleasure in referring our readers, because we believe in it and can conscientiously and heartily recommend it. We refer to Hall's Hair Renewer. We remember many cases in our midst of old and middle aged people who formerly wore grey hair, or whose locks were thin and faded, but who now have presentable head pieces, and with no little pride announce to their friends that they have't a grey hair in their heads. It is a pardonable pride, and the world would be better off, if there was more of it, for when the aged make themselves attractive to others they are more certain to win and retain the esteem and respect to which a burthen of well spent years entitles them. Try Hall's Hair Renewer if age or disease has thinned or whitened your locks and you will thank us for our advice.—Pan Handle News, Wellsburg, W. Va.

On the 8th of January, 1815, the Mississippi River was forever freed by the victory of General Jackson, with his little army of backwoodsmen over colums of veterans, fresh from the Napoleonic battlefields. It will be celebrated at New Orleans this year with a grand demonstration, the principal feature of which will be the distribution of over $110,000 in cash, by the Louisiana State Lottery Company, with tickets at only two dollars each. The plan is published in another column, and a letter addressed to M. A. Dauphin, P. O. Box 692, New Orleans, will receive immediate attention. The memory of the illustrious Andrew Jackson is as popular to-day in New Orleans as Generals Beauregard and Jubal A. Early, the commissioners of the Lottery.

The Loss of the Huron.

The opinion of the Naval Court of Inquiry into the Huron disaster has been promulgated by the Secretary of the Navy. The officers composing the court give a synopsis of all the testimony taken in the course of the inquiry, and refer frequently to it in their findings. Their conclusions are that Commander Ryan is primarily responsible for the loss of that vessel, and that Lieut. Palmer, the navigating officer, made errors in navigation; also that the deck officers, on the night of her loss, might have been at fault in not ascertaining the accuracy of the perpendicular soundings reported to them from time to time. The ship is reported to have been in every respect well found, staunch and seaworthy, and she was in that condition up to the time that she struck. They find that no one of the survivors from the wreck has any cause of complaint to make against any officer or man upon the vessel for want of hearty co-operation or loyal assistance in the midst of the perils that surrounded them, and find that every man was cool, ready, willing and brave up to the last moment.

News and Notes.

The Galveston (Texas) News of the 18th published what purports to be a despatch from the Sheriff of El Paso county to the Governor of Texas, stating that the State troops surrendered to the Mexican mob on the previous day, and that Howard, Atkinson and McBride, the owners of the salt lakes, were immediately shot in cold blood by the Mexicans. The War Department had received no such advices up to the morning of the 19th, but it was feared the statement would prove true. Howard was the slayer of Lewis Cardis, the Italian leader of the Mexican mob, some months ago, when the El Paso troubles commenced.

A team containing three men and a boy, returning to Groversdale, Mass., from a drunken carousal in Dudley, ran into obstructions by the roadside, Sunday afternoon, the result of reckless driving. The wagon was smashed and Henry Nickerson instantly killed. A young man named Haffie was seriously and probably fatally injured. A third man had all his ribs broken, but may survive, and the boy was badly bruised.

There is a serious strike of laborers on the Lachine canal, at Montreal, Canada. The men have been getting from eighty cents to ninety cents per day, and were paid very irregularly; they struck for regular payments and one dollar a day. Low as their pay was, others were found to take their places, and on Tuesday, the 18th inst., an attack was made on the latter by a mob of the strikers; the assailants were beaten off by a fusilade which killed one man and wounded several others.

There was almost a riot in New London, Conn., one evening recently. The principal show hall in that town, Lawrence Hall, had been hired by a travelling combination, and paid for in advance; but the janitor of the hall claimed the right to pass in, free, as many of his friends as he wished, asserting that the proprietor of the hall had given him that permission. This preposterous claim the manager of the show refused to submit to, and the janitor refused to open the hall; and it was not until the Mayor of the city authorized the showmen to chop down the door, and the waiting crowd threatened to hang the cheeky janitor, that the latter yielded and opened the doors. Frank Mayo and other theatrical managers have had similar trouble with the same fellow.

An exchange says: "The verdict of nine years imprisonment against Lucy Ann Mank, for causing the death of Charles Ricker in Lowell, was an important one from the fact that the shooting of Ricker was accidental, occurring while he was trying to prevent Miss Mank from shooting herself. The court ruled that, while suicide is felony, homicide resulting from it is manslaughter." It is more likely the jury considered the shooting of Ricker a premeditated murder, notwithstanding the woman's story and the ingenious defence of the counsel, and that the murder of another one of her paramours in Maine a few years ago, had something to do with the verdict in this case.

About 300 of the employes of the cartridge factory, in Bridgeport, Conn., were temporarily dismissed from work, on the 15th, on account of a partial suspension of operations in the company's Turkish orders. The suspension is caused by the tardiness of the Turkish government in making payments.

A shrewd, keen-eyed Scotchman is employed to do nothing else than board, outside the New York Central Depot in New York, all incoming passenger trains, and go through the cars immediately after the passengers have left them, looking for lost articles. No train men or other employes are permitted to precede him, and if one may judge from his findings, his search must be very thorough. Scarcely a train comes in from which he does not gather up something. Overcoats, shawls, rubber shoes, satchels, umbrellas, canes, packages, silk hats, pocket books and jewelry are turned in by him in a steady stream, that has, notwithstanding the constant out-go to claimants, made up an accumulation that fills a huge closet and the greater part of a storeroom besides. Some things have been on hand for five years.

Charles E. Cutler of Massachusetts, who with Potter of Portland, Me., had building contracts amounting to $50,000 at St. John, N. B., absconded with $4,000. He has been arrested at Calais, Me., but it is doubtful if, under the reciprocity treaty, he can be taken back.

On Wednesday, the 16th of January, Senator Cockrell will submit in the Senate resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Senator Bogy, upon which there will be eulogistic remarks by six or eight Senators; and on Thursday, the next day, Senator McDonald will submit resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Senator Morton, upon which a number of Senators will speak.

Rear Admiral Henry Walker, a retired officer, was robbed by a stranger in the Seaman's bank in New York of $1,100 he had just drawn from the sub-treasury, and was about to deposit in the bank.

It is given out that Col. McClure, of the Philadelphia Times, is about to take the editorship of the New York Tribune, vice Mr. Whitelaw Reid.

An expedition under the auspices of the French government is to be sent to San Francisco to observe the transit of Mercury, which occurs on May 6, 1878.

As 150 girls and boys were leaving Krebs & Speis' cigar factory at Forty-fourth street and Second avenue, New York, they were attacked by fifty strikers. The girls were the special objects of attack. Their hair was pulled down and their clothing torn. The faces of many of them were covered with blood. The boys defended them as well as they could, but were easily overcome by the superior strength of the men. The strikers avoided the police.

A vote of the New Haven Board of Education at its last meeting to exclude the Bible from the public schools, and that no religious exercises whatever be allowed, has caused considerable excitement, and Postmaster Sperry, in an address delivered on Sunday night, took strong ground against it.

Two sailing ships and a steamer will be ready to sail in February and March, under direction of the Secretary of the Navy, with goods for the French International Exposition. The Commissioner of Agriculture will prepare an extensive display of cotton, tobacco, wool, Indian corn, sugar, rice and other products of this country. He also intends to exhibit a choice collection of the different kinds of wood of this country.

The railroads leading out of Boston run special trains to take persons to see the "Exiles" at the Boston Theatre.

A former conductor on the Metropolitan horse railroad of Boston has fallen heir to thirty thousand dollars. Honesty is the best policy.

The National Reform Convention at Rochester, N. Y., to advocate the express acknowledgment of God in the Constitution, met there Tuesday. Resolutions were adopted, the drift of which is that the duty of all good citizens is to favor express acknowledgment in the Constitution of the authority of God and Jesus Christ.

Mark Twain made a speech at the Atlantic dinner, recently, which was in bad taste. We refer to it, because Mark's sense of propriety needs development, and it is not his first offence. He told a story in which Messrs. Longfellow, Emerson and Holmes were represented as crowding their society upon a California miner, guzzling his whiskey and cheating him at cards. It was, of course, meant to be a piece of incongruous absurdity, and although the idea was not at all original, it might have seemed funny in some circles, when told with Mark's drawl, but men who have attained the years and fame of Longfellow and Emerson are entitled to some degree of respect amongst a company of their friends. The offence is easier to feel than describe, but it is one which if repeated would cost Mark Twain his place among the contributors to the Atlantic Monthly, where indeed his appearance was in the beginning considered an innovation. —Worcester Gazette.

Political.

If ever there was in this country a more disgusting exhibition of the prostitution of the machinery of justice for partisan purposes than was exhibited at the late execution in Kemper county, Miss., of the negro murderer Walter Riley, no record of it has been kept. When the doomed man took his place on the scaffold he was allowed to be questioned for more than an hour by some of the democratic spectators, in the hope that he would implicate Judge Chisolm in the murder of the democratic leader, Gully, whose assassination was the pretext for the brutal butchery of Judge Chisolm and his son and sixteen-years-old daughter; but he failed to do so, saying, "I can't go before God with a lie in my mouth. If any white man had anything to do with the murder I don't know it." This last exhibition of Kemper county decency but intensifies the popular contempt for its brutal population.

The President's special message on the civil service will be ready soon after the re-assembling of Congress. It will set forth at length the President's views in regard to patronage, and will take the position that Congress, as well as the President, has been instructed by the national conventions and by nearly every State convention on this subject, and that he is simply attempting to carry out the letter of these instructions, given him in advance by those who elected him. The constitutional right of the President to originate nominations will be insisted upon, and in that the message will be a notice to the country and to Congress that, in the pending contest with the Senate, the President has not thought of surrendering.

Senator Gordon has gone home to Georgia. The democrats opposed to him says that his failure to send Conkling a challenge will weaken him very much in Georgia, and injure his prospects for re-election, from which it appears that the fire-eating democrats of the South hope to yet re-establish the plantation whip in the position it once held as the sceptre of power in the National Congress. It cannot be done; the supreme rule of the plantation bully was ended some time ago.

James T. Farley, just elected United States Senator by the Legislature of California, declared recently to a representative of the San Francisco Bulletin that he is opposed to the government's paying a subsidy to the Texas Pacific or any other railroad; that he believes a silver dollar should be a dollar in fact as well as in name; that he agrees with Tilden on the financial and resumption questions; that he is emphatically opposed to Chinese immigration; and that he believes the present protective tariff should be reduced until we have reached free, open trade with the world for our market.

New Hampshire Items.

Webb Cross was drowned in the millpond at Goff's Falls, Wednesday, while skating.

Ex-Gov. Dix of New York has sent a large donation of books to the public library in Rumney.

Dr. O. Goss has been chosen President of the Lake Village Savings Bank, in place of Hon. B. J. Cole, resigned.

The remains of Rev. Dr. J. H. Eames, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church of Concord, who died at Bermuda on the 10th, arrived there and were taken to the church. The funeral occurred on Wednesday, the 19th, Bishop Niles officiating.

The estate of the late Betsey Whitehouse of Pembroke, concerning which there is some litigation, has been inventoried at $268,000, being one of the largest properties ever left in the State. It is largely invested in stock and securities of New Hampshire railroads.

Prof. F. L. Bartlett has recently made a discovery of nickel ore at Milan. This mineral is very valuable and scarce, there being but three other mines known in the United States.

"The "Mountain District," so called, lies mostly in the town of Rindge, but in it meet the corners of three towns, Ashburnham, New Ipswich and Rindge, situated respectively in the counties of Worcester, (Mass.,) Hillsboro' and Cheshire. The schoolhouse stands on the centering lines and rapid transportation can be made from one town to the other. The scholars sit in Rindge while the teacher stands on the floor in New Ipswich, and recreation is taken in Ashburnham, from which place come seven of the pupils.

The Eastern War.

Adlie has been evacuated by the Turks and occupied by the Servians.

A despatch from Vienna reports a general forward movement of the Russian armies around Plevna. Bucharest advices say Russia has ordered the mobilization of 60,000 more troops, and that the indications are that they will attack the Shipka Pass. [What the Russians want to attack Shipka Pass, for when they have been in possession of it for months, is not stated.]

English papers say the ministry will ask Parliament to increase the army; also that contracts for the prompt furnishing of 300,000 boots and shoes are asked for.

—Two plans for preventing collisions at sea have just been perfected. One is by an English inventor, and consists of a system of lights on the bow moving automatically with the helm, so as to inform any approaching vessel of the exact way the vessel they are on is steering. The other, by Marshal Waldron of Tennessee, consists in a series of buoys to be anchored in deep water, say five miles from a dangerous coast, each furnished with an electic candle, to be lit every ten minutes by an operator at some convenient point on shore.

—A bunch of natural flowers, without leaves, worn in the hair, another to match on the front of the dress, and one carried in the hand, are the indispensable attributes of evening dresses abroad, and the newest idea of fashion.

THE CITY.

"The Chimney Corner," this (Thursday) evening.

There are thirty prisoners now confined in Portsmouth jail—the largest number ever there at any one time.

See H. B. Buzzell & Son's advertisement of goods for the Christmas and New Year's trade, in another column.

There is to be a business meeting of the Reform Club this evening at half-past seven o'clock, in Mechanics' Hall; a full attendance is requested.

Schooner Utica, Marsin, from Boston for Calais, while trying to beat into Portland for a harbor Dec. 17th, broke her foreboom and tore sails so that the captain was compelled to put her before the wind and run for Portsmouth harbor, where she arrived on the 18th; she will repair before proceeding.

The house of Mr. Robert Bickford at South Deerfield, together with the barn and outbuildings, were destroyed by fire on the 15th inst. Some of the furniture was saved. Insured $2000. Mr. Bickford, who married a Portsmouth lady a few weeks since, was absent at the time of the fire, which caught from a defective chimney; he formerly kept a store on Christian Shore.

A committee of Lincoln Hook and Ladder Company, of Dover, visited this city on the 15th inst. to make arrangements for the 47th annual supper of the organization, to be served at the Kearsarge House this (Thursday) evening. They extended invitations to Chief Engineer Fletcher and the foremen of the Portsmouth engine companies, and to all the officers of the Portsmouth hook and ladder company, to be present. The Dover company and their guests will number about sixty persons.

Franklin Hall was crowded again on Wednesday evening, and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The evening's entertainment consisted of music by the Harlow brothers, singing by the Casey brothers, comic songs by Thomas Faulkner, and a burlesque sleight-of-hand performance by "Prof. Arts," all of which were entertaining and well received. The hall was more attractive than on the opening night, the tables being filled with fancy articles and the gifts more prominently displayed. The presents will be allotted to the holders of season tickets this evening.

The Boston papers of Wednesday contained the following: "The store of John Haher of Portsmouth was broken into Monday night by tramps, and robbed of liquors and other articles. The money drawer was also tapped and over $200 taken therefrom." On enquiring of the police respecting the truth of the statement quoted, we were informed that Haher's "store" is a one-horse liquor saloon, and that though it was broken into Monday night, as stated, the police regard the $200 part of the story as a poetical license indulged in by the reporter.

POLICE COURT.

Wednesday, Dec. 19th; Batchelder, J.

Poor day for business; only one customer. Joseph Faben, for brawl and tumult, was assessed $9.90, fine and costs.

THE VICINITY.

The late W. F. Groves, who lost his life at the fire at Straw's Point, Rye Beach, had a life insurance of $2000, the avails of which have been sent to his mother in England.

The large two-story house and ell owned by E. C. Moody and Eliza E. Moody, at York, was burned about one o'clock, Wednesday morning. A part of the furniture owned by I. P. Moody, Esq., of Boston, was saved. It was one of the best built houses in town, and was partially insured. Loss about $2500.

—It is buckwheat that, crushed to earth, will rise again.

—Not long ago (remarks the New York Mail) girls of the period used to see how much of their skirt could drag over the pavement, but now the effort is made to carry as much in your hand as possible.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 162.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

Concord was settled about 1725, and incorporated in 1733. The first houses and its first meeting house were of logs. The meeting house was toward the north end of Main street where the large church edifice long occupied by the oldest Congregational Society stood. In this last, on what was called "Election Day," the Legislature used to assemble, with the Governor, Council and others, in great numbers to hear the Election Sermon. The building finally was occupied by the Methodist Biblical Institute, and a few years ago was consumed by fire.

The account I have, which I suppose is correct, is that the first house in town built of timber and boards is still standing. It is north of the State House several rods and on the same side of Main street. A street leads off to the west, called Montgomery street. Near the corner of this and Main street, this house stood, but it has been moved some, to make room for a good dwelling, that now stands there. The old house is now used in part for a stable and in part for a woodshed.

How old this house is I do not know. Several in the lower parts of the State are older. It is not large and probably had but two rooms.

When I stood within this dwelling, about six months ago, my reflections were on the period when it stood in the forest, with a small opening, and a few rude cottages, mostly further north. The inhabitants at times were in terrible fear of the Indians, and this house was a garrison, with probably a log defence around it. The Indians, without doubt, saw it, and their warwhoop was heard in places not far away.

Correction.—In No. 161 of the Old Time Chronicles, recently published, the name "Ralph," frequently occurring, should have been printed "Rolfe."

The Romance of a Sleeping Car.

It was in the Cedar Rapids sleeper. Outside it was dark as the inside of an ink-bottle. In the sleeping-car people slept.

Or tried it.

Some of them slept like Christian men and women, peacefully and sweetly and quietly.

Others slept like demons, malignantly, hideously, fiendishly, as though it was their mission to keep everybody else awake.

Of these the man in the lower number three was the "boss." When it came to a square snore with variations, you wanted to count "lower three" in. With a full hand and a pocket full of rocks.

We never heard anything snore like him. It was the most systematic snoring that was ever done, even on one of those tournaments of snoring, a sleeping-car. He didn't begin as soon as the lamps were turned down and everybody was in bed. Oh no. There was more cold-blooded diabolism in his system than that. He waited until everybody had had a little taste of sleep, just to see how good and pleasant it was, and then he broke in on their slumbers like a winged, breathing demon, and they never knew what peace was again that night.

He started out with a terrific

"Gn-r-r-r-t!"

That opened every eye in the car. We all hoped it was an accident, however, and trusting he wouldn't do it again, we all forgave him. Then he blasted our hopes and curdled the sweet serenity of our forgiveness by a long drawn

"Gw-a-h-h-hah!"

That sounded too much like business to be accidental. Then every head in that sleepless sleeper was held off the pillow for a minute, waiting in breathless suspense to hear the worst, and the sleeper in "lower three" went on in long-drawn, regular cadences that indicated good staying qualities.

"Gwn-a-ah! Gwa-a-a-ah! Gahwahwah! Gabwahwah! Gahwah-a-aah!"

Evidently it was going to last all night, and the weary heads dropped back on the sleepless pillows, and the swearing began. It mumbled along in low, muttering tones, like the distant echoes of a profane thunderstorm. Pretty soon the "lower three" gave us a little variation. He shot off a spiteful

"Gwook!"

Which sounded as though his nose had got mad at him and was going to strike. Then there was a pause, and we began to hope he had either awakened from sleep or strangled to death, nobody cared very particularly which. But he disappointed everybody with a gutteral

"Gurooch!"

Then he paused again for breath, and when he had accumulated enough for his purpose he resumed business with a stentorious

"Kowpf!"

That nearly shot the roof off the car. Then he went on playing such queer tricks with his nose, and breathing things that would make the immortal gods weep if they did but hear him. It seemed a matter incredible, it seemed an utter, preposterous impossibility that any human being could make the monstrous, hideous noises with its breathing machine that the fellow in "lower three" was making with his. He ran through all the ranges of the nasal gamut, he went up and down a very chromatic scale of snores, he ran through intricate and fearful variations until it seemed that his nose must be out of joint in a thousand places. All the night through he told his story.

"Gawoh! gurrah? gu-r-r! Kowpf! Gawawah? gawah-hah! gwock gwarrt! gwah-h-h-ll whoof!"

Just as the other passengers had consulted together how they might slay him, morning dawned, and "lower number three" awoke. Everybody watched the curtain to see what manner of man it was that had made that beautiful sleeping-car a pandemonium. Presently the toilet was completed, the curtains parted, and "lower number three" stood revealed.

Great heavens!

It was a fair young girl, with golden hair, and timid pleading eyes, like a hunted fawn's!—Burlington Hawkeye.

—The benefits of advertising were never better illustrated than at Hartford the other day. A man went into a newspaper office to advertise for a missing cuff and cuff-button, and in explaining to the sympathizing clerk the theory of how the loss occurred, he found that he had buttoned both his cuffs upon one wristband.

There is an advertisement in our columns to which we take much pleasure in referring our readers, because we believe in it and can conscientiously and heartily recommend it. We refer to Hall's Hair Renewer. We remember many cases in our midst of old and middle aged people who formerly wore grey hair, or whose locks were thin and faded, but who now have presentable head pieces, and with no little pride announce to their friends that they haven't a grey hair in their heads. It is a pardonable pride, and the world would be better off, if there was more of it, for when the aged make themselves attractive to others they are more certain to win and retain the esteem and respect to which a burthen of well spent years entitles them. Try Hall's Hair Renewer if age or disease has thinned or whitened your locks and you will thank us for our advice.—Pen Handle News, Wellsburg, W. Va.

On the 8th of January, 1815, the Mississippi River was forever freed by the victory of General Jackson, with his little army of backwoodsmen over columns of veterans, fresh from the Napoleonic battlefields. It will be celebrated at New Orleans this year with a grand demonstration, the principal feature of which will be the distribution of over $110,000 in cash, by the Louisiana State Lottery Company, with tickets at only two dollars each. The plan is published in another column, and a letter addressed to M. A. Dauphin, P. O. Box 692, New Orleans, will receive immediate attention. The memory of the illustrious Andrew Jackson is as popular to-day in New Orleans as Generals Beauregard and Jubal A. Early, the commissioners of the Lottery.

A Big Bell.

The largest bell in the world is said to be in Kyoto, Japan, and it is perfect in tone. By measurement it exceeds the great bells at Pekin, China, and at Russia, both of which are also said to be cracked. Where the bell was cast and by whom is lost in the shades of antiquity. Chinese and Sanscrit characters cover the entire surface of the bell, but no modern Japanese scholar or priest can translate them. This bell is twenty-four feet in height and sixteen inches thick at the rim, and, when the priests sound it at eight o'clock every evening, its majestic boom is heard many miles down the valley. None of the bells in Japan have "clappers," but are sounded by suspended levers of wood, used like a battering-ram, and striking the bell on the outside.

—There were only seventy cats at the Philadelphia cat show. Almost any man recollects times when he has tossed on his sleepless pillow and distinguished [the voices of more than seventy cats on the ridgepole of an adjacent woodshed. At such times a man seldom estimates the number at figures short of a million.

—It is related of the late Mr. Mitchell, the London theatrical and musical agent, that about thirty-six years ago he made a professional call at Buckingham Palace and was shown the royal baby, who shrieked loudly at the sight of a strange face. Mr. Mitchell, turning to the nurse, said, "Don't you hear what his royal Highness is saying?" The nurse thought that he was asking to be taken away. "Not at all," said Mr. Mitchell, "he is saying, 'I appoint Mr. Mitchell purveyor of concerts to his royal Highness the Prince of Wales.'" Highly amused, the Prince Consort at once assented to the appointment, and Mr. Mitchell held the office until his death.

THIRTY-FOURTH YEAR.

The ECLECTIC reprints monthly from all the foreign Quarterlies, Reviews, Magazines and Journals, their choicest contents, including ESSAYS, SCIENTIFIC PAPERS, BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES, TALES, STORIES and POEMS. The field of selection is very large, and it is believed that the ECLECTIC presents a greater variety and higher standard of Literature than any periodical that depends exclusively upon home talent.

In GENERAL LITERATURE such writers as Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, James Anthony Froude, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Francis Power Cobbe, Leslie Stephen, Arthur Helps, Alfred Tennyson, Thomas Hughes, William Black, Mrs. Oliphant, Thomas Hardy, Turgenieff, William Morris, Miss Thackeray, and others equally eminent, are represented in its pages.

In SCIENCE, the best articles of such thinkers and writers as Prof. Huxley and Tyndall, Richard Proctor, B. A., Prof. Owen, Dr. W. B. Carpenter, Max Muller, J. Norman Lockyer, St. George Mivart, E. B. Taylor, and others, are given.

The ECLECTIC offers its readers the best special stories, together with the short stories for which the English magazines have a high and deserved reputation.

Its EDITORIAL DEPARTMENTS comprise Literary Notices, (dealing with current new books) Foreign Literary notes, Science and Art, (summarizing briefly the new discoveries and achievements in this field), and Varieties (consisting of choice extracts from new books and foreign journals).

Each number contains a Fine Steel Engraving—usually a portrait—executed in the best manner.

TERMS.—Single copies, 45 cents; one copy one year, $5; two copies, $9; five copies, $20; Trial subscription for three months, 50 cents. ECLECTIC and any $4 magazine to one address $8.

Special offer to New Subscribers.

The publisher takes pleasure in announcing that he has made arrangements which enable him to furnish to every subscriber of the ECLECTIC (for one dollar in addition to the regular subscription price) a large and fine steel engraving, entitled "Highland Pets."

This engraving is from one of Landseer's most celebrated paintings, and represents a Highland girl surrounded by a group of fawns, which she is feeding, while her young brother holds a stately pair of antlers, probably the trophy of some former chase. The size of the plate is 18 x 27 in. printed on heavy plate paper, making a picture suitable for the wall of any room. The regular price of this engraving is $5, but we furnish it only to subscribers of the ECLECTIC.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur
Liniments.

They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.

The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures or of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons suffering from crippled for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

Honey

To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castorir is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.

COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & Co., N. Y.
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S
STANDARD
REMEDIES

Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.

NATURAL SELECTION.

Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery

Golden Medical Discovery

By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness; Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.

Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness," in many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Dr. Pierce's
Pleasant
Purgative
Pellets.

Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.

The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.

As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, High-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, as gland only being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore-Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,

You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

Tackling His Wife's Mother.

They had been having pancakes since the 1st of February. He was an economical man, and thought fifty-cent molasses was good enough. She was a trifle more refined in her taste, and yearned for syrup; but, being a patient and meek woman, she gave up the struggle for the desire of her heart, and quietly submitted to his decision. Last Friday her mother made them her first visit. She is a woman of large bone, quick of thought, and amply adapted to tussle with the problems of life. She didn't take to the cheap adornment of the pancakes, and asked her daughter why she didn't have syrup.

"These cakes are too good to be smeared with such stuff," she asserted in a tone of disgust.

The wife made a feeble reply, while the husband smiled grimly to himself.

"Can't you get syrup in Danbury?" she asked him.

"I s'pose so."

"Then I shall expect some for my breakfast to-morrow morning," she said, looking straight at him.

Next morning the pitcher of molasses was on the table. She picked it up, and smelled of the contents.

"Faugh!" she exclaimed, lifting her nose: "where's that syrup?"

"I didn't get it!" said he, without looking up.

"Did you forget it?" she asked, opening her lips as little as possible to say the words.

"No."

"Why didn't you get it, then?"

"Because it cost more than I want to pay."

"Oh!"

There was a moment's pause after this ejaculation, during which he raised his eyes to leer at her, but dropped them again, and moved uneasily in his chair.

"You don't seem to think of the cost when you want a cigar or a glass of liquor, or to go off to a place of amusement," she said, looking straight into his depressed face; "but when anything better than tar is wanted at home for pancakes, cost is a matter of some importance. If you had a stomach that was half human, you couldn't eat it."

"It's good enough for me; and what's good enough for me must be good enough for others," he doggedly growled.

There was a jump, the sound of an overturning chair and crockery; and she was standing up, with one hand convulsively grasped in his hair and the other clutching the pitcher of offence. His face was pressed against the table.

"Lemme up!" he yelled.

"It's good enough for you, is it?" she cried. "Well, you shall have the whole of it."

And she turned the contents over his head, and worked it in his hair, and down his neck, and in his ears, while he sputtered and screamed and whined and struggled with all his might to release himself; but he was a baby in the hands of a giant. When she got through she coolly proceeded to the sink, and deliberately washed her hands, while he sat there, quivering all over, and staring at her with an expression in his eyes that tallied admirably with the erect condition of his hair. He was two full hours in getting that stuff out of his hair; but it was not wasted time. A gallon of the best syrup was up to the house within an hour after he went down; and when she returned home, four days later, he hired a carriage expressly to take her to the cars. When she came, she had to walk from the depot.—Danbury News.

—Very large buttons are all the rage. They cover ladies' cloaks and dresses, and when arranged in two parallel rows make their wearers look like walking games of dominoes. Fashion will next impress into its service Japanese and Majolica saucers for dress decoration. On the masculine Ulster huge horn buttons are also prominent.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1877.

News and Notes.

An entire family in Randolph, Mass., consisting of Mrs. Catharine Ryan, her three sons and a daughter, and a niece, were suffocated by gas from a coal stove on Wednesday night. In Newburg, N. Y., Thomas Rooney's house was burned, Wednesday, and the bodies of his two children, three and five years of age, were found in the ruins locked in each other's arms.

Henry Hickey, eleven years old, was playing with a ten-years-old girl named Cronin, and her little brother, aged three years, in South Boston on Wednesday. Hickey got angry with the Cronin boy, drew a pistol, and as the little fellow was running away shot him in the head, killing him. The young ruffian bears a bad character, and had but recently been released from the Reform School. This will afford an excellent chance for some more Pomeroy gush.

The surrender of the Texan State troops to the mob at El Paso, and the after butchery of Howard, Atkinson and McBride, are confirmed.

The woman who recently died suddenly in a railroad depot at Lowell, has been identified as a Miss Sarah Roberts of Franklin, Mass.

The story of the abduction of the Burt girl in Westport, Conn., grows more and more shady, and the people of that vicinity now discredit it in toto. The girl has run away from home several times before, and on account of her last escapade previous to the one which caused so much excitement, her father took away her clothes. Thus when she again ran away she was obliged to don masculine attire. The fact that her father and mother attended to their usual employments and made no announcement that she was missing seems to strengthen this conclusion.

A citizen of Norwich, Conn., is being prosecuted for cruelty to a cat. He wounded it by a pistol shot in his cellar and then carried it up stairs and threw it into the kitchen fire.

A Treasury official who has been eighteen months in London representing the United States Treasury in connection with the Syndicate, and has just returned, recites a gloomy state of affairs. The Syndicate is disheartened, the Treasury clerks have been sent home, and all parties in the Syndicate interest agree that funding operations must stop. They attribute it all to the agitation of the silver question in Congress. He says the Syndicate people are of the unanimous opinion that no more four per cent. United States bonds can be sold in Europe. He had been to Naples during his leave from London without pay, and reports that some wealthy English investors he met are greatly excited about the probabilities that United States bonds, from which they derive their income, will be repudiated.

Postmaster-General Key and Third Assistant Hazen are in New York to inspect the manufacture of postal cards under the recent contract, the execution of which is not satisfactory. An inspection of the manufacture of postage stamps will also be made.

Dr. Lemuel Draper, Surgeon of the Navy, was captured at a rebel ball in Baltimore during the war, and his commission cancelled. After many ineffectual attempts to get back into the Navy, he was on Tuesday, 18th inst., reinstated as Assistant Surgeon, with pay for fourteen years and ten months.

Recently a hardware store in Nashville, Tenn., was on fire. When it was extinguished it was found to contain 119 pounds of powder in three different parts of the house. One hundred and ninety-six bales of cotton, saturated with coal-oil, were scattered over the house. Seventy-three pounds of powder, in one bulk, were within three feet of where the fire was hot enough to melt a metallic spoon. Had either one of the packages exploded it might have killed the entire Fire Department. The men working in the rear and front were in very close proximity to the fire. The house had been ignited in four places.

The Supreme Court of Massachusetts has rendered an important decision denying the authority of the Boston city council to make the East Boston ferries free of tolls.

The request of the House military committee that the War Department will order Col. Shafter, who commanded the first expedition under the President's order into Mexico, and several of his officers, to Washington, is because some of the latter claim that Shafter did not follow the fresh trail, as was alone contemplated by the order, but went over without that excuse.

A general order issued from the War Department announces that a board will assemble at the National Armory, Springfield, Mass., the 3d of April, 1878, to consider and recommend a magazine gun, should one be found suitable for military service, the Secretary of War being authorized to expend not more than $20,000 in its manufacture. Lieut. Col. J. G. Benton, Major F. H. Parker and Capt. J. H. Rollins, of the Ordnance Department, have been detailed as members of the board. All persons interested in magazine guns are invited to submit a sample, and appear in person. The arms submitted must be calibre forty-five, and use United States service cartridge.

Mr. Boutwell has reported his Revision of the Statutes to the State Department. The complete work is now regarded as in excellent shape.

Archibald McClure Bush, formerly captain of the Harvard base ball club, died recently in Liverpool. He was married in September last, and was on a wedding tour at the time of his death. He served in the Union army all through the war, rising to be captain and brevet major, and entered Harvard college afterward, graduating in the class of '71. He was at one time considered the best base ball player in the country.

The President has signed a pardon for John A. Joyce, convicted of conspiracy to defraud the United States of taxes on distilled spirits. The pardon is full and unconditional. Joyce it will be remembered was sentenced to $2000 fine in addition to his imprisonment. He had served his term and was unable to pay his fine.

The United States steamer Lackawanna leaves San Francisco this week for the Mexican coast, for the purpose of surveying Tartan Shoal, upon which the Pacific mail steamship City of San Francisco was wrecked a few months ago. It is thought that rocks have been upheaved by an earthquake at several points where the charts indicate a good depth of water.

The Postmaster General has begun a series of investigations as to the number and character of the working force in the post offices of the large cities. He proposes to make the examination thorough with a few ot ascertaining the fitness of those in charge of their places.

A few days ago a man named Samuel A. Wilts, while digging a post hole near Somerville, N. J., dug up an earthen crock which contained $2,700 in gold and silver Spanish coins, all of ancient date. The treasure was found about two feet below the surface.

A Belfast, Maine, teacher and scholar recently had a tussle, in which the latter got the best of it. Then the teacher sued him, and the court decided that a teacher has the same right over his pupils, in school, that a parent has over his children, and can use ordinary means to enforce his legitimate authority. The pupil was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $16, which he paid.

Peanuts yield a large percentage of oil that is as good for all purposes as olive oil. It is more palatable than olive oil, and is used extensively for culinary purposes, finding a ready market.

The Boston Post, commenting on the expression by many persons of a fear that democratic ascendency in the National councils would mean the pensioning of the ex-rebel soldiers, quotes the Constitutional prohibition of any such performance, and says: "And it should be remembered that it is not the democratic party that is inclined to evade or tamper with the Constitution." This is amusing when we consider that the Congressional representatives of the democratic party within a few weeks have been engaged in an endeavor to take away from the President, by a mere resolution, his Constitutional prerogative as commander-in-chief of the army. The democrats are great sticklers for the Constitution, so long as its provisions do not stand in the way of their partisan schemes—and no longer.

Charles Fitch of Greenfield, a man about 60 years of age, committed suicide by hanging himself to a tree early Wednesday morning. He had been sick and was in charge of a nurse, but managed to get away unobserved about one o'clock, and without being dressed went to a tree some distance from his house, and was found dead a few hours afterwards with his neck between two branches of the tree. He was a graduate of Dartmouth College, a man of property, and leaves a family.

A complaint of considerable interest for malicious mischief has been on trial for two days before the Police Court in Manchester, in which B. F. Merrill, Fred. H. Merrill, and Nathan Case of Bedford are charged with destroying 1823 young pine trees, covering a ten-acre lot in Bedford. Nearly the whole town of Bedford is interested, either as witnesses or spectators.

Books, Magazines, Etc.

From Oliver Ditson & Co. we have an acceptable budget of new music, including a romance by Rubinstein, (whose portrait appears on the title); an elegant mazurka called "Frauenlob," and an easy and pretty transcription of "Sweet by-and-by," by Warren. There is also Gounod's song, "The white dove," the German folks-song called "The little bird," with German and English words, and lastly "Come and cheer me, little treasure," song and chorus. "Ditson & Co's Musical Monthy, No. 8, or the Christmas Number" is at hand, with a good variety of Christmas music, covering twelve of its twenty musical pages. There is a fine Christmas Song, three bright Christmas Carols, and a Christmas March and Christmas Waltz, besides other music and pieces, making eight pieces of music for twenty-five cents.

We have received from Lockwood, Brooks & Co., Boston, a copy of the Marginal Indexed Diary, which contains, besides a a combination index of the month and days of the month, tables for computing interest, rates of domestic and foreign postage, tables of weights and measure, statistics of the last U. S. census, value of foreign coins, and much other general information, making one of the most complete and perfect diaries we have ever seen. For sale by all stationers and booksellers.

—Tommy came home from school, and handed to his father the teacher's report on his progress during the month. "This is very unsatisfactory, Tom; you've a very small number of good marks. I'm not at all pleased with it." "I told the teacher you wouldn't be, but he wouldn't alter it."

—He had stayed till the clock hands hung together at eleven, and that valuable recorder of time was menacing a strike. She had yawned till her mouth felt large enough for a horse collar, and yet the young man evinced no symptoms of speedy departure. "I've been working on a motto to-day," she finally said, as she held her eyes open with her fingers; "don't you waut to see it?" He said he did. She brought out the article and passed it to him for inspection. He held it up to the light and read the cheerful sentence, "There's no place like home." The young man guessed he'd be going.

—Several children were feeding a pet bear with corn at Austin, Texas. An ear was dropped out of the reach of the bear, and a little girl handed it to him. The bear sportively pulled her to him, when a house dog, believing the child in danger, sprang upon the bear. Bruin then carried the child to the further part of the hogshead in which he slept and returned to fight the dog, under the impression that the dog would hurt the child. A party of darkies tried to protect the child from her other protectors, but the little one did not escape until her mother had killed both bear and dog with a musket.

—A story is told at the expense of a well-known Westfield church member who had an earnest brother Christian visiting him one day. The latter is not so demonstrative in his religious fervor as his host, and also is lame, so he cannot kneel. The first morning of his visit he was asked to lead the family devotions, and seated in his chair began an earnest appeal to the throne of grace while the family kneeled around. The host's son, a lad of five years, fidgeted around on his knees for a minute or two, and finally shouted: "Stop him, mother, stop him. He don't know nothing how to pray. Let father show him."

FROM The Christian Union, Aug. 22, 1877:

"A valuable horse of the writer's was kicked on the hock. Swelling and lameness ensued, rendering the animal nearly worthless. We were advised to try Giles' Liniment, and are gratified to say it acted like a charm. About two inches of bone came away, the sore healed up, and the lameness and swelling are fast disappearing.

—At a certain English Orphanage a boy gets twenty-five demerits for kissing a girl. At another they "apply the hair of the dog to cure the bite." When a boy kisses a girl, twelve very ugly boys stand in a row on the rostrum in the chapel, and the offender is required to kiss them all, and kiss them well. The girl also, if she is willing to be kissed by the boy, is required to kiss a dozen ugly girls. The ceremony draws a full house, and has never failed to cure.

THE CITY.

A despatch from New York, Thursday, says: "Antonio Capernio, of Portsmouth, N. H., was arrested here for stealing." Never heard of Antonio before.

The Woman's Temperance League has made arrangements for a course of six entertainments this winter, at $1 for the course; evening tickets, twenty cents each.

Mr. J. Dwight Rundlet has received a letter from the signal office at Washington, intimating that this city is to be made a station for the display of the government storm signals.

The Fair was more largely attended on the third night than on either of the preceding ones. There were presented some tableaux, and there was singing by a quartette; but the principal interest centred on the allotment of the gifts among the holders of the season tickets, the drawing being done by two young ladies from the floor, under the supervision of a committee consisting of Col. Frank W. Hilton, John M. Hussey, Henry Harlow and Dr. Whittier. The principal prizes were drawn by the following persons: Mrs. Jere. Towle, 1st prize, nine pieces of silver; John H. Bright, case of silver, twenty-four pieces; Stephen Pearson, silver pickle dish; Catharine Skillings, case silver nut-picks. Persons holding numbers that drew prizes can get them on applying at the hall at any time after noon to-day.

William R. Preston, No. 2 Congress block, has one of the most attractive stores in the city; he has lately made some extensive improvements by extending the store thirteen feet back, with an addition of twenty-eight feet for laboratory and office. Dr. Preston came to this city in 1840 and opened a store directly in front of the Unitarian church. In 1841 he removed to the corner of State and Pleasant streets, and in 1845 became one of the first occupants of Congress block,—which was built in 1845, burned in 1865, and rebuilt in 1867. Dr. Preston has always on hand a large stock of the best quality of drugs, and all the well established patent medicines; and his show-cases are filled with choice fancy articles for the toilet,—soaps, perfumery, brushes, and all the et ceteras of a well selected stock; and his cologne, as we know, is not excelled by any, imported or other. The searcher after a holiday gift will find many nice things at this store.

FIRE.

At about nine o'clock, Thursday forenoon, fire was discovered in the National House and the alarm promptly given. The Fire Department was quickly on hand,—under the circumstances, for the only horses at hand were those assigned to Steamer Two, and they had to haul both Two and Three to the Market square reservoir. The fire caught in the cellar, it was currently reported from the igniting of a barrel of kerosene, though the landlord of the hotel it is said is of opinion that it caught in kindlings stored under the kitchen. Wherever it caught, it mounted through the house with great rapidity, driving everybody out in a hurry, and sending forth dense volumes of smoke. But little could be saved, the servants and boarders being glad to get out with their lives, and leaving all their effects behind them. The clerk of the house made his way through the smoke to the office drawer and grasped the key, but let go of it mighty quick, the iron being so hot as to blister his hand clear across; but he managed to open the drawer with the heel of his boot, and saved about thirty dollars in money and most of the valuable papers that were there. The huge dog belonging to the hotel, and two others, were suffocated,—and it was well it was not worse, for had the fire started during the night more than one human life would have been lost.

The construction of the house rendered the fire a very bad one to handle, the numerous partitions furnishing good shelter for the flames; in addition, there were two roofs to the building, a modern one having been put on over an old one some years ago; so all the firemen could do was to saturate the outside rooms of the building with water, until the fire had burned out through the roof in the centre of the house; the direction of the streams of water had to be constantly changed from one room to another, and it was not until after four hours of hard work that the fire was put out. The firemen worked like beavers and against great odds, and showed themselves worthy the trust reposed in them.

The hotel is owned by Hon. Frank Jones, who had insurance of $2500 on it. It was occupied by Mr. John York, whose furniture was insured for $2000; very little of the furniture was saved, and he estimates his loss at $2500.

The house adjoining the hotel, on Fleet street, owned and occupied by Mr. Woodbury Locke, was badly damaged by water; his furniture was mostly gotten out, but was also much injured by water and smoke. Mr. Locke had $1000 insurance on the furniture, but none on the house.

The reservoir on Market square was exhausted long before the fire was, and the two engines stationed there had to be transferred to other positions. As things were at the time this was no very serious matter; but if the building had been well in flames and a brisk breeze blowing it might have been disastrous. There is plenty of water in the aqueduct mains, and some measures should be taken to turn more of it into this reservoir in case of need.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, a petition was presented asking the city government to appoint suitable persons to confer with the judges of the Supreme Court in regard to rates of toll at Portsmouth bridge. Referred to the Mayor, with power to employ suitable counsel.

The petitioners for a new highway from Richards avenue, from a point near Rockland street, along the northerly side of the South millpond to the foot of Edwards street, were heard. Thomas H. Odion and Wm. H. Sise spoke in favor of the petition.

Voted that the Board visit the premises on Friday afternoon at three o'clock.

City Solicitor reported that a road surveyor has no legal right to purchase gravel for the city's use, of himself.

Committee on claims reported on claim of John H. Grant against the city, for $500, that he has no legal claim. Report accepted and adopted.

Same committee reported recommending that bill of Jacob H. Haddock, for use of building for ward-room in ward four, be paid.

Petition for plank sidewalk from corner of Middle street and Miller avenue to Lincoln avenue, petitioners to pay one-half the cost, was referred to committee on streets.

Petition of Butler & Laighton for a license to sell kerosene, was referred to the committee on printing.

Committee on gas lights reported that the gas light corner Court and Atkinson streets has been located.

Frank W. Miller made a request that the naphtha light on Lincoln Hill be accepted and maintained by the city. Referred to committee on gas lights,—committee made immediate report, adversely.

The committee on gas lights were instructed to place six naphtha lights on Richards avenue, from Richard Yeaton's house to South street.

Committee on fire department were instructed to enquire into the cause of the fire at the National Hotel, and report to the Board.

Committee on printing were instructed to procure suitable stationery for use of the Board.

A hearing on the Puddle Dock piggery nuisance question was set for January 17th.

Adjourned for two weeks.

JACKSON HILL STREET.

The adjourned hearing on the petition of Frank Jones and others for the extension of Jackson Hill street through John Downs' premises to North street, was had on Thursday before Messrs. Frank Cram and S. D. Tilton, Commissioners, and Chas. G. Conner, substituted for Commissioner Newton Johnston, a resident of this city and disqualified for that reason. Considerable testimony was offered by both sides; several tax payers gave their opinion that the expenditure was not warranted. The hearing occupied the entire day. Frink for petitioners; City Solicitor Hackett for the city.

OUR SCHOOLS AND TEACHERS.

Sir Charles Reed, President of the Board of Education of the city of London, and late Chairman of Judges upon Education and Science at the Centennial, in speaking of the schools of the cities of the United States says that those of Cleveland are not surpassed by any,—Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Manchester, N. H., New Haven and St. Louis following closely after Cleveland in merit, in the order in which they are named. After reading the foregoing, and other items I have from time to time seen in relation to Boston, Manchester, Dover, etc., I am led to ask: Do not the citizens of Portsmouth require too high a standard for our public schools? By this I do not mean to intimate that there is any danger of our schools becoming too good; but it seems as if something must be wrong, for we find in Manchester two teachers, formerly of this city, laboring successfully to do their part toward placing Manchester fifth on the list of cities in common school matters. We also find a teacher, formerly of this city, called to a position in the Elliott school in Boston from Dover, in which latter city his reputation as an instructor has stood high. We can also call to mind a former teacher of this city who successfully competed with nearly four-score applicants for an important position in a city near Boston, and is thought very highly of in the city of his adoption, after a term of service sufficiently long to let the citizens see his abilities. Yet none of the teachers mentioned were considered worthy of especial commendation here,—at least, they never received any especial commendation, that I ever heard of. There are other teachers of whom I remember, who taught here for a season but were refused re-engagements by our committee, who have since won high esteem as teachers in other cities, some of them at twice the salary offered them here.

Another thing occurs to me, in this connection; a young lady who was successful in the recent competitive examination for the Franklin school, in this city, has accepted a situation as teacher in one of the Boston schools. This lady at one time taught school here; and later, in Dover, where her qualifications were so highly regarded that the annual examination which is usual in the case of teachers in that city was waived in her case; yet although she was successful in the examination here, her competitors all followed her very closely in their order of merit, though they were (I believe) all graduates of Portsmouth schools, and some of them had had hardly any experience as teachers.

I would also remind those citizens who are disposed to grumble at and disparage our public schools, of the large number who were once pupils in them who are teachers abroad,—Pfeiffer, Larrabee, Simpson, Shannon, Gardiner, and a score of others. Our schools may not be all it is possible to make them; but perfection is not easily attained in anything, and considering the many capable teachers turned out by (and turned out of, too,) our public schools, it really seems to me that the grumbling we sometimes hear about the schools is due rather to the high standard set up than to actual deficiencies in the schools themselves. And I do not believe a little judicious commendation, if merited, mixed in with the grumbling, would have a tendency to depreciate our schools or make the teachers any the less anxious to do their level best.

INKBOTTLE.

HOME, SWEET HOME.

Some time since a family who reside well up Middle street, gave to friends in State street a young Maltese cat, but Tommy, though most kindly used, did not take to his new place of residence, and after hiding himself for much of the time, except when coming forth for rations, he finally disappeared. When he had been gone four months, and had grown to twice his former size, his original owners were surprised at hearing his familiar cry at their door, asking to be admitted; thus giving them the idea that he preferred his green-embowered cottage home for one more spacious down-town.

Another Giant Devil Fish.

Since the capture at Catalina, Trinity Bay, Newfoundland, of the gigantic cephalopod which is now attracting crowds to view it in the New York Aquarium, another has been cast ashore of still larger dimensions, at Lance Cove, Smith's Sound, about twenty miles farther up Trinity Bay than the locality where the former was taken. On the 21st of November, during a high tide and a high inshore wind, another of these giant squids was borne ashore at the locality named, and grounded on a shingly beach. In its desperate efforts to escape, it used its syphon or funnel so forcibly that the stream of water pouring from it ploughed up a trench on the beach thirty feet in length and of considerable depth. Soon the retiring tide left it high on the beach. Mr. John Duffet, a resident of the place, was among those who collected to view the monster, and he carefully measured the arms and body. The long tenacles he found to be thirty-three feet in length, being three feet longer than the Catalina specimen; and the body eleven feet, or one foot longer than that of the former. He did not measure the shorter arms, but estimates them at thirteen feet, and describes them as being of enormous thickness at the shoulder.

—What we want, and what we need, is a patent spanker—a machine somewhat like the patent thresher—into which we can dump our naughty children and have them properly punished and turned out with their pants properly arranged, their eyes wiped, their hair brushed, and their noses blown. There is too much time wasted nowadays in correcting the youth. A labor-saving and time-saving machine, like the above, would meet with a ready and constant sale.—St. Louis Journal.

CAUTION.

The great popularity of "ASTRAL" OIL has induced some unprincipled persons to sell worthless and dangerous imitations for "ASTRAL," while others palm off inferior oils, representing them as good as "ASTRAL." To prevent this fraud, purchasers should demand "ASTRAL" and take no other.

Eclectic Magazine

OF

Foreign Literature, Science & Art.

THIRTY-FOURTH YEAR.

The ECLECTIC reprints monthly from all the foreign Quarterlies, Reviews, Magazines and Journals, their choicest contents, including ESSAYS, SCIENTIFIC PAPERS, BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES, TALES, STORIES and POEMS. The field of selection is very large, and it is believed that the ECLECTIC presents a greater variety and higher standard of Literature than any periodical that depends exclusively upon home talent.

In GENERAL LITERATURE such writers as Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, James Anthony Froude, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Francis Power Cobbe, Leslie Stephen, Arthur Helps, Alfred Tennyson, Thomas Hughes, William Black, Mrs. Oliphant, Thomas Hardy, Turgenieff, William Morris, Miss Thackeray, and others equally authoritative, are represented in its pages.

In SCIENCE, the best articles of such thinkers and writers as Prof. Huxley and Tyndall, Richard Proctor, B. A., Prof. Owen, Dr. W. B. Carpenter, Max Muller, J. Norman Lockyer, St. George Mivart, E. B. Taylor, and others, are given.

The ECLECTIC offers its readers the best serial stories, together with the short stories for which the English magazines have a high and deserved reputation.

Its EDITORIAL DEPARTMENTS comprise Literary Notices, (dealing with current home books) Foreign Literary notes, Science and Art, (summarizing briefly the new discoveries and achievements in this field), and Varieties (consisting of choice extracts from new books and foreign journals).

Each number contains a Fine Steel Engraving—usually a portrait—executed in the best manner.

TERMS.—Single copies, 45 cents; one copy one year, $5; two copies, $9; five copies, $20; Trial subscriptions for three months, $1. The ECLECTIC and any $4 magazine to one address $8.

Special offer to New Subscribers.

The publisher takes pleasure in announcing that he has made arrangements which enable him to furnish to every subscriber of the ECLECTIC (for one dollar in addition to the regular subscription price) a large and fine steel engraving, entitled "Highland Pets."

This engraving is from one of Landseer's most celebrated paintings, and represents a Highland girl surrounded by a group of fawns, which she is feeding, while her young brother holds a stately pair of antlers, probably the trophy of some former chase. The size of the plate is 18 x 27 in. printed on heavy plate paper, making a picture suitable for the wall of any room. The regular price of this engraving is $5, but we furnish it only to subscribers of the ECLECTIC.

Centaur

Liniments.

They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.

The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

Honey

To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castorir is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.

COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.

Messrs. J. B. ROSE & Co., N. Y.

I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.

Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S

STANDARD

REMEDIES

Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.

NATURAL SELECTION.

Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery

Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.

Golden Medical Discovery

Is Pectoral.

Golden Medical Discovery

Is a Chalagogue, or Liver Stimulant.

Golden Medical Discovery

Is Tonic.

Golden Medical Discovery

By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Chalagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness; Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.

Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternate with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Dr. Pierce's

Pleasant

Purgative

Pellets.

Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.

The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.

As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness and Oppression, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of these pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely; AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately, often renews the growth; and always restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night at 11 o'clk. I don't know what I should have done if it had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 15, 1876.

Daily Chronicle.

No Vacancies.

Posted conspicuously all along the corridors of the Interior Department is the following notice:

"There are no vacancies in this department. Applicants cannot be seen. Applications in writing will be received and placed on file for future examination.

I called the attention of the venerable clerk, who was showing me around and giving me lessons in civil service reform, to this notice, and remarked:

"I suppose this is another device got up to deceive the people?"

"Yes, it serves the purpose of deceiving applicants to a limited extent, but it was originally got up for the benefit of one person alone. The history of that notice is somewhat romantic and would be a good subject for a 'yallar kiver.'"

I urged him to give me the story, which he did in nearly the following language:

"Some years ago there was a young clerk occupying a desk near the entrance to the building. He was rather reckless in his character, fond of a joke and loved an adventure better than he loved wine, which is saying a great deal. One day a young girl, well dressed and aged about sixteen, entered his room and asked if he was the Secretary of the Interior. He saw at a glance that she was a simple-minded country girl, and wondering what she could want with the Secretary, determined to find out all about it, and promptly replied in the affirmative. She thereupon told him she had recently been left an orphan and among strangers; that her father's estate, which was considerable before the war, had been swept away, and that she was penniless and obliged to support herself. She had a good education and wrote a fair hand, and hearing that situations in the departments were frequently filled by ladies she had determined to apply for one herself.

The clerk ascertained that she had no backing, but that in her simplicity of mind had come here thinking that no such thing was necessary. He therefore decided upon a line of action, infamous in design and disastrous in consequences. Still carrying out the idea that he was the Secretary he ascertained her stopping place, and agreed to consider her application and call that evening to inform her of the result. He also cautioned her, on some specious pretext, against talking with others on the subject of her business. He called at the time appointed, and, telling her that there were no vacancies at present, advised her to take lodgings somewhere and wait, promising her the first place when a vacancy occurred. She took his advice, and the result can be easily imagined. It was the old, old story. Of course she never got the situation promised, but was put off from day to day and month to month on various pretexts, until finally, by a change of administration, he lost his own situation.

Overwhelmed by the loss of his position and the consciousness of the infamy of his conduct toward the poor girl, he shrank from telling her the truth; and fearing the consequences if his guilt should become known, he resolved to conceal his crime by still further deception. To this end he wrote her a note, telling her that he had suddenly been called to Europe on important business connected with his department, but that he had left orders to have a place given her as soon as a vacancy occurred; that in the meantime she could always tell whether a situation was open to her by looking at the notices pasted on the walls in the department. That night he got several copies of the above notice printed and surreptitiously pasted them up.

Filled with grief at his sudden departure, and filled with a foreboding of impending evil, she wended her way to the department on her first visit of reconnoissance. She saw the notices, and, overcome with despondency, she, for the first time, ventured to disobey the instructions she had received. Entering the office where she first met her deceiver, months before, she inquired for the Secretary of the Interior. She was shown to his room, and there the whole secret came out.

The scene in that office when the kind-hearted Secretary revealed the truth can never be described. Suffice it to say she was conducted at last from that room utterly broken in mind and health. The Secretary provided for her immediate necessities, and called the attention of some charitable ladies to her case. For weeks she lay hovering on the brink of the grave with a brain fever, and when she arose her mind was gone and her hair was gray. Her betrayer was traced out and forced to contribute to her support, but for the sake of his family the whole matter was kept from publicity. When she was able to go about an attempt was made to change her abode and surroundings, but she resisted the attempt with terrible energy, believing, as she did, that her lover would one day return. She clung to this hallucination to the last, and every day at the hour of noon she visited the department and read the notice, and finding 'no vacancies' turned away with a sigh and returned to her room. Once the notices were taken down, but she became so demonstrative in her joyful anticipation of obtaining the promised place that they were immediately replaced. As I said before, the history of the case was kept a profound secret, and but two or three who from day to day saw the pale, wan face appear with the regularity of the sun, knew or could fathom the sad history of that blighted life; and of the thousands who carelessly read the words of that notice, few are aware that it had its origin in the perfidy and treachery of man—that its letters are written in the heart's blood of a confiding and betrayed woman."

Here the old man blew his nose, bade me good-bye, and was about turning away when I detained him with:

"One moment before you go—what became of the girl?"

"She faded away—that is all. Her visits toward the last became less frequent and finally ceased altogether. In a few days those entrusted with her secret were notified, and we followed her to her grave. I tell you," continued the old man, "I have attended many funerals in my time, but I never attended one so sad as this. Her betrayer still lives—and it is to be hoped for the credit of humanity, is a prey to remorse for the part he took in blighting the life of as pretty a girl as ever lived. There; that is all. I never told this story before and you are welcome to it. You are a literary man, and by adding a little to it you could make quite a story out of it."

But I am not ambitious in that line and prefer to give the plain story in the simple language used by the departmental relic.—Washington letter.

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1877.

Another Horror.

An appalling disaster occurred in New York city, Friday afternoon about five o'clock. The boiler under the immense candy manufactory of Greenfield & Sons, No. 63 Barclay street, burst, tearing away the entire front and scattering the wreck in all directions. It is not known how many persons were in the building, the number being estimated from 100 to 150. The loss of life may reach 100. Most of the victims were young girls. Owing to the approach of the holidays a double force was employed, one half working during the day and the other at night. The force is changed at five o'clock, and the fact of the explosion occurring at five minutes past that hour renders it still more difficult to know how many or who are the victims. A large number of the saved are terribly injured. At least fifty bodies are buried in the ruins.

Chronicle Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 19th.

Members of the Court of Inquiry designated to enquire into the circumstances attending the loss of the Huron and its terrible sacrifice of life, with a view of placing the responsibility where it justly belonged and to avoid similar disasters hereafter, appear to have made an honest and exhaustive investigation without bias and with no apparent disposition to whitewash those to any degree culpable. The report will have the effect to discredit the statements of those who sought to throw the odium on Gen. Grant's Administration, the members of the Court unanimously agreeing that all the evidence elicited showed the vessel to have been thoroughly seaworthy and her machinery exceptionally serviceable. It appears to relieve Admiral Trenchard of any responsibility for the disaster, unless it be a negative one for having allowed the vessel to leave port during a storm at the solicitation of her commanding officer; also all her officers, save those specially charged with the vessel's navigation on the fatal night, except a possible dereliction of duty in the matter of soundings or in taking the vessel's bearings by the lights passed and in sight during the night. To Commander Ryan, then, primarily, and those in charge of the deck and the vessel's navigation under him, secondarily, the loss of the vessel and over a hundred brave men, who are found to have stood heroically at their posts, must be attributed; but they are gone with their comrades beyond the jurisdiction of human courts, before one whose Judge is omniscient and loves mercy, and there appears a general disposition to forget their culpability and to remember only their generous qualities, and their noble bearing in the presence of death by a method that must have appeared peculiarly appalling to the stoutest heart among them.

Ex-Ass't Secretary of the Treasury McCormick, who was confirmed Commissioner General under the Paris Exposition bill without opposition, is beset by the chronic office seeker, for a position under him. It is said that hundreds of applications have been already filed for the few subordinate places provided by the bill, and he finds the disagreeable duty of having to refuse many a worthy and needy applicant for place, inseparable from holding any high position unless absolutely prohibited from entertaining them from any and all comers. It is said that this portion of his duties as Mr. Sherman's assistant became so repugnant as to have finally determined him to resign, and thus rid himself of the performance of an imperative duty which had become intolerable. He was one of those departmental officials so rarely met as to suggest that the type has become nearly extinct, who is always remembered with kindly emotions even by those refused, because his sympathy was always so apparent and his adverse decisions couched in such gentlemanly terms as to take away their sting.

The sub-committee of the House committee on Foreign Affairs, Scleicher chairman, is busy with the preliminaries of the investigation with which it is charged relative to the present situation on our Mexican border. Mr. Conkling's special committee, charged with similar duty by the Senate, has also got to work. The latest advices from El Paso only confirms the general belief relative to the critical situation there. Soldiers are being pushed forward, and there is an impression that a slight indiscretion by commanding officers on either side of the Rio Grande will precipitate the war the Mexican lobby has so persistently sought to promote, but which is deprecated by the intelligence of the country. This feeling has induced the Secretary of War to relieve Gen. Vincent from his duties in the Adjutant General's Office here, and send him on a special mission to the border. The view appears entertained at the White House, War Office and in all other official circles, that we can most certainly avert war by being thoroughly prepared for its occurrence. The long holiday recess affords members of Congress an opportunity to eat their Christmas turkey at home, meet their constituents, and slily ascertain the most discreet course to be taken on pending issues with a view to future elections; and a goodly number have left the city.

No such December weather has been experienced for ten years as that vouchsafed us this season. Not a spit of snow up to date; indeed, the ground has hardly yet been frozen; flowers in sheltered places are still seen, apparently hardy and rejoicing in their long life-lease.

Joe Jefferson is having crowded houses at the National Theatre, as he always does, regardless of the money market stringency. He can move a Washington audience to laughter or tears as no other actor now living can do. I verily believe Rip Van Winkle would run through a whole season without any diminution of the intense interest always aroused by Jefferson's presentation of that amiable, vagabond character. KNOX.

In a recent battle in Cuba the Spaniards defeated the patriots, killing fifty-nine and capturing 121. The Spanish loss is reported as twelve killed. This is the Spanish account; the other side will undoubtedly tell a very different story.

The captain and crew of the schooner Marcus L. Ward, of Newark, N. J., were placed in durance vile in Bridgeport, Conn., on the 20th, the property taken in three burglaries committed in that city on the previous Tuesday night, being found on board the vessel, which was boarded by the police at Black Rock. A tug boat took the schooner back to Bridgeport harbor.

PORT OF PORTSMOUTH.

SAILED, Dec 21.

Sch Mary Brewer, Tolman, Rockland.

Ship Triumphant has just completed extensive repairs at San Francisco. On her arrival from Liverpool she was found to be considerably strained and damaged. A survey was held, and it was decided to put the ship in thorough order. The underwriters took her in hand, and gave the job to Coombs & Taylor, who, at an expense of $33,000, have made her A1. The tremendous seas off Cape Horn had pressed her decks down and got them all out of shape, and they had to be pumped up by hydraulic power three inches in the centre, and oak caps put on top of the stanchions. New and heavy bilge stanchions were also put in, and in the lower 'tween decks a great number of extra stanchions were inserted. Forty broken knees were taken out, and new 13 inch knees put in in their place. She has had 12,000 new treenails put in, and her skin has been rewedged fore and aft. Every seam has been recanked in bottom, sides and decks, and she has a complete new suit of metal. Thirteen tons of new iron fastenings were used in the new work. In addition to this work she has had new fore and main masts, new fore and main topmasts, topgallantmasts, and all new yards on the fore and main, new bowsprit and jibboom. The lower masts are both magnificent spars, grown at Port Madison. They are single sticks 28 inches in diameter at the partners, and 96 feet long. The new main yard is 90 feet long, and 24 inches in the slings.

The Journal says: "No less than thirteen clothes lines have been stripped within a week in this city." Many more than that, and some of them more than once. One line was stripped three times by the same person, to our certain knowledge.

There will be a grand Christmas Assembly at Mechanics' Hall Tuesday evening, Dec. 25th, under the management of Jos. R. Curtis. The Hall will be perfectly free from dust and in splendid condition for this occasion, and a good time is guaranteed to all by the efficient manager. Music by Harlow's Orchestra; tickets fifty cents.

"Butler & Laighton" seems to be a popular firm name; we have one such in this city, and there is another one in Berwick, Me; the partners in the last named are Mr. Ezra Butler and Mrs. Alice O. Leighton, and the articles of copartnership were signed in Dover some two weeks ago, in presence of a clergyman. We hope the Berwick firm may prove as successful in business as our Portsmouth one has been and deserved to be.

The Hutchings Association entertainment, given in the Universalist vestry on Thursday evening, was an excellent one; the drama (The Chimney Corner) was presented in a manner to please the large audience and reflect credit on the members of the Association taking part in it. We are pleased to record the entire success of this course of entertainments, so far; and there is no doubt the next one—which is to be the last, unless the arrangements are altered—will be as worthy of patronage as any of the preceding ones. The Association intend to make it the best of the course.

A GOOD THING.

A public trial of T. C. Rice's patent fire escape was made on Thursday from the roof of Butler & Laighton's store on Market square, the descents of several persons being witnessed by a large number of spectators, who were unanimous in the opinion that the escape is an excellent invention. The contrivance is simple in the extreme, which adds greatly to its value, there being nothing about it to get out of order, or to be learned by the person using it. It consists of a composition block with a rope running through it; on one end of the rope is a hook to affix to a window sill, spout, or any projection, the other end to be held by any person on the ground, out clear from the building and the fire; a stout belt, attached to the lower end of the block, is buckled around beneath the arms of the person descending, and the speed of the descent is controlled by a cam and lever. Several trips from the roof of Butler & Laighton's store to the ground were made by the gentleman exhibiting the escape, and residents of this city; and afterward a similar exhibition was given from the top of the hose-tower on Court street.

OLD AND WORN OUT.

A week or more ago a feeble old man applied at a store on Christian Shore for aid, stating that he had been at work some in North Hampton during the summer, but was now out of a job, had nowhere to go, and was very hungry, his entire stock of provisions for the winter—indeed his entire worldly wealth—consisting of a raw onion he had in his pocket. As it was evident the poor old creature needed food, shelter and kindly care more than he did a job of work, the store-keeper relieved his immediate necessities, and advised him to apply at the station house for further aid, which he did; he was lodged there for the night, and next day taken to the Almshouse for proper treatment, but soon after died. His name was Jeremiah Edwards, and he was born in Ireland on the 15th of August, 1798, making him over eighty years old at the time of his death. Even the most determined enemy of the average tramp can see something pitiful in the case of a worn-out old man wandering about, homeless, hungry, cold and disheartened, at the close of his fourscore years of life, seeking shelter and food when he was no longer able to pay for them in labor and had no one whom he could legally call on for assistance.

BRILLIANT FOOT-RACE.

Shortly before three o'clock, Friday, persons on Daniel street were treated to one of the most brilliant displays in the shape of a foot-race seen on our streets for many a day, the contestants being one Charles Wright, who has but recently returned from Brentwood, and City Marshal Entwistle; the race was won in good shape by the Marshal, who ran Waight down first, and then "ran him in" to the station house. The race, which was a "scratch" affair, grew out of the removal by Wright of a dozen pairs of stockings from the door of a Market street store. This action was noticed by a merchant on the other side of the street, who notified Marshal Entwistle, and the latter instantly started in pursuit. Wright, seeing that he was chased, ran down Daniel street, followed by the officer, who, though apparently not built with a special view to rapid running, made such excellent time as to call forth the enthusiastic encomiums of small boys on the street and ladies in store doors. At Penhallow street the stocking speculator turned to the left, no doubt hoping the Marshal's momentum would carry him by the corner—possibly into the river; but he not only made a graceful turn at the corner but continued to gain on the chase, and the latter, seeing that he was sure to be overhauled, threw his plunder on a pile of sheepskins in front of a butcher's shop door, and immediately after gave up the race, and was conducted to the lockup by the victor. Spectators of the race are unanimously of the opinion that though the Marshal will need an awful pair of wings to fly with, when he becomes an angel, he can run first-rate now, when he isn't an angel—not any. Wright says he stole the stockings so as to get sent back to Brentwood for the winter; but he may not get there after all.

OUR SCHOOLS AND TEACHERS.

Ed. Chronicle:—I have just read "Inkbottle's" communication under the above title, and it strikes me, if I may be allowed to say so without offence, as showing a remarkable lack of logic.

His argument runs somewhat in this wise. Portsmouth is not mentioned in the honorable list of cities having the best public schools; why? Because she has always set too high a standard! What reason have we for thinking that she has always set too high a standard? Because several teachers who have formerly taught here, are now teaching acceptably in cities that have attained the honorable mention aforesaid. Why did these teachers leave Portsmouth? Because the standard there was too high. Is not this a good specimen of reasoning in a circle?

How is it that, if Portsmouth were dissatisfied with these teachers, she failed to obtain better ones, and to bring herself up even higher in the roll of honor than either Boston or Manchester? Why has she remained satified with those who are unable to do this? "Inkbottle" lets out at least a part of the truth, "unbeknown to himself." He says, these teachers "have since won high esteem in other cities, some of them at twice the salary offered them here." Aye, there's the rub. There is a homely proverb, "Fair words butter no parsnips." Let Portsmouth offer salaries which shall make it worth the while of her best teachers to remain among us; then let her see that those teachers have the necessary opportunity to make the best that they can of their schools, and we will warrant the "high standard" which we are glad to learn has always been maintained here, will neither frighten away good teachers, nor lower our position educationally among the other cities of the Union.

STEEL PEN.

THE VICINITY.

The National Granite State Bank at Exeter pays a dividend of five per cent., Jan 1st.

Ephraim C. Spinney, Esq., of Kittery, has a Yorkshire hog one year old, that weighs 700 pounds, alive.

Mr. E. L. Senter, of Greenland, recently brought seventy-five fine turkeys from Canada, but contrary to the usual custom, brought them alive. They are for Butler & Laighton's Christmas trade.

Gen. Nathaniel Burleigh, of Greenland, recently killed a last spring's pig of the White Mountain breed, eight months and seven days old, which weighed 380 pounds, dressed. It was one of a litter of seven pigs from the stock of Mr. Edward Hughes, each one of the seven weighing over 300 lbs. Gen. Burleigh was formerly noted for the skill with which he drilled the militia and managed the irrepressible small boy on muster days, and is now locally as famous in the arts of peace, being particularly successful in raising fine porkers.

YORK LETTER.

YORK, Me., Dec. 18th.

As there is nothing going on here of especial interest to the general public, I am compelled to make a York "local."

The brick-yard here, owned by Norton & Leavitt, of Lewiston, Me., has this season been successfully managed by the brothers Messrs. S. W. & C. H. Junkins, natives and enterprising young merchants of York. [S. W. Norton is Postmaster at York Corner, and is also at present engaged in teaching school in District No. 1,—where he has taught for several seasons, giving perfect satisfaction to the entire district, both pupils and parents.] The result of their management of the brick-yard, with an average of ten men at work during the summer, is one million nice bricks, with splendid burns on both kilns. The engine was run by Mr. Edward Baston, of York, who is a first-class engineer and machinist; the latter position he now occupies at Kittery navy yard, not an account of his politics but for his valuable knowledge and services in that capacity.

Messrs. Norton & Leavitt have purchased the "Barrell mill-pond," which now fills and empties with salt tide from York river. They intend to dam it, (and I wouldn't wonder if they did d— it) for the purpose of cutting large quantities of ice. Preparations are now on foot for the necessary work, buildings, etc.

The erection of cottages at York beach is still on the increase. Mr. John M. Lowe has contracted to erect twenty (more or less) to be ready for occupancy by June 10th, 1878.

Mr. Wm. H. Woodward is preparing to erect a fine saw-mill on the spot where, one year ago, he was surprised one morning by finding no mill by the dam site, fire having done its work. Mr. Woodward is a very worthy, enterprising young man, a faithful and industrious worker, and is deserving abundant success.

Mr. John H. Plaisted is just now erecting a new building at "Cider Hill," to be occupied by him as a store to supply the citizens of that vicinity with groceries, etc. We have already too many stores, "But then (as Lucinda said) everybody has a right to build—and in fact every family ought to have a store of their own."

Capt. Frank Goodwin, of South Berwick, a few days since killed a hog eighteen months old, weighing 751 pounds. His brother Ben killed one same day from same litter, weighing 631 pounds.

Messrs. J. Chase & Son, the well and favorably known woollen manufacturers, (P. O. address Cape Neddick, York, Me.,) have nearly completed an addition to their mill, making it now double its former size; and with increased and improved machinery they expect to more than double their heretofore annual production. The whole, I learn, is to be heated by a new Magee furnace; and possibly a new engine may be used as power at the dry period, when the pond may fail.

F.

—It is asserted of a Philadelphian that he died "worn out by too severe mental effort in the study of how to live without work."

A STORY OF CHINESE LOVE.

The festive Ah Goo
And Too Hay, the fair—
They met, and the two
Concluded to pair.

They "spooned" in the way
That most lovers do,
And Ah Goo kissed Too Hay,
And Too Hay kissed Ah Goo.

Said the festive Ah Goo,
As his heart swelled with pride,
"Me heap love you—
You heap be my bride."

And she, looking down,
All so modest and pretty,
"Twixt a smile and a frown,
Gently murmured, "You betee."

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all dandruff, itching and scurf; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

For the Whiskers.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change a beard of the hoarest from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur

Liniments.

They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.

The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and speedily cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

Honey

To the taste but death to Grubs and Stomach complaints. Fitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castorin is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.

COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.

Messrs. J. B. ROSE & Co., N. Y.:

I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.

Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, Old Wounds, and Old Sores. The White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

REMEDIES

NATURAL SELECTION.

Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior article cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have derived all its custom. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery

Golden Medical Discovery

By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Tumors, Ulcers or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness, Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint," and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.

Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy foreboding, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Dr. Pierce's

Pleasant

Purgative

Pellets.

Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.

The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, *hereto*fore so much in use.

As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Bracken Tongue, Sick Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative influence. Age does not impair their efficacy, as they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair prematurely gray. Of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I don't know what I should have done if it had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

CONG LING AND GOR DING.

San Cong Ling he was a Chince;
Sen Gor Ding he was a Hindoo;
They quarrelled and could not agree,
And they looked at each other askew
In the councils of Sam the Yang Kee.

Now Gor Ding was jerking chin chin,
When Cong Ling remarked "Hire a hall!
Dry up! Let the business begin!"
The request was both modest and small,
For to yawp all the while is a sin.

Cried Gor Ding, "You want to be boss!"
And he pounded his desk with a rap;
"O, I'm a hyena and a hoss—
And a brass-mounted, terrible chap
For a stranger to happen across!"

"O, you are a lyre, I believe,"
Remarked the brave Brahmin Cong Ling;
"You're played, it is true, and I grieve."
"A lyre?" Why it seemed to Gor Ding
He was charged with attempts to deceive.

"I'll settle this insult with you,"
Cried Gor Ding, "outside of this hall!"
In a voice which the doh kee pah knew
Meant Bia den bug, powder and ball,
And tea and revolvers for two!

Oh, did they not welter in gore?
Not a welter, but quite the reverse;
They shook hands and smiled as before,
And said, "Brother, good men are scurse—
And we cannot be spared from the floor."

Then Thur Man and Ham Lin said, "We
And Tim How have settled it slick,
No enemies Ling and Ding be,
But they spake in the tongue of Pick Wick,
In the councils of Sam, the Yang Kee."

Wrestling With Bears.

Athletic Hall, 102 Prince street, was crowded to its utmost limits, the attraction being a wrestling match by Wilhelm Heygster and the two trained bears belonging to the London Circus.

Prior to the event of the evening there was a wrestling match. Then Emil Reignier showed his strength by putting up weights, lifting men, and catching cannon balls weighing fifty-six pounds that were thrown to him from a distance of seven or eight feet.

While the cannon balls were rolling and the heavy weights crashing on the stage, the arrival of the bears was announced. The stage of Athletic Hall is small, and the entrance from the rear is strictly proportioned to it. Thus, when some one called out in French, "Open the door for the bears," there was no little commotion among the employes. Before the bears could be admitted it was necessary to tear down some of the side scenery. But both bears were muzzled.

The bears are a brown and gray, the former being the stronger and heavier. As they reached the stage the band struck up a lively waltz and the brown bear began a clumsy dance. The gray sat quietly on his haunches and licked his chops. Both were muzzled. After a short time Heygster, whose sporting title is "The Oak of the Rhine," jumped upon the stage in full wrestling costume. He is a large, heavy man, with arms as big as an ordinary man's leg.

He was booked to wrestle the brown bear but the latter seemed rather inclined to dance than to wrestle, and kept the house in a roar with his antics. Finally, however, he stood upon his hind legs and cautiously guarded against the efforts of Heygster to get an under hold. Heygster got his arms around Bruin's neck, but the latter, with one paw over the man's shoulder, and the other passed around his waist, had by far the best of the grip. As Heygster exerted his immense strength in the effort to gain a fall, bruin warily braced himself on his hind legs, watching every movement intently, and thus for two or three minutes the wrestlers moved about the stage. Heygster tried to change his grip, but as he did so the bear got both paws around him and gave him a hug such as none but a strong man could have endured. At length Heygster released himself and retired to the other side of the stage, puffing and blowing like a porpoise. The bear was perfectly cool and collected.

After this he clinched the bear a second and third time, narrowly escaping a fall on each occasion; but when time was called for a fourth round he declined to toe the mark. He was a little scratched, but not otherwise injured.

Reignier, the strong man, then clinched with the gray bear, the brown bear meantime dancing a clumsy war dance in the corner. The first bout between Reignier and the bear was a simple clinch, in which neither got the advantage, but in the second the bear threw his antagonist heavily, and in a matter-of-fact way that was ludicrous in the highest degree. As he placed his big paw on the breast of the prostrate man he looked toward the audience for approval.

Nothing daunted, Reignier clinched again, and was again thrown, although he gave bruin a very good handful. At length, amid cries of "Don't try it again!" he went in for the sixth trial. This time he got an inside grip, but this bruin easily threw off. Then Reignier, who was down on his knees, seized the bear's paw and held it firmly. This mode of wrestling was evidently novel to the bear, who tugged and pulled in vain to release himself. In the wildness of his strainings he lost his habitual caution, and Reignier, seizing him behind, actually threw him head over heels and fell upon him. This is the first time the bear has been floored. When he rose to his feet he was fresh and anxious for another bout, but Reignier had retired.—N. Y. Sun.

The Candy Manufactory Disaster in New York.

Additional details of the destruction of Greenfield's candy manufactory in New York, Thursday evening, only add to the horror of the story. The cause of the explosion is still a mystery, but it is certain that the boilers did not burst, as at first reported; both boilers were found in good order, and the sidewalk under which the boilers were situated was not torn up or destroyed; one boiler was found half full of water and the other nearly full. It is now believed that one of the large tanks, filled with material for making candy, must have exploded and shattered the building, causing a large portion of it to fall and bury the inmates and those who were passing by on the street, the ruins almost instantly taking fire and destroying those who had survived the tremendous force of the explosion. All lamps in the building were lighted with kerosene, and these added much to the rapidity with which the flames spread. The number of the victims is still unknown, but is estimated from fifty to seventy-five. The pecuniary losses are given at $428,000 and insurance $334,000. Very many buildings in the vicinity were badly damaged by the explosion, and several were burned. Most of those lost were young girls. The ruins were burning all day Friday, and the work of digging out the dead bodies progressed slowly.

The Eastern War.

Turkey is to have a fresh levy of 300,000 men. The Russian concentration for an attack upon Erzeroum on the north has failed and the attack is now improbable. In the Balkans and the Danube Valley the winter snows have almost suspended military operations.

The Servians claim to have destroyed the Sketchina bridge after a stubborn engagement, thereby severing Turkish communication between Nisch and Loskovatz.

Gen. Todleben has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Russian forces before Rustchuk, which looks as if that place was to be at once beseiged.

A coup d'etat is feared at Constantinople, Suleiman Pasha having arrived there with 10,000 men. This is taken also to indicate that the fortresses of the quadrilateral are to be left to their garrisons for defence, in which case they must fall before regular seige operations.

The organ of the Czar announces that Russia is not anxious about the schemes England may have in view, and defiantly asserts that British intrigues will in no way hinder the triumph of Russia.

News and Notes.

Aaron McKenny of Saco was 100 years old Friday. The old gentleman received hundreds of callers. There was a family reunion.

The singular spectacle of six children, the eldest not eleven years old, accused of murder, was presented last week, in a Columbia (S. C.) court. While picking cotton one of them was struck by a lad of sixteen years, whom they unitedly attacked, inflicting wounds which resulted in his death. The case is perhaps without a parallel.

Senator Patterson of South Carolina is very dangerously ill from a severe attack of congestion of the brain, and grave fears are entertained that he will not recover.

John Currier, Jr., of Newburyport, has just laid the keel of a ship to be of 1600 tons burthen.

The town of Coventry, Conn., has brought a suit against the town of Manchester, Conn., for the support of an alleged pauper named Pattis Pamelia Anthony. The case is decidedly mixed, inasmuch as she has married and lived with seven husbands, and the question is what town shall pay the bill. Six of her reported dead husbands, one of whom was hanged as a pirate, turn out to be alive; and are involved in the case.

The extensive shoe factory of P. & N. Copeland, in Campello, (Brockton) Mass., was destroyed by fire on Thursday evening, involving a loss of between $50,000 and $60,000, and throwing one hundred and fifty workmen out of employment.

Captain Shaw, head of the London fire department, says no wall supported on iron can be relied on to stand, when any considerable heat is applied to it. At a temperature of 600 to 700 degrees Fahrenheit, which can easily be created by the combustion of a small quantity of furniture, such a wall, and the whole building depending on it, must inevitably fall.

California is preparing to make a splendid display at the Paris exposition. The aggregate space asked for is over 30,000 square feet, and the estimated weight of the exhibit is five hundred tons. The exhibition of minerals will be the finest the world has ever seen. A pyramid, twenty feet square at the base, and nearly seventy feet high, will represent the seven millions of cubic inches of gold which have been produced on the Pacific coast. This mass would be equivalent to a sold block of gold as large as a room sixteen feet in height. Around this pyramid fifty plate-glass show-cases will be arranged in which the mineral wealth of the country will be shown. "Life under ground" on the Comstock lode will be exhibited by diagrams, and the Sutro tunnel will be fully represented.

The Grand Jury of the United States District Court at Baltimore found an indictment Friday against Michael Kelley for the murder of Capt. Thos. G. Whitney of the American ship Marianna Nottebahm on the high seas.

New Hampshire Items.

Judge Stanley of the Supreme Court has appointed George W. Burleigh of Great Falls Commissioner to examine and allow such claims as may be proved against the Carroll County Savings Bank, which is now in possession of receivers.

E. H. Colby of Claremont, an agent for the Davis Sewing Machine Company, while driving home from Windsor Thursday evening, was stopped by two men who asked for a match. Colby unbuttoned his overcoat as if to comply with their request, but pulled a revolver. Shots were exchanged, three of the shots of the men penetrating his two coats, and being warded off by a package of letters in his inside coat pocket. The men fled and no clue of them has yet been found. A team supposed to be theirs was found hitched to a fence a short distance from where Colby was stopped.

Pernicious Literature for Boys.

Editor Chronicle: I was much gratified in noticing in the CHRONICLE on Wednesday, an article from one of your exchanges condemning the pernicious trash, for the reading of boys, of which the New York press has so long been prolific. The very titles of the stories put forth in these publications are alone enough to disgust any one possessing the least refinement in taste for reading, and the wood cuts with which they are illustrated, representing either a murder or something approaching it, are simply revolting. If a father or mother has a desire to educate a boy for the gallows, nothing could be more effectual, as an initiatory step, than permitting him to read these weekly sheets circulated by unprincipled publishers, whose only object is to make money, regardless of the consequences of thus corrupting the minds of the young and inexperienced. There is also a class of the "dime novels" equally pernicious in their tendency, as can anywhere be seen at depots where cheap literature is to be had, among others, it may be added, that if not very elevating, are less objectionable. No truer indication, often, of what he will become in his maturity can be found than what a boy has an inclination for reading in his early years, especially among the throng of a great city like New York, where so many different classes and grades of society, numbered by scores, exist. As a single instance of the evil influence of such literature, if it is worthy of the name, as is referred to, upon a boy, the following will suffice. When the New York Custom House was the building now occupied as the Sub-Treasury, the night watchman, in making his rounds, found a boy concealed in the apartment where the safes were kept that contained millions of treasure, and who had made his way there before the close of business for the day. On searching his pockets, besides a candle, matches and gun-powder, with which latter he purposed, as he confessed, blowing open the mammoth safe where untold wealth was to be found, the lives in cheap form appeared of Jack Sheppard and Dick Turpin, the reading of which and weekly papers no better, had incited him to make a hero of himself in the way he attempted. In consequence of his youth, having reached scarcely the age of seventeen, and his father being a worthy man among the custom-house inspectors, he was let off with a reprimand, and advice to aspire to some higher fame than that of a burglar or a highwayman. Half a dozen years went by, and then, at the age of twenty-two, (retaining the same propensity to make himself famous for something exciting,) on meeting in the streets of Brooklyn, on a Sabbath afternoon, a young lady, who after inquiring into his habits had declined his company, he asked her to marry him, when, on her refusing, he inflicted upon her a wound with a pistol, from which she recovered, and another upon himself which proved fatal.

In years gone by, a class of most objectionable novels were in circulation, such as "Eliza Wharton," "The Gamesters," "The Monk" by M. G. Lewis, and others, that judicious parents were wont, it is said, when they found them in their homes, to throw them into the fire; and the parents of the present day can do equally well by consigning to the flames all such literary garbage as is furnished for their sons in sheets like "Our Boys," "The Boys of New York" "The Boys' New York Weekly" and others that are issued in New York and elsewhere on the Sabbath, that desecrate to such an extent the day of rest. It was gratifying to notice on a Sunday morning, when Moody and Sankey were in Brooklyn, that among the thousands on their way home from the great gathering place where the services had been held, not one purchased the papers published mainly for those who never attend divine services and whose loose-principled and not seldom irreverent contents are their only reading on the Sabbath. A Christmas Present.

Old Moneybags has a neat way of making Christmas presents, which in hard times has its advantages. The liberal old fellow suggested to Mrs. M. and the little Moneybags, that as presents of different articles had been so generally made in former seasons, at this Christmas money should be given, and that each member of the family should make and receive a present. The plan suggested by the fertile genius of Moneybags was, that he should present the partner of his joys and each of his three children, with five dollars, and that then his loving wife and darling offspring should in turn each make him a present of like amount. The result of the operation may be stated in a mercantile form as following: Dr., Presents to wife and children, at five dollars each, twenty dollars; Cr., presents received from wife and children, at five dollars each, twenty dollars. Result, everybody happy, having made and received a generous present, and the capital of the family remaining unimpaired.

Ploughing the Bed of the Ocean.

During the past summer we witnessed deep-sea ploughing in the harbor of Belfast, Maine. The bottom of the bay is covered with a tenacious, clayey deposit, into which the steam shovel penetrates with difficulty; and to loosen it a huge Michigan plough was set at work, drawn by steam power on the shore, using a wire rope to form connections. The water at high tide was about twenty feet deep when the plough was working. The man that held it was encased in the diver's armor, and supplied with air by a flexible tube connecting with an air-pump on board of a vessel floating above. He came up at our request, and after removing his air-tight helmet and conversing a few moments, was again put in connection with the pump, and disappearing under water, went on with the ploughing. This to us was a novel proceeding, and so far as we can learn, it was the first experiment of the kind ever made.—Journal of Chemistry.

Wifely Obedience.

The late Chief Justice Chase's mother once bore her part in a little comedy which was almost Shakespearian. With her husband she was visiting two of his brothers who were also married. The three gentlemen, sitting and talking together, made some playful wagers on the subject of the temper of their wives, and agreed to test them. So, walking into the room where the three ladies were sitting by the fireside making caps, which at that time was very fashionable, the trial began. The first brother, after some slighting remarks concerning caps in general and his wife's handiwork in particular, commanded her to throw it into the fire. Naturally the indignant lady paid small attention to the order. The next brother's attempt met with similar success. But no sooner did the chief justice's father command his wife to toss her cap into the fire than the cap went into the flames, and that in the most prompt, sweet and serene manner.

What is "The Balsa."

That was, no doubt, a question in the minds of many who read Ensign Lucien Young's graphic description of the wreck of the Huron and of his own escape on "the balsa." The latter is a raft or float, and on the Pacific coast of South America, whence the name is derived, it is made of whole hides of bullocks sewed into air-tight bags, two of which are fastened together at the smaller end, and form a float, upon which a board is laid crossways. On this board the occupant of the balsa sits with legs dangling in the water, and, by means of a paddle, guides the buoyant raft through the surf. The balsa is used by Peruvian women, who go out to vessels at anchor off shore to sell provisions, fruits and whiskey to the sailors. As they sit on the cross board, with the inflated bags spread out like two wings from their point of junction, near which the board is placed, one end of the balsa is elevated high above the water, and it is only necessary to turn this end to shore as the balsa approaches the breakers to ensure a safe passage through them. The balsa of the Huron was probably an air-filled India-rubber float, sufficiently like its South American prototype to bear the family name. It saved the lives of two men, and under more favorable circumstances might have carried a line ashore and been instrumental in saving the lives of others.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE CITY.

Chief Engineer Macomb, U. S. N., is home on a short Christmas furlough.

Schooner N. W. Magee, from this port for Baltimore, arrived at the lower harbor in Boston, Friday.

Christmas is a legal holiday, and note payers should make a note of the fact, before it is too late.

Hon. Daniel Marcy and family start soon after New Year's for a winter's sojourn in New Orleans.

Dr. John W. Parsons of this city has been elected a member of the Strafford District Medical Society.

If you wish to know where you can purchase a Christmas present to the best advantage, consult our advertising columns this morning.

Dr. William R. Preston has on exhibition and for sale, at his store, a beautiful white wax cross, made by a daughter of Mr. Stephen Weeks of Greenland. It will make a nice Christmas present.

John P. Sweetser, No. 46 Market street, advertises for sale the genuine "Astral" oil. This is claimed to be the best oil in the market,—and whether the best or not, is certainly a safe and brilliant oil.

Schooner A. K. Woodward, bound to this port from Port Johnson, coal laden, went ashore on the rocks east of Dutch Island at high water Friday morning. The captain proceeded to Newport for assistance.

The Christmas turkey notes the handbill indicating a raffle for Christmas eve, and shakes the tassel on the top of his beak with the regretful remark, "this is different from the way the dollar of our fathers was expended."

A boy skating on the North millpond, Saturday forenoon, was too heavy or the ice was too thin, for he broke through and got well soaked. Better keep off the pond, boys, until we have had some decent winter weather,—not that the weather for weeks past hasn't been decent enough, but it has not been winter weather at all.

Persons interested will take notice that the starting time of the afternoon train on the Concord & Portsmouth railroad has been changed; instead of leaving at a quarter past five o'clock, as formerly, it now leaves at ten minutes past five. The change we understand is made in order to afford more running time between this city and Newmarket Junction.

The new ship building near the railroad track in Newburyport, at the yard of Atkinson & Fillmore, has been sold to Capt. John S. Pray and others. She will be commanded by Capt. Samuel Pray, of this city, and managed by M. F. Pickering & Co., of Boston. The ship is 1100 tons burthen, and will be launched the latter part of March. She is pronounced a fine vessel.

On Friday, as Mr. Jere. Towle, who drives a bread-cart for Vaughan Brothers, bakers, was going his rounds, on passing the house No. 1 MacDonough street, occupied by Mr. Thomas E. Rand, he saw through the window a bright flame. Jumping from the team he knocked at the door, but meeting no response he burst the door in, and found that a pan of fat that had been left on the stove had boiled over and the fat taken fire, the blaze reaching to the ceiling. Catching the blazing pan in his bare hand he threw it out of doors, burning his hand very badly in doing it,—and by his prompt and energetic action in breaking in the door and removing the pan undoubtedly prevented another job for the fire department.

POLICE COURT.

Saturday, Dec. 22d; Batchelder, J.

William Dunbrack and Badger Hanscom, of Greenland, were arraigned on a charge of breaking into a freight car of the Eastern railroad at Greenland, and stealing therefrom a quantity of tobacco. Dunbrack was bound over in the sum of $400 for his appearance at the April term of the Supreme Court. Hanscom was discharged, but was immediately rearrested for receiving a quantity of stolen tobacco, knowing the same to have been stolen, and was held in $400 to appear at the April term of court.

Charles Wright, for stealing eight pairs of stockings from a store door, was sent to jail for thirty days, and ordered to pay costs taxed at $8.41.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

At the High School, Saturday morning, the upper room (in which the whole school assembled) was handsomely decorated. Festoons of evergreen extended from the centre-piece to the four corners, and the motto "Merry Christmas," beautifully wrought in autumn leaves, extended nearly across the end of the room. Then there were circles and stars of evergreen, all giving the room the finest of holiday dress and appearance. This feature of the occasion was a complete surprise to the teachers and the pupils of the lower classes, the highest class having been at work on it some two or three weeks, and actually keeping it a profound secret. During the day a picture of the room, a stereoscopic view, was taken by Davis Brothers.

The teachers were the recipients of elegant and well-selected presents, among which was a beautiful bouquet for each. Mr. Clarke received an elegant silver cake basket, Miss Bailey a pair of vases of most beautiful design, Miss Hooper a large and very elegant photograph album, and Miss Magraw a beautiful silver vase and card receiver combined in one. These were handsomely presented, in a few well timed remarks by a member of the highest class. The teachers responded happily, and spoke briefly of the pleasant relations and feelings now existing between them and the pupils, stating that they had never felt more satisfaction in the school than now. After a further exchange of holiday greetings and wishes, the school was dismissed for a vacation of two weeks.

At the Hanover street school the principal, Mr. Charles H. Buzzell, was presented with an elegant silver butter dish; Miss Drake received a silver cake basket and choice bouquet, Miss Bodge a silver butter dish and napkin ring, and Miss Young a bouquet-holder and card-receiver.

CONCORD & PORTSMOUTH R. R.

The usual semi-annual dividend of three and a half per cent. will be paid at the office of William H. Hackett on Saturday, the 29th inst.; after that, at Manchester.

OUR SCHOOLS.

Those interested in our public schools may well be pleased with the improvement and progress of those pupils who come within the limits of their home circle, in whose welfare they are personally interested. The practical branches are well observed; and our grammar school course, when complete, will fit any scholar of fair natural ability to fill creditably a responsible position in the business world; for we all consider arithmetic, spelling and writing as essentials, (while history, geography and physiology, though important, must give the first-named branches the pre-eminence,) and the pupil whose school education is based upon a thorough knowledge of these studies has laid the foundation for a good business education, which will give him success in future years. The young man who is a ready accountant and who can write a good hand, is reasonably sure to obtain positions of worth and trust, and this proficiency is worth much to one who must depend wholly upon his own exertions, as a good education is oftimes the only inheritance a poor man can leave to his children.

Among these practical branches we are constantly noting the value of a good, plain style of writing, and we who have children cannot fail to see that our schools are not deficient in this important branch of practical education; and many of the parents will be pleased to learn that the public schools of Portsmouth were given the highest awards at the Centennial Exposition for the best specimens of penmanship. This is encouraging to parents, and the pupils may be justly proud of their record, while we will not forget the credit which is due the teacher under whose careful and proficient instruction this acme has been reached, and I am certain he has and will continue to have the heartfelt thanks of his many friends and pupils. OBSERVER.

THE VICINITY.

The Congregational church at Rye has extended a unanimous call to Rev. Willis A. Hadley, who for the past nine months has preached at Newington.

We are requested to state that Mr. David Varney and Mrs. Dolly Manson, of Kittery, were not united in the holy bonds of matrimony on the 16th inst., as has been published.

The Boston & Maine railroad is putting in a new side track at Newmarket Junction for the use of the passenger trains, and it is said that they will extend the track through to South Newmarket station, in the spring, making a double track from the Junction to South Newmarket, and make other very much needed improvements.

—The novelty in ladies' boots is to have the tops of bouretto cloth to match the dress.

—Two gentlemen at the Boston Theatre, Wednesday evening, were curious to learn how much time would be consumed in dismissing the crowded audience present to witness "The Exiles." Both held watches, and they jointly reported that in two minutes and fifteen seconds after the fall of the curtain the auditorium was cleared and the lights extinguished; and five minutes and forty seconds after the curtain went down they were seated in a Metropolitan car on Washington street, and saw the gates at the main entrance closed by the watchman.

"A valuable horse of the writer's was kicked on the hock. Swelling and lameness ensued, rendering the animal nearly worthless. We were advised to try Giles' Liniment, and are gratified to say it acted like a charm. About two inches of bone came away, the sore healed up, and the lameness and swelling are fast disappearing.

A New Engine.

If the new descriptions are not overdrawn, a remarkably convenient small steam engine has been invented in Philadelphia. It is an oscillating engine, attached to a tank holding about two gallons of water. The boiler is of about a quart capacity, the steam chest half that size; the whole concern occupies a space of about ten inches square and eighteen high, and weighs thirty-five pounds. It is designed for use with any sort of light machinery and is said to be suitable for a variety of domestic work. The details of the contrivance are not yet stated, but assurances are given that it cannot, under any circumstances, explode; that it is as manageable as an ordinary gas burner, since the inventor has succeeded in dispensing with water and steam gauges and automatic floats, so that the whole apparatus is simple, and no skill is required to operate it. The kitchen of the future is expected to contain one of these engines to chop hash, turn the coffee mill and the roasting-jack, sift ashes and mangle the family linen.

ILLUMINATING OIL!

For Safety and for Excellent Burning Qualities, it is without an equal.

CAUTION.

The great popularity of "ASTRAL" OIL has induced some unprincipled persons to sell worthless and dangerous imitations for "ASTRAL," while others palm off inferior oils, representing them as good as "ASTRAL." To prevent this fraud, purchasers should demand "ASTRAL" and take no other.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

For the Whiskers.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is readily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur

Liniments.

They relieve pain;

They subdue swellings;

They cure burns without a scar.

The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been specially restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

Honey

To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.

COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.

Messrs. J. B. ROSE & Co., N. Y.

I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefit I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.

Very truly yours,

NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all fresh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

REMEDIES

NATURAL SELECTION.

Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have contrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported feels up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery

Golden Medical Discovery

By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Billiousness, Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.

Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternate with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases it is equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Pleasant

Purgative

Pellets.

Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.

The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.

As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their thereby preserved uninpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore-Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,

I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

THE ROSE OF WARNING.

A GERMAN LEGEND.

In a beautiful Swiss valley
Stood a cloister long ago,
By a stream that musically
Wandered down from Alpine snow;
Round its walls a garden grew,
With still pathways winding through;
Holy brothers dwelt there, praying,
Musing, gulding, hearts up-staying.

And they tell us that whenever
The cold-handed conqueror Death
Called a brother's spirit, never Failed this token of last breath—
At the midnight call to prayer,
On the fated brother's chair
Lay a snow-white Rose of Warning:
He must die at break of morning.

In his cell, then, uncomplaining,
He awaited his last hour,
Gazing still, while life was waning,
Prayerful, on the warning flower
Hung up on the sacred wood,
As once Eve whose gracious blood
From His pierced heart flows forever,
Love's divine, unfailing river.

Once, alas! the Rose of Warning
Chose a youth. 'Twas hard to die
When upon the world life's morning
Had just opened her young eyes.
Hastily and stealthily,
Ere the others enter, he Laid the flower to warn another—
An old, weary, waiting brother.

But upon the early morrow
O'er the lowly cloister wall
Rose a long, loud wail of sorrow:
There were two for burial!
The old man, in happy rest,
With his hands upon his breast;
But the youth, all pale, distorted—
Who could guess how he departed?

And the rose upon its bosom
Wore a fearful stain of blood!
Nevermore the snow-white blossom
Warned the sorrowing brotherhood.
Vainly they, at midnight bell,
Watched for that and miracle;
For with blood was it polluted,
And for service pure unsullied.

And the brothers, broken-hearted,
Died in sorrow, one by one;
And the cloister stood deserted
And decaying; till the ocean
Could not find it. There, they say,
Grow white roses to this day;
But a stain of blood waves through them,
For the murder-curse clings to them.

—We have about fifty different treaties with Mexico, and what's the use of making any more. What those halibut-painted gents need is a good drubbing at the hands of this nation, and then they'd settle down to highway robbery and become good fellows.—Detroit Free Press.

—A deputy sheriff recently set out to arrest two brothers, who had farms a few miles from Waco, Texas. He found them at work in their fields picking cotton. He told them what his errand was. They stared at him, winked at each other, gently but firmly disarmed him, and ordered him to go to work in the field; and there he remained, picking cotton for dear life, until the officials in his own frontier county heard of the incident and rescued him.

—In 1810 Secretary of State Pickering wrote to the British minister: "Mr. and Mrs. Pickering have received the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Liston to dine with them next Monday; which would be accepted with pleasure, but that Congress do not allow persons holding executive offices under the United States (unless they possess private fortunes) to have any convivial intercourse with foreign ministers, and scarcely admit of it with the most intimate of their fellow citizens. It is deemed honor enough for executive officers to toil without interruption for their country, and indulgence enough to live on mutton, mush and cold water."

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1877.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 21st.

Clark Mills, the sculptor, publicly charges, according to the Star, that hundreds of thousands—perhaps millions—of dollars have been contributed to the building of the Washington monument, and that paper unites with him in a call upon the Association to account for it. More than twenty-five years ago the building of the monument began. Some, I dare say, may have the fact recalled that many years ago they were solicited to send a dollar in aid of the project, by reading this. Foreign Governments contributed blocks of marble, and the indignity with which that sent by the Pope was treated when the Know Nothings gained temporary control of the Association is still remembered. In many, if not all, the Departments here, boxes were placed twenty years ago, more or less, soliciting alms of every visitor for the Washington monument; there is also one at the Capitol, and for aught I know similar contrivances, appealing to the patriotism of every passer-by, are in the public buildings throughout the country. The aggregate collected by these insatiable little iron receptacles must amount to something handsome; and it is pertinent to inquire what has become of it? Spasmodic fits of zeal have occasionally seized the members of the Association,—and at such times efforts have been made to stimulate contributions by circulars and otherwise. During one of these, a year or two since, secret societies, Masons, Odd Fellows, etc., were appealed to all over the country, and their response in many instances is understood to have been generous. Where is it all? The Association ought to be able to show, and be glad of an opportunity to convince a gain-saying world that they have been faithful to their trust. A little investigation undertaken a few years since by a well-known lady Washington correspondent, into the affairs of the Mt. Vernon Association, resulted in revelations so unsavory of its management by the boss or resident regent, as to have begotten a wide-spread aversion to promiscuous alms-giving of this sort, even to nominally responsible parties; and which not even the pretense that it was to go to perpetuate the name and fame of General Washington sufficed to wholly overcome.

One of the real charities of the Capital city is the lodging-house established for the purpose of giving to such seemingly respectable strangers as found themselves in this city without money or friends, a night's shelter, with an abundant supper and breakfast of bread and coffee to such of them as could not procure better. It occupies the old central station house, and is supported wholly by voluntary contributions. If known, no one under the influence of liquor is harbored, and every guest is required to take a bath on entering, and go into the clean sheets in a similar condition approximating godliness. Since opened this season it has supplied above four hundred wanderers with a bed and bread and coffee night and morning. The appearance and manners of the three first applicants for a night's entertainment are noted somewhat in this wise by a reporter for the Republican. The first, a man above sixty, still erect, hair whitened, but of refined appearance and conversation. He timidly requests lodging and food, says he has walked from Baltimore since morning (forty miles;) asked for food at the Relay House, and was so disconcerted by the rough refusal that he made no further appeals. He stated that he was a chum of Senator —— at Yale, and came to this city to see him, but learned he had gone to his home for the recess. He reflected somewhat bitterly, but patiently withal, upon the relative success attained by each in life's battle. After cheerfully complying with the conditions precedent to retiring, and eating and drinking his fill, he was shown a good bed and was soon on a level with the Senatorial friend of his youth. No. two is a typical tramp—dirty, ragged, and with the unmistakable air in every movement of the ruffian vagabond. His first salutation was, "I want a bed—a better one than I had last time." He was informed to the effect that no drunken bullies were entertained a second time, and that he must find accommodations elsewhere. He went out, and directly a brick came crashing in through the door; but he eluded pursuit. The third was a female—tired, hungry and wretched—just such material as fills many a suicide's grave in the potter's field. Her story was briefly, that she had been deluded into coming here by a false husband, from a happy home; that at the first pinch of poverty he deserted her, and that she was now seeking to regain her home.

One of our other institutions—the Labor Bureau—devised to find employment for the hundreds of enforced idlers in our midst, though an experiment and laboring under the joint drawbacks of lack of funds and experience, has been conducted with energy and good judgment; and out of the three or four thousand who have solicited its good offices, work for several hundred has been found.

Many members of Congress have gone to spend the recess with their families left at home,—and their constituents.

Reports from El Paso are contradictory as to the participation of Mexican citizens in the late outbreak there. Government dispatches indicating that there were none and those from Texas officials affirming that Mexicans from the south side of the Rio Grande instigated the disturbances and took a lead in them. All agree, however, in the belief that our relations with Mexico are in an extremely critical state, and liable to eventuate in war at any time. KNOX.

Consolidation of Magazines.

It seems that Messrs. H. O. Houghton & Co. have bought out the Galaxy, heretofore published by Sheldon & Co. of New York, and the magazine will hereafter be combined with the Atlantic Monthly. The January number of the Galaxy is its last. It was established by the Messrs. Church, in New York, in 1866. The Atlantic, as a New England periodical, will have the competition of Scribner's, Harper's, Lippincott's, Appleton's and other magazines, but it is to be hoped for the credit of New England that it will not only maintain its high repute but be remunerative to its proprietors. Messrs. Houghton & Co. are usually successful when they undertake a publication.

News and Notes.

The Inman steamer City of Berlin, disabled on the voyage from New York to Liverpool some weeks ago, has been taken into the graving dock, and it was found that the screw shaft was not broken, as was supposed, but that the key of the propeller had given way and that the propeller became loose on the shaft. No wonder she wouldn't sail with such a drag after her.

The Comptroller of the Currency will issue no more notes of five dollars to the First National bank of Hanover, Pa., nor the First National bank of Tamaqua, Pa., as dangerous counterfeits of said notes have recently been put in circulation; all persons should refuse five dollar notes of these banks, and holders should forward such notes to the redemption agency of the Treasury Department.

An effort will be made to have inserted in any mail steamship subsidy bill which may pass Congress this session, a clause compelling the company to have vessels manned by American seamen. The Pacific Mail Steamship Company, it is said, now has its vessels almost entirely manned by Chinamen.

Cornelius Tobin, of South Boston, on Sunday afternoon threw a lighted kerosene lamp at Mrs. John Mahegan, who occupied the same house with Tobin. The lamp broke and the kerosene took fire, and Mrs. Mahegan was burned to death. Tobin was arrested—and the man who sold the kerosene ought to be, for good kerosene would not take fire under such circumstances.

Hon. A G. Wakefield has presented to the city of Bangor, Me., $10,000, asking that the income be expended annually for the relief of the deserving poor.

Stephen A. Haviland, known among printers as a remarkably correct type setter, died in New York, Dec. 7th, aged sixty-six. He learned the trade when a boy, in the employ of William E. Dean, at New and Wall streets, New York city. He has been known to set twelve book pages of type, mixed Greek, Latin and English, without an error; and the remarkable feat of setting a concordance to the Bible in diamond type without an error, is attributed to him. He was for twenty-five years a proof reader for the Methodist Book Concern.

Five horse thieves were taken from jail in Bakersfield, Cal., on Friday, and hanged by a mob.

Burglars entered the house of Mr. Benjamin S. Noyes at Boston Highlands on Sunday morning, gagged and bound the servant, and gathered up the valuables throughout the house. They finally became frightened and left their booty behind them.

The famous trotting mare Flora Temple, the "Queen of the Turf" for many years, died in Philadelphia on Friday at the age of thirty-three years. As a remarkable illustration of the increase in speed of trotting horses, it may be mentioned that Flora Temple's best time was a mile in 2:24, and that she was withdrawn from the turf in 1861, no horses being found to trot against her; while Goldsmith Maid, the present mistress of the race-track, has a record of 2:14, and a score or more of racers have a record a long way under Flora Temple's best time.

Mrs. A. T. Stewart, of New York, fell Saturday and broke her arm.

Three brokers were arrested in New York, Saturday night, who are said to be members of the largest, most powerful and best organized gang of bond counterfeiters ever unearthed in this country, and that their operations have extended throughout the principal cities of the Union. The amount of the bonds already put on the market is stated at $150,000.

The spread of fever in Ireland has lately been directly traced to attending wakes, and the medical papers in England are asking the Roman Catholic clergy to use their influence against them. The clergy have long tried to abolish wakes, but hitherto with little success either in Ireland or America. The wake is not a "Catholic" institution at all, as many Protestants suppose, but is purely Irish,—a relic of ancient customs which not even the clergy's influence has been sufficient to banish.

By a two-thirds vote, the legislature of South Carolina has ratified the tax of two mills on all the taxable property of the state for the support of free schools.

The subject of educating boys in practical seamanship, to fit them for service in the navy, having been thoroughly treated and found of great advantage, will be presented to Congress at this session by the naval authorities, with a view of having such changes made in the law as shall result in having the navy manned entirely by educated seamen. Commodore Shufeldt, chief of the bureau of equipment and recruiting, will explain the advantages to the committee on naval affairs of the Senate and House, and recommend the passage of a law authorizing the enlistment of 750 boys annually, which will be ten per cent. of the actual number of seamen now allowed to the navy, as it has been ascertained by experience, in England and elsewhere, that such a percentage of new material will keep up the force to a perfect state. It appears that during the trouble between this country and Spain, on account of the Virginius affair, when three thousand additional men were enlisted, over twenty-five per cent. were incapacitated for service within a few weeks.

Messrs. Martin and Harding, Englishmen, American Consul Griffin, the marshal and the deputy marshal who were embroiled in the late troubles in the island of Samoa, and were put in irons by order of the English consul, have sued the consul in the Supreme Court of Fiji and recovered the damages, with costs, for false imprisonment. Besides these damages, they claim each $20,000 damages from England.

Thirteen vacancies in the medical corps of the army are to be filled on recommendation of the examining board now holding sessions in New York.

An investigation in the case of three ships of different classes of the navy show the accommodations of the seamen utterly insufficient, the crowded quarters causing much sickness. A remedy will be applied as soon as possible.

United States ships Supply, at New York, and Constitution, at Philadelphia, and steamer Wyoming, at Washington, will be ready to receive goods for the Paris Exposition on the 20th of February. The Wyoming takes the government exhibit.

Crime in the National Capital appears to cover a wide range of humanity. There were 12,983 arrests made by the police during the year ending on the 30th of September last, including one member of Congress, nine editors, thirty-one reporters, nine preachers and sixty-seven lawyers, one hundred and eighty-five printers and five hundred and eight clerks.

Captain Wiggins, an Englishman, just arrived in London from the Jenesei and Obi rivers, in Siberia, reports that the route is practicable to the north pole with an open sea all the way. He also reports an immense commerce into Siberia from China. Capt. Wiggins, with a schooner of forty tons, sailed from the capital of Siberia to St. Petersburg. Steps are to be taken to organize a line of trading steamers and open to the world the timber, grain and mineral resources of Siberia. Seven tons of gold were taken from one mine this year. The wheat, equal to that of California, is sold at $15 a ton. Beef is one cent a pound. Capt. Wiggins' story sounds very much like some of those of the celebrated traveller, Baron Munchausen.

Advices from London state that the Dutch steamer Friesland, from Java to Rotterdam, has been lost with all hands off Cape Finisterre. She passed Gibraltar December 5th. Wreckage has been sighted which there is little doubt came from the Friesland. Her crew numbered about fifty. There were no passengers. It was first reported there were 362 passengers aboard, but these were Malay pilgrims, and landed at Jeddah.

A new counterfeit $5 note on the First National Bank of Hanover, Pa., has made its appearance. The paper is thin and color dark. Bank number 187, date Feb. 20, 1864, and bearing signatures of F. E. Spinner and L. E. Chittenden. It is printed from same plate as the First National Bank of Tamaqua, Pa., which made its appearance about Sept. 20, 1877.

Senator Anthony of Rhode Island sent to Senator Eaton of Connecticut a thirty pound turkey for Christmas.

It is stated that Evarts has given assurance to the Spanish Minister that the steamer Estelle will not be allowed to go to sea until more satisfactory explanations of her intentions are given.

Hon. Charles H. Bell of Exeter has been selected to preside at the Republican State Convention which is to be holden in Concord the second week in January.

A new religious organization has been formed in the "Pine Plains" district of Concord, to be known as the Memorial Union Church. It was instituted by a council representing six of the evangelical churches of Concord. A handsome communion service was presented by W. B. Durgin, ex-Mayor Kimball and Mrs. C. D. Berry.

The fourteenth annual session of the New Hampshire State Musical Festival will be held in Concord, commencing Jan. 29, and continuing four days.

Dr. Henry G. Staples, dentist, of Hanover, attempted suicide with a pistol Saturday. While rational he expresses regret and wants to recover. It is impossible to extract the ball, owing to its contact with the brain. Various causes are assigned for the act. His recovery is considered impossible.

Samuel Greenleaf, the oldest citizen of Exeter, died on Monday, aged 92 years and six months. He was a veteran of the war of 1812.

Robert P. Parrott, inventor of the gun which bears his name, died at Cold Spring, N. Y., on Monday. He was born in Lee, in this State, and was 73 years old at the time of his death.

THE CITY.

To-day being Christmas Day, no paper will be issued from this office to-morrow.

The Kearsarge Mills shut down from Monday to Wednesday, to straighten the piston rod of the large engine.

Our friend J. W. P. Carter suggests that "to-day will settle Turkey's attitude on the piece question for this winter."

At the Christmas assembly at Mechanics' Hall to night, elegant presents are to be given to the best two dancers—lady and gentleman. Grand march at 8:30 o'clock.

There was good skating on the North millpond again on Monday. The ice was hardly thick enough to be safe for a big crowd to stand still on, but nobody broke through it.

Schooner A. K. Woodward, before reported as having run ashore on Dutch island Friday morning, while on the passage from Port Johnson to this port with coal, was hauled off at high water on Saturday, and continued her voyage.

Lieut. Chas. Seymour, U. S. N., recently ordered to the navy yard, will have a very pleasant duty on Wednesday, when he is to lead to the altar the daughter of Commodore John Guest, the Commandant at the navy yard. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Eugene M. O'Callaghan, pastor of St. Mary's church.

Monday was a pretty good day for the fishing schooners out of this port. The Celia brought in 7,000 lbs., the Mary S. Hontvet 12,000 lbs., the Comet 7,000 lbs., the Grace Choate 5,000 lbs., the Ella M. Johnson 6,000 lbs., and the George Linwood 3,000 lbs., of cod and haddock. About 4,000 lbs. additional was brought in by the small boats.

On Saturday forenoon R. Hamilton Perkins, principal of the Haven school, was presented with a handsome dressing-case; Misses Shackford and Marshal received fancy boxes, Miss Dodge a pair of Bohemian glass vases, and the teachers of the remaining grades handsome specimens of straw work and other articles. At the Cabot street school there were some pleasant remembrances from the pupils.—Times.

On Saturday the fishing schooner Silkworm, (one of the old-fashioned "pinkies,") of Gloucester, Capt. Downs, was lying alongside the pier on the up-river side of the draw of Portsmouth bridge. She was loaded with fish, salt and fresh, and bound on a trading voyage up the Piscataqua; and while waiting for wind and tide drove quite a brisk trade on the bridge, supplying a large number of State of Maine farmers, who were homeward bound from this city, with "Marblehead turkeys."

Hartford, Conn., is boasting over a grasshopper caught on a grass plat in one of its squares last week; and the editor of a Massachusetts paper (published in a "license" town) says he heard robins singing one morning recently—whether just after he got up or just before he went to bed he does not tell us. In the woods near this city, on Sunday, arbutus buds almost in bloom were gathered; and in several gardens in the city having a sunny aspect and sheltered from the winds, lilac bushes are budding out.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

There was a Christmas service at the Middle street church on Sunday.

The Methodists had their Christmas tree on Monday evening, in the church.

Sixteen stockings were hung up, and filled with presents, at the Children's Home, Monday evening.

There will be Christmas services at the South Parish to-day, at the usual hour of morning service.

The Mission School festival at the Creek will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The Unitarian festival and Christmas tree will be at Franklin Hall at 6:30 this evening.

North church festival at the vestry, at 7 o'clock this evening.

At the Court Street Christian church the annual Christmas entertainment will occur this evening, with a pleasing programme to accompany this yearly jubilee.

The Universalist Christmas tree will be set up in the church, and the festival will be held this evening at seven o'clock.

The Christmas festival of the Episcopal church will be held in Franklin Hall on Thursday evening at 5:30 o'clock, when the Christmas tree will be cleared of its motley fruit.

DIVIDENDS.

The Rockingham National Bank pays a dividend of four per cent., on New Year's day. At the same time, the New Hampshire National Bank pays a dividend of three per cent.

THE TRAMP NUISANCE.

We take the following from the Dover Democrat of the 18th inst.:

Last night, just about dark, a stranger came along the sidewalk at Winslow's store, near Central street bridge, deliberately took a pair of shoes hanging up by the door and marched off. He was soon overhauled and refused to give his name, but the substance of it was he did not want the shoes to wear, but he wanted to be sent to jail to get a winter's board and lodgings at the city or county expense. He is now in the station, and the authorities are determined not to accommodate him with a winter home, but propose to get him off out of town if possible. He probably will not go unless he is carried by force. There are a good many similar cases all about and rather on the increase. What is the best method in regard to this sort of people. Can anybody tell?

We have had a number of just such tramps as this Dover genius in this city, and shall probably have plenty more of them before winter is over; and the Democrat's question, "What is the best method in regard to this sort of people?" is an important one, and whoever can answer it satisfactorily will be a public benefactor. There are tramps now in Portsmouth jail who came here and broke the law on purpose to get sent to the jail or to Brentwood,—they didn't care much which, for during the winter there is no work worth mentioning to do at either place. A year ago a tramp stole a pair of boots from a store door on Congress street, was caught (as he acknowledged he intended to be) and sent to jail for the winter. He was discharged in the spring, and kept out of the city all summer, but not many days ago he returned, bringing a lot of mates with him; four of them stole things from a store door, and three others, who had been sent out of town one morning, were back on the streets, drunk and disorderly, on the evening of the same day; and all seven were sent to jail, where they wanted to go to be fed and sheltered for the winter. The County Commissioners have requested our city officials to send no more tramps to Brentwood, as they cannot be accommodated there without incommoding the paupers; and the jail now has a much larger number of inmates than ever before. This state of affairs moves us to ask, in the language of one of the great men of modern times, "What are you going to do about it?" Are vagabonds, simply because they are vagabonds, to be allowed to steal, or get drunk and brawl in the streets at pleasure, and go unpunished therefor, while the citizen who commits either of these offences (though he may be ordinarily a good citizen) is punished? If they are, then the worthless, criminal vagrants are to be privileged above men who are worth something to the community. On the other hand, if every vagabond who steals a chicken or pair of boots from a store door, before the eyes of a police officer, or robs a clothes-line, or gets drunk and yells about the street, is dealt with as the law says he shall be dealt with, then our own respectable and worthy citizens will be defrauded of the modicum of jail or house of correction which is justly their due when they get drunk and kick up a row, or steal things,—for the county houses of detention are already filled to their utmost capacity. It is of no use to say "Let the police drive the tramps out of the town," for as a general thing they won't go out, and if they are escorted out they come right back again and commit some petty theft with the avowed purpose of getting "sent up" for the winter. And the few who can be driven away are merely sent somewhere else to steal,—to rob hen roosts and corn bins and stores in the country, and burn barns either for sport or through carelessness. What is wanted is not something that will suffice to make a tramp move on out of one town into the next one, but a plan that will do away with vagabondism all around; and no such plan has yet been devised, for vagrancy is yearly on the increase all over the Union, and the hordes of worthless bummers in many sections have established something very like a reign of terror among the inhabitants of thinly settled districts. In Pennsylvania they have had pitched battles with sheriff's posses; and in Maryland a State convention, presided over by Hon. Montgomery Blair, has been in session to consider the best method of ridding the State of the tramp nuisance, with especial reference to the protection of farmers. One thing is certain; our jails and houses of correction are no restraint whatever upon vagrancy, as the tramps can easily keep clear of them in the summer, when there is work (at least on the county farm) to do, and in the winter the jails and county houses are cosy houses of refuge for them.

RYE LETTER.

RYE, Dec. 24th.

The Festival held by the ladies of the Congregational society on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings of last week, was the most successful ever given by them, the total receipts being $426.55; $100 will probably cover the expenses, leaving over $300 as the net proceeds. There was a large crowd present on the second evening, and as the "entertainment part" was not over until a late hour, and every one present seemed desirous of seeing that, the sale of fancy articles had not been sufficient to clear the tables, so it was determined to continue the Festival another evening, which was done at a reduced rate of admission and was attended by about two hundred persons; and after a short entertainment, the auctioneer, G. H. Jenness, Esq., mounted the platform and soon disposed of the remaining articles at fair prices. But it was evident each evening, that the great majority of those present came to see and hear, and were not in want of many goods, either useful or ornamental. An elegant chair and a sofa cushion were put up the first evening to be voted for, the first to a gentleman, and the second to a lady, and the polls were kept open until 11 o'clock the last evening, when the vote was declared; Mr. W. S. Kusel, having the largest number of votes, was presented with the chair; and Miss Clara Emma Jenness had the most on the cushion, which was presented to her. Seventy-seven dollars was realized on the chair, and thirty dollars on the cushion. Two ring cakes brought twelve dollars; and Mr. John Frasier was the lucky individual who got the slice which had the ring, in the first, Miss Minnie Brown securing the second one. A guess cake which weighed 8 lbs., 7 1-2 oz., was captured by Mr. Gilman Garland.

The entertainment given was quite a feature, and consisted of tableaux, charades, speaking by Mr. Ed. Foss and Miss Lizzie Trefethern, readings by Miss Estella Goss and Mrs. J. J. Rand, singing by Miss Estella Delany, Mr. and Mrs. Adams Drake and others, solos on the flute and harmonica, and the farce of "Box and Cox." The whole was well presented, and the audience gave their undivided attention while the curtain was up. Among the features, which may be alluded to as pleasing the audience most, was the singing of Miss Estella Delany, who gave a different song each evening, and was deservedly encored. Also flute solos by Mrs. C. O. Philbrick, songs by Mr. W. S. Kusel, harmonica solos by Mr. Joseph J. Rand, duets by Miss Leona P. Brown, two "Jubilee songs" (entitled "Turn back Pharoah's army," and "Been a listening") by a select chorus, and a pretty representation of the seasons, by four little girls, each reciting an appropriate verse. The farce of Box and Cox made some merriment, and was repeated the second evening by request. Our Cornet Band were present every evening, and did their part faithfully and well. They have improved wonderfully of late, and while all their selections were good, the "Fireman's Polka," played by request the first night and repeated by special request the second, was what "brought down the house."

The Hall was tastefully decorated with evergreen and bunting, under the superintendence of Mr. Wm. B. Rand.

Mr. W. S. Hadley, who has for some time past been supplying the pulpit of the church in Newington, has accepted an invitation to preach for the Congregational society here for one year, and will commence his labors the first Sunday in January.

The Christian society will give an entertainment at the Town Hall on Thursday evening, Dec. 27th, for which they have been making preparations for some weeks past. NAT.

Portsmouth Chronicle

—Even an epitaph may by some unforseen accident tell the truth. The old French saying, "to lie like a funeral sermon," is not always applicable. Near Paris a headstone, with this inscription, startles the visitor: "Here repose in peace, after forty years of married life, Pierre Bigot and his wife."

—At the great meeting held in Cooper Institute in October last to sustain the administration of President Hayes, at which it had been announced that Mr. Evarts would be present, a gentleman from Vermont who had never seen the Secretary of State, but had a desire to do so, said to the person seated next to him, "Is Mr. E-varts on the platform?" "No; he has not yet arrived." "He's expected?" "Oh, yes; he'll be along presently." "I've never seen Mr. E-varts, though I've heard a good deal of him. He's got a farm up to Windsor in our State." "Well, when he comes in I'll tell you. The boys generally give him a cheer when he comes on the stage. Ah, there he comes!" "Is that him?" "Yes." "William M. E-varts?" "Certainly." "Well, I declare!" exclaimed the Vermonter. "Why, he looks as though he boarded."—Harper's Magazine.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

For the Whiskers.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur

Liniments.

They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.

The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate lameness and cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

J. B. ROSE & CO., 46 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey

To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castorir is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.

COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.

Messrs. J. B. ROSE & Co., N. Y.

I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.

Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S

STANDARD

REMEDIES

Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.

NATURAL SELECTION.

Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery

Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.

Golden Medical Discovery

Is Pectoral.

Golden Medical Discovery

Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.

Golden Medical Discovery

Is Tonic.

Golden Medical Discovery

By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness, Tropid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.

Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or when the blood is full of noxious swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy foreboding, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or Biliousness, In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Dr. Pierce's

Pleasant

Purgative

Pellets.

Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.

The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Medicine in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the nauseous, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.

As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness and Fullness after Meals, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Bloody-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either or them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thin brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharges have been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I don't know what I should have done if it had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else long enough; I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 13, 1876.

A Curious Lawsuit.

The verdict in the Rhode Island Hospital suit for $15,000, instituted by John Galvin against that corporation, and which was given in favor of the defendants, excites much sympathy for the plaintiff. Galvin had one of his hands lacerated by a circular saw. He was sent to the hospital, where the fingers of the hand were amputated. The operation was very unskilfully done, and a severe hemorrhage ensued. A tourniquet was applied to the arm, and kept there seventeen hours. The result was that mortification of the arm took place, and, to save his life, amputation had to be made at the shoulder. The case was tried in a lower court and damages awarded amounting to $10,000. The case then went to the Supreme Court, where the Judge charged the jury that, as the hospital was a charitable institution, they could not be held liable for damages occurring in such cases as this. The jury accordingly returned a verdict for the corporation. The case will be carried to a higher courtion exceptions, and when the facts as above related are made known there is little doubt but what the plaintiff will win his suit.

Mysterious Disappearance.

A case of mysterious disappearance comes from the southern seas. The account is given by a Chilian newspaper: About 150 miles from the Straits of Magellen, the Danish ship Lutterfield, J. O. Lugineers master, saw, during the night, a rock or island apparently about one hundred feet high. He lay to till daylight, not finding any rock or island laid down in the charts. At 5:40 A. M. what in the night appeared a large rock or island, had diminished to one-half of its former dimensions. Captain Lugineers, with the mate and four hands went on shore. The island had the figure of a cone with an extension of 100 to 150 square yards; the ground was so hot that the men could not remain on it, but returned immediately into the boat. No smoke was seen, but the sea around was in a state of ebulition. At 8 A. M. of the same day, the island had entirely disappeared, and the Lutterfield sailed over the site thereof.

Norfolk and Baltimore Oyster Trade.

Fully 700,000 gallons of oysters will be shipped from Norfolk the present season. In Baltimore there are 25 packing houses, employing each from 50 to 450 hands, and handling 3,000,000 bushels of raw and 15,000,000 of canned oysters each season. Besides there are 50 steaming houses, where 25,000,000 cans are prepared each season by 7000 men. Nearly 2000 men are engaged in making cans. Oyster shuckers make on an average $1.25 per day, but some experts make as much as $5. A bushel of oysters in the shell will make 10 cans, and one firm have shucked and canned as many as 7500 bushels in a day.

—"Moody and Sankey," says the Paris Gaulois, "are the founders of a new religion which enjoys a certain vogue in the United States. Moody tells stories by way of sermon and his partner sings songs. In the United States that is called a religion. In Paris we should simply call it a concert saloon."

—The coldest storm wave of the season was experienced by a young man from Syracuse, who escorted an East Rome girl home Sunday night, and was detected by her father just as he was putting his moustache where it would do the most good.—Rome Sentinel.

—A story is told of a Hartford insurance man, who some years ago, soon after his marriage, went to a country town in Maine with another adjuster, to settle a loss. Arriving at the tavern at a late hour at night, they were given a room with a forty-pound feather bed therein, which, from its temperature, had evidently been recently under the influence of some human warming pan; in fact, as it appeared, the room had been occupied up to the midnight arrival of the adjusters by the landlord's daughter, who, in her hurried departure to make room for these distinguished arrivals, left her chemise hanging upon the bedpost. The newly-married Hartford underwriter, in unpacking his valise after his return home, in the presence of his affectionate bride, turned out among its other contents, to the astonished eyes of himself and bride, the aforesaid chemise, which had been carefully packed away therein by his diabolical companion. It is gratifying to be able to record that, as the honeymoon was yet young, this explanation, with all its lameness, was accepted, and the scalp of the groom saved for future use.

Daily Chronicle.

The Eastern War.

The Russian lines have been pushed forward and Erzeroum is almost invested. The bombardment of the town and consequent interruption of telegraphic service are imminent.

The Servians on Monday, after eight hours' severe fighting, captured Okpalarka, with three Krupp guns and a large quantity of ammunition and provisions. The Turks lost many in killed and some prisoners.

The Russian General Skobeloff, with a division of infantry, two regiments of cavalry and half a brigade of artillery has occupied the town of Trojan, near Trojan Pass.

Turkey having sent several thousand black troops of the Egyptian contingent to Crete, to overawe the insurgents in that island, Greece is becoming very uneasy and a declaration of war against Turkey is considered probable.

News and Notes.

A Mrs. Hatfield, a son and daughter aged ten years, and a daughter aged six, were all drowned near Yarmouth, N. S., on Sunday, by the breaking of ice on which they were skating.

Hannah J. Slade, a married woman, shot Michael Doran at Methuen, Mass., Christmas evening, in a drunken row, killing him instantly.

In Brooklyn, Christmas morning, while several boys were shooting at a mark, one of them, named David Sweeney, fourteen years old, playfully pointed an unloaded gun at a companion of the same age, named Thomas Rourke, snapped it, and blew away the greater part of Rourke's head and neck. "Didn't know it was loaded."

The most daring outrage by tramps recently reported occurred in Durham, Conn., Dec. 23d. During the absence of Mr. Henry I. Nettleton and family at church, their house was ransacked, and savings bank books, mortgages, deeds, notes, a watch, a shawl and other things were appropriated. The burglars spread the table and apparently enjoyed at leisure a good dinner. John Hall, a neighbor, returning home in the evening, was assaulted by three tramps, but escaped from them. They were probably the burglars.

The cause of the disastrous explosion in the candy factory in New York is still a mystery, and no theory that has been brought to a test was found plausible, although, if starch will explode, (as has been stated) there was enough of the material to blow up fifty buildings. Starch seems to enter largely into the composition of sugar candy.

After fifteen years of litigation, Cyrus H. McCormick, the reaper man, has secured a judgment against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for $7193 damages and $7934 interest, for loss of personal baggage. The baggage was carried off from Philadelphia in violation of the Company's rule and without the plaintiff's consent, and was burned in a car at Chicago.

Two duels have recently been fought in France, in which one man was killed and three wounded.

Dean Stanley, in a recent sermon at Westminster, said: "All goodness belongs to Christ, regardless of creed or Church. It belongs to no sect, and the true Church knows no Turkey, no Russia." This bold avowal, coming right on the heels of Canon Farrar's public repudiation of the doctrine of eternal punishment, has created great interest in the Church of England.

New Hampshire Items.

Four barns of Shepard H. Cutting, at Newport, together with forty tons of hay and ten cattle, were burned Monday night, Dec. 24th. Loss $1800; insured $1200.

S. W. Wheeler, a man of about sixty-five years, dropped dead from heart disease, in Peterboro', on the morning of Dec. 21st. He was chopping in the woods, and the young man with him heard a groan, looked up, and Wheeler was on his back and unconscious. He leaves a wife and three daughters.

The Norway Plains Savings Bank at Rochester has voted to reduce the rate of interest to depositors to four per cent.

Mrs. Walter Dolber, who is teaching one of the schools in Candia, has four daughters who are also teaching, two in this State and two at the West.

A young man named Daniel Thurston, eighteen years old, living in the family of Charles Whitten in the easterly part of Wolfeboro', was drowned on Saturday night by breaking through the ice in Smith's pond. His body was recovered on Sunday.

Jonas Brooks, a well-to-do farmer of Claremont, left home very mysteriously quite early Sunday morning. No alarm was made for him until night, as he had been in the habit of going off for a day frequently, always returning at night. Vigilant search was made for him Monday, but without effect. It is feared he has committed suicide.

The detectives say that they have evidence which will surely convict George Hamilton, the negro arrested recently in Louisiana for the murder of A. C. Foster at Keene last year, but they will not particularize. It is known, however, that a man who is said to have shared the money taken from the murdered man's person is coming from Louisiana to testify against Hamilton.

The commission appointed by the Governor to revise the militia law have issued a circular and forwarded a copy of it to each commissioned officer in the State, asking for any suggestions or information relative to any desired change, amendments or alterations in the statutes now governing the military that appear to them desirable to be made.

A barn owned by H. B. Atherton, at Nashua, was totally destroyed by fire Christmas evening, together with its contents, including hay and farming tools. Loss about $1000; partially insured. Incendiary.

Political.

Mr. Tilden has one constant friend. His name is Lipscomb, and he has introduced in the South Carolina Senate a concurrent resolution declaring that Mr. Tilden was fairly elected President, and that the effort of Mr. Hayes to dismember the solid democracy of the South is "a gross insult to the members of that great and growing party."

Owen Murphy, one of the most prominent members of the Tammany Hall General Committee, and Treasurer of the New York Board of Excise Commissioners, has absconded with a large sum of the city's money. The amount of this Tammany reformer's stealings is placed at from $30,000 to $150,000. The civil service of the United States will never be thoroughly reformed until Tammany gets full control of it.

This is the objectionable manner in which "Perley" talks: "Jones of Portsmouth and Morse of Boston will explain to the democrats of New England why their only representative among the officers of the House, Walter M. French, was unceremoniously bounced to make a place for Gen. Lamar, sir! of Georgia, sir! An ex-Confederate, sir!"

The reason why the South is solid in favor of any bill leaning toward the repudiation of the national debt, crops out in the Senate debates. Senator Morgan of Alabama, in discussing the Matthews resolution, said of the people of Alabama that the "blood of their sons has been coined into the dollars that are represented into the billions of our national debt." Senator Beck of Kentucky also remarked that the democratic side of the Senate had been filled for the very purpose of repealing the infamous legislation of the last few years, and that nothing can prevent a clean sweep of all the reconstruction measures from the statute book.

If reports do not do him injustice, the new democratic Senator from California will enter the Senate as the attorney of a railroad first, and the representative of the people second. The money and influence of the Central Pacific Railroad elected him; hence he is opposed to the Texas Pacific subsidy because the Central Pacific wants to cover the same ground. He is a free trader, opposed to Chinese immigration, and a hard money man after the Tilden stamp. By profession he is said to be a lawyer with a single client—the railroad aforesaid. He is a Virginian by birth, and has been in California since 1850.—Nashua Telegraph.

Colorado is not inclined to be calm under her share of the Pattersonian infliction. Her newspapers rise up in wrath at the swindle which the "reformers" of the House have perpetrated upon the State, and remark in the terse vocabulary of anger that Patterson is a "wretched shyster," a "political sneak-thief," and a "holder of informal elections." This is ugly language, but the most unabridged of dictionaries does not furnish epithets which better fit the case.

On to Washington! is the cry of the Southern office-seeker of the Bourbon stripe now, and "still they come." Senator Gordon has just secured the appointment of a brother-in-law named Hugh Haralson to an office in the War Department. The "boys in blue" can take back seats.

When we hear in Congress so much about carrying out the obligations of the government, and protecting the public creditors, we are reminded that from every officer who served in the army during the late war between certain periods of time at every pay day from $5 to $20 was kept back, that was clearly his due according to statute law, and which has never since been paid. Justice should come before generosity. How would the howlers about the sanctity of the public credit vote on a bill to pay these just claims?—Milwaukee Commercial Times.

—Of the sixty-nine words which make up the Lord's prayer, only five are not Saxon.

—The latest style in hats is the "Ulster," which flops around a man's ears something as the cost of the same name does around his heels.

—It took fifteen years' time and $1500 to decide the ownership of a yoke of oxen in Oregon, and when the case was settled the contending parties found the oxen had been used for barbecues the first time Grant was elected.

THE CITY.

There was almost a fire at the "Cafe de Carter" on Vaughan street, Christmas day, but it was extinguished without an alarm being given.

Schooner Annie H. Mason brought in 6000 lbs. of fish on Monday, 24th inst., in addition to the fares already reported, making fully 50,000 lbs. of fish landed here that day.

The dance at Mechanics' Hall, Christmas night, was well attended. Prizes for the best dancing were awarded to Miss Belle Holbrook and Mr. John E. Griffin. Another dance will be held at New Year's, when those who exercise on the "light fantastic" will again have a chance to contest for prizes.

At the Hanover street school Saturday, the principal, Mr. Charles E. Buzzell, was presented with an elegant silver butter dish, and a beautiful bouquet and vase; Miss Drake received a silver cake basket and choice bouquet, Miss Foye a silver butter dish and napkin ring, and Miss Young a bouquet-holder and card-receiver.

Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, of this city, were the recipients of a very handsome Christmas present from H. D. Smith and C. F. Poor, of Engine Co. No. 22, of the Boston Fire Dept. It is a large card bearing the photographs of the Fire Commissioners, Chief and Assistant Engineers, steamers, chemical engines, hook and ladder trucks and hose carriages, with their permanent companies; also the fire-boat "Flanders." It is handsomely framed in gilt, and will be well appreciated by the boys; It will be on exhibition at the store of Mercer Goodrich.

On Wednesday Miss Annie J. Guest, daughter of Commodore John Guest, commandant at this naval station, and Lieutenant Charles Seymour, were united in marriage, Rev. Eugene M. O'Callahan, pastor of St. Mary's Church, performing the ceremony. After the nuptials, an elegant reception took place at the residence of the bride's father, at the Navy Yard, which was attended by a very large and distinguished party. The house was superbly decorated, while the display of gifts was large and magnificent. Harlow's orchestra furnished music. The wedded couple left in the afternoon for an extended wedding trip.

The managers of the Portsmouth Reform Club are endeavoring to rally the temperance interest in this city by such means as may suggest itself from time to time, and to this end they have engaged Mr. David Urch to speak on Sunday evening next, in Franklin Hall. Mr. Urch's success in Eliot a few evenings since, together with the fact of his prominence among us as a military man, lead the officers of the Club to the belief that the extra expense of Franklin Hall over that of the usual place of meeting, (Mechanics' Hall) will be warranted. Mr. Urch has many friends among the young men of this city, and no doubt his efforts in the temperance movement will be productive of good.

CHRISTMAS.

On Christmas day religious services were held in the Episcopal, Roman Catholic and Unitarian churches, and there were a number of festivals and Christmas trees during the afternoon and evening, in various places. We give a brief description of the decorations of and services at the three churches named:

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

The Episcopal church was decorated in a style corresponding to the services of that church. The pillars supporting the galleries and roof were entwined and capped with evergreen. The panels of the side galleries were covered with a green fabric, on which were emblems in red letters of the twelfth century English Gothic style: "Everlasting Father," "Prince of Peace," "The Wonderful, the Counsellor," "Mighty God;" the first letters of each word being capitalized, on a gilt background. The front of the choir gallery was also covered with green cloth, with neat monograms. In the centre and over the door of the main aisle were hung wreaths of spruce. Heavy festoons of spruce were extended from the roof to the caps of the pillars supporting the roof, and light ones of evergreen extended from pillar to pillar around the sides and front part of the church. The principal feature was the decorations around the seats of the children's choir, and the chancel. Fronting these were five arches trimmed with spruce, extending across the church to and even with the top of the galleries; over these were placed the following emblems, on a red background, with gilt letters from the British museum of date 1475: "Incarnate by the Holy Ghost," "Born of the Virgin Mary." On the top and in the centre was a cross of spruce. From the roof and in front of the recess were festoons of evergreens extending out to and connected with the top of the arches. The recess was heavily bordered with spruce, and the tablets which are placed in the centre and back of it were covered with crimson and gilt damask paper, bordered with dark blue cloth with diagonal braids of grain, with an outer bordering of green. The arch extending over the centre tablet had corresponding trimmings, and within it the word "Emmanuel." Under the tablets and over the communion table, on which were placed two elegant bouquets of calla lilies, was a decoration of gilt and black, on which was inscribed "Holy, holy, holy." A star of spruce was placed in the eastern corner of the church, and the effect of the whole was appropriate and attractive.

The following was the order of morning service, the children's choir being assisted by Mrs. Bennett, Miss Seeley, Miss Swasey, Misses Lowd, and Messrs. Ilsley, Butler and Wilmot:

Processional; "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing;" Howard.
Venite; Turner, in F.
Te Deum; Smart, in F.
Benedictus; Ouseley, in D.
Anthem; "St. John's Carol;" words by Harriet McEwen Kimball, music by E. A. Tilton.
Hymn; 31st hymn.
Kyrie; Smart, in F.
Gloria Tibi; Tilton.
Hymn; Hark, what mean those holy voices?"
Offertory.
Sanctus; Beethoven.
Hymn; "O, come, all ye faithful."
Gloria in Excelsis; Smart, in E.
Sentence; Nunc Dimittis; Barnby.

UNITARIAN CHURCH.

The decoration at the Unitarian church, though not as voluminous in quantities of spruce as in former years was in equally good taste, and very effective. The windows were latticed with evergreen, with wreaths of spruce suspended from the tops or bows. The gas fixtures were dressed with green in festoons and wreaths, as was also the front of the gallery; at the caps at the corners of the recess in the gallery were garlands of spruce; the pillars supporting the gallery were entwined with evergreen, and capped with wreaths of the same. The Communion table, altar and font were gracefully trimmed with green, intermingled with the red fruit of the Celastrus Scandens. On the table were crosses and other designs, of green and immortelles, and on the font was a superb calla lily. Between these and the organ, and extending to either side of the chancel, was a triple arch, on which were the following emblems: "Jesus, a man approved of God;" "Never man spake as this man;" "Leaving us an example." From the centre arch (which was raised above the others) was suspended a bell made of spruce. The tablets were bordered with green, and the caps of the doors underneath were festooned and wreathed. On the front of the dais were placed designs of crosses, etc.; and the star in the east was one of the features. The services at the South Parish were as follows:

Invocation.
Anthem; "And there were shepherds abiding in the field."
Scripture Lessons.
Prayer.
Hymn; "Calm on the listening ear of night."
Sermon; Texts,—Acts II., 33, and John XV., 8;—Subject—"The Influence of Greek Mythology upon the True Idea of the Life of Jesus."
Prayer.
Hymn; "Watchman, tell us of the night."
Benediction.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

The Christmas decoration of the Catholic church was confined almost exclusively to the sanctuary and altar. The evergreen which was entwined and festooned among the many niches, ornaments and figures of the altar appeared to the eye on entering the church like lace work of variegated colors. Monograms, crosses, triangles and plants were freely interspersed and added materially to the general effect. In the sanctuary and on either side of the high altar were trees represented as in bloom with flowers. A very interesting feature was the representation of the birth of Christ. On the east side of the sanctuary and in the place of the altar of the Virgin Mary was the stable. In the interior was seen the infant boy in a bed of straw, with the figures of Joseph and Mary on the sides; and in the background were the faces (in life size) of the ass and ox. The entrance was guarded by figures of angels, and over the entrance in jets of gas was the star of Bethlehem. On the altar was also the name of Jesus, in gas jets; and this, together with the one hundred and fifty candles which were burning in close proximity, presented a very beautiful effect as heralding the birth of the Saviour. The services began with mass at 6:30 A. M., with instruction in the Church tenets; at 7:30 was held the sacrament service. At 10:30 high mass was performed, at which was sung for the first time in this city Payne's mass in D.; this mass has merit, and was satisfactorily rendered by the choir. The sermon by the pastor, Rev. Mr. O'Callaghan, was on the nature and mission of Christ, and was attentively listened to by his numerous congregation.

At the old ladies' home, on Deer street, services were held at 7:30 P. M., at which short addresses were given by friends of the home. There are at present ten inmates, nine of whom hung their stockings up on Christmas eve, and all found them filled next morning. The evening's entertainment consisted of a Christmas tree, on which were presents for the old ladies, and the children who assisted by giving recitations, and the singing of Christmas carols. The affair was a source of enjoyment, and a novelty, to the old ladies, some of whom never had been present at a Christmas festival before.

At the Mission school at the Creek, in the afternoon, there were recitations and singing, and a Christmas tree. The number of scholars in this school is forty.

The Christmas festival of the Unitarian Sunday school, at Franklin Hall, in the evening, was largely attended, and greatly enjoyed by all present. The services consisted of a prayer by the pastor of the church, singing by the choir, and a short address to the children by Rev. Mr. DeNormandie, giving them an idea of Christmas in the olden time in England and Scotland. The solo in the Christmas piece, by Mr. Chase, was very finely sung. Then came the dance around the May-pole by a dozen beautiful young children,—a most enjoyable feature; afterwards charades; and then the representation of the Christmas gambol, by six young ladies of the parish, who rendered their parts very accurately and shew an adaptation to the characters represented. Indeed, the piece throughout was admirably given, two of the young ladies having the benefit of the experience derived from former appearances, while the debutantes acquitted themselves to the great satisfaction of the audience. The lighting up the Christmas tree and the distribution of gifts, the hearty appreciation of the refreshments by the children and the pleasant, sociable way in which the evening was passed, were remarked by every one. Many were in attendance from other parishes. The whole affair was a pronounced success.

The Christmas festival of the North church, which was held at the vestry, was a very happy affair. Recitations by the children of the Sunday school, and singing by the choir (which was very fine), with the final end of an oyster supper, was an entertainment which will be remembered by those who participated. There were two large Christmas trees filled with presents, which were distributed to the children. The scholars at this Sunday school number one hundred and ninety-seven.

At the Universalist church there were three Christmas trees, handsomely decorated and loaded with presents for the children. There were some recitations and some very good singing, and the evening was pleasantly passed by those present. The number of scholars in this Sunday school is one hundred and fifty. Rev. E. M. Grant, the pastor, and his wife, were generously remembered by the society.

The Court street Christian Sunday School held their annual Christmas festival at the Chapel on Court streett Christmas night. There were two trees finely decorated and well loaded with a great variety of beautiful presents; and besides these, twice as many more which could not well be arranged on the trees were handsomely displayed on tables, so that the whole array was one of great variety and beauty. The exercises were singing by the school, followed by prayer and singing, then a recitation by Master W. Irving Laighton, entitled "Annie and Willie's Prayer." Soon after this, "Santa Claus" made his appearance and after a few words to the audience began to distribute the numerous gifts. During the evening a second recitation was given by Master Charles Magraw; followed by a liberal collection for the benefit of the school, after which the remainder of the presents were handed out by Santa. Many of the presents were very fine. All were satisfied that they had passed a very pleasant evening. This school is in a very prosperous condition, numbering about 220, with Charles E. Buzzell, Superintendent.

A SINGLE-HANDED "DUET."

RYE, Dec. 25th.

Mr. Editor: In the Rye letter printed in to-day's CHRONICLE there appears this impossible transaction: "Duets by Miss Leona P. Brown." Impossible is the word, sure, for in the first place there is no record to warrant anybody in asserting that any one lady ever did sing a "duet" alone; and in the next place, no such person as Leona P. Brown lives in this town. What was intended to appear was this: "Duets by Miss Leona Drake and Miss Abbie P. Brown"—but either through the poor manuscript or the fault of the compositor, it seems to have got slightly mixed up.

Yours truly, NAT.

Portsmouth Chronicle

—A Chinese inventor recently made a small fan wheel, to be placed in the hat, to keep the head cool in warm weather. He set it going in his own hat, and the first thing he knew his hair was wound up in the machinery. The spring was very stiff, and before he could release himself a part of his hair was pulled out by the roots.

—A school teacher in Lafayette, Ind., punishes saucy children by placing her fingers in the corners of their mouths and stretching them until they howl with pain. She will get hold of a redheaded boy, some of these days, with double-jointed teeth, and then the school will howl with applause while she executes a lightning jig on one foot.

—A three-year old lad in Orange, N. J., has been listening to stories from the Comic History of Rome, and thumbing John Leech's charming illustration of grim Cornelia, her fashionable guest, and the two promising boys with drum, slate and nurse-girl. The story left an impress on the boy's mind, for the other morning he ran into the breakfast room with his little black kitten held at arm's length, and exclaimed; "This is my jewel, you naugety, dirty old lady, with rings on!" His mamma, who has a big diamond, was taken aback.

—At a fire in the convent at Limoges, France, on Nov. 19th, 1838, it was suddenly discovered that one of the children of the girls' school there had not been rescued. She was in a distant room, and doubts were expressed of the ability to save her. A young lady said, "I will try," and rushed between the flames on each side of the entrance. She was regarded as lost, but finally appeared with the child in her arms. King Louis Philippe sent her a gold medal, and a young captain in the army, who witnessed her act, married her. The captain is now president of the French republic, and the lady is Mme. MacMahon.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.
This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

Centaur Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling on crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the three Continents.

Honey
To the taste but death to Grubs and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & Co., N. Y.
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it to physicians as an excellent medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior article cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or Kings' Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness, Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness," In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

P.P.P.P.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.
The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.
As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Bad Breath in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore-Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed preematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfumes, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD, Short-Hand Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I don't know what I should have done if it had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my sense of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 15, 1876.

Forty Years Ago.

Mr. W. E. Gould, cashier of the First National bank, recently obtained a copy of a rare placard, printed in Boston, without date, as follows:

THOMPSON, THE ABOLITIONIST.

That infamous foreign scoundrel, THOMPSON, will hold forth this afternoon at the Liberator office, No. 48 Washington street. The present is a fair opportunity for the friends of the Union to snake Thompson out! It will be a contest between the abolitionists and the friends of the Union. A purse of $100 has been raised by a number of patriotic citizens to reward the individual who shall first lay violent hands on Thompson, so that he may be brought to the tar-kettle before dark. Friends of the Union be vigilant.

BOSTON, Wednesday, 12 o'clock.

Mr. Gould sent a copy of this document to Mr. Garrison, enquiring about its history, and received the following reply:

BOSTON, Dec. 8, 1877.

On the 21st of October, 1835, the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society attempted to hold its annual meeting. At that time, George Thompson, the eloquent and successful advocate of British West India Emancipation, was laboring here with the abolitionists, and by their invitation, to effect a similar deliverance for the Southern slave population. To intensify the popular pro-slavery spirit against him, he was falsely and maliciously branded by the press as a British emissary who had been sent here by the British Government, with his pockets lined with British gold, "for the purpose of overthrowing our glorious Union," etc., etc. It was deemed prudent by the ladies, for his own personal safety, that he should not attend the meeting aforesaid. Nevertheless, it was rumored that he was to be present, and this led to the issuing of the mob-exciting placard which you have copied in your letter, and about which you express a wish to be further informed. That placard was written by James L. Homer, editor of the Boston Gazette, and printed in his office, and distributed throughout the city. The result was the gathering of a mob of five thousand persons, the breaking up of the ladies' meeting, my ruffianly seizure, and being dragged through the streets, finally rescued by the city constabulary, and my incarceration in Leverett street jail, to save my life.

Yours truly,

WM. LLOYD GARRISON.

The placard and the letter have been mounted and framed, and are now displayed at the bank, where they attract much notice. It is difficult to realize that this extraordinary document was published in the capital city of New England within the memory of men now living.—Portland Advertiser.

Wants of the Ages.

It is a man's destiny still to long for something, and the gratification of one set of wishes but prepares the unsatisfied soul for the conception of another.

The child of a year wants little but food and sleep, and no sooner is he supplied with a sufficient allowance of either of those excellent things, than he be, gins whimpering, or yelling it may be, for the other. At three, the young urchin becomes enamored of sugar-plums, apple pies and confectionery. At six his imagination runs upon kites, marbles and play-time. At ten the boy wants to leave school and go bird-nesting and blackberry hunting. At fifteen he wants a beard, a watch, and a pair of Wellington boots. At twenty he wishes to cut a figure and ride horses; sometimes his thirst for display breaks out in dandyism, and sometimes in poetry; he wants sadly to be in love and takes it for granted all the ladies are dying for him.

The young man at twenty-five wants a wife. At thirty he longs to be a single man again. From thirty to forty he wants to be rich and thinks more of making money than of spending it. At fifty he wants excellent dinners and capital wine, and a nap in the afternoon.

The respectable old gentleman of sixty wants to retire from business with a snug independence of three or four hundred thousand, to marry his three daughters, set up his sons, and live in the country; and then for the rest of his life he wants to be young again.—Portfolio.

Steamer Panther, at Newburyport from Philadelphia, reports on Saturday, Dec. 22d, off Abscecom, picked up ten bales of partially burned cotton; also a ship's topmast.

—Four English girls, sisters, who live in Detroit, have illustrated what woman can do if she has a chance. They came to this country about seven years ago and went to work in different families. They attended strictly to business, saved money, kept at home nights, knew nothing of beaux or fineries in dress, and, a few weeks ago, "pooled" their earnings, bought a lot and had a house built upon it, and now live together in comfort, going out to work on week days and returning to their own house to spend their evenings and Sabbaths.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1877.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 24th.

Veni, vidi vici, exclaimed Joe Jefferson as he was whirled away from the Capital, yesterday; at least, if he didn't, he could quite as appropriately have made the remark relative to his engagement at the National Theatre during the past week, as old Cæsar is reputed to have said concerning one of his away back beyond mediæval time, Jefferson appearing in comedy, the other in tragedy. No living actor can probably "draw" such audiences of Washington theatre goers as can this same Jefferson. Whether the times are "hard" or otherwise, and no matter what the other attractions, he never fails of a house crammed from pit to dome. Last Monday he came here for the first time in several years. "Rip Van Winkle" ran from Monday to Thursday night, inclusive. Friday evening he appeared in his other specialty, Bob Acres, in "The Rivals;" at the matinee Saturday as Rip again, closing the week's engagement Saturday night with another appearance as Bob Acres. The constancy with which the same parties return night after night to witness the same play is remarkable. Many among the staid old residents of Washington who regard attendance at the theatre as inconsistent with their religious convictions and professions, and have renounced such amusements, hurry out to greet Jefferson with the same enthusiasm as is manifested by the younger or less scrupulous patrons of the drama; and the announcement "standing room only" was posted almost every night of the engagement a half-hour after the doors were opened.

L. J. Draper, of Washington, was commissioned as Assistant Surgeon to the Navy during the war. While on the "Princeton" at Philadelphia in Dec., 1864, he secured a forty-eight hours' leave of absence with permission to take with him one Menenzies, a prisoner confined on the "Princeton," and becoming responsible for his return. Menenzies was a blockade runner, had been an officer in the Confederate Navy, and was, presumably, a personal friend of Draper. They went direct to Baltimore, where an ovation was tendered Menenzies at his sister's house by secession sympathizers, Draper participating. The jollification was alleged to have been exceedingly boisterous, and so offensive to Unionists as to have nearly provoked a riot. The whole party was arrested, including Draper, who was informed, Feb. 2, 1865, by Secretary Welles, that his commission was revoked. Draper wrote requesting that he be allowed to resign; his wishes were complied with, his letter being treated as a formal resignation, and the Secretary informing him that it had been accepted. Draper tried to get reinstated, but Secretary Robeson declined to interfere; but he has been more successful with the present Secretary, who decides that he has never been legally out of the service, and, it is reported, has ordered his name restored to the Navy Register. As this decision carries with it pay and allowances—about $25,000—for the thirteen years that he has been practicing medicine here, rendering no service whatever to the Government, the case is exciting a good deal of adverse criticism in naval and political circles.

The case of the Union Pacific R. R., has come to strike many reflecting people as very remarkable,—that a creature of Congress can go on year after year defying the power that called it into existence, in open violation of its charter, and in virtually refusing compliance with its promises as to the repayment to the Government of the money loaned it to aid its construction. Away back in the extra session the President was requested by both Houses to inform them what impediments existed to enforcing the original contract with the road. The Attorney General appears a long while in framing an answer. The interests of the Kansas Pacific and other roads, as branches, are indirectly involved, as are also the relations of the Government, to a greater or less extent, to the great railway system of the country; and notwithstanding the fact that every influence is being brought to bear likely to aid these gigantic monopolies in defeating the Government's efforts to establish its supremacy in the premises and to force them to a rigid accountability in all time to come, in no previous Congress has there been manifested such a general hostility to their designs and such a determined spirit to establish the metes and bounds beyond which they may not go hereafter. Every blandishment, every temporizing expedient will undoubtedly be resorted to by the formidable array of lawyers here working to defer the blow, which, when given, will render them thereafter always amenable to law. The proposition that the Government accept some million acres of worthless land at a valuation that would be ridiculous even were the land of average worth, to satisfy the Government claims, will be cunningly and persistently urged; but forbearance has apparently been stretched to its utmost limit in behalf of these swindles, and the day of reckoning hastens apace. EXON.

Political.

Says the Boston Post: "Advices from abroad hint that the effect of the agitation of the silver question, even if the bill is defeated, is likely to affect future investments in United States securities, because showing the tendency of Congress to financial heresies and bad faith. This is only what must be expected, When it is seriously proposed by such as Gen. Butler to scale down the bonds eight per cent. on their face value, there is no security against a scaling of double that amount the next time, or even a total repudiation. Under such circumstances there can be no immediate hunger for United States four per cents. abroad." The Post, like the New York World, is manfully fighting the battle of national honesty against the great mass of its party friends and the overwhelming majority of its party leaders; and so long as it stands up squarely for the right we suppose its rap at Gen. Butler—as though he was alone in advocating a national swindle, instead of being in unison with nine-tenths of the prominent democrats—is hardly worth mentioning.

The New Era says that "all contracts payable in coin previous to 1873 were payable in silver," the fact being that our silver dollars were then worth three per cent. more than gold, and had not been in circulation for twenty years. The bonds were sold for gold. The customs duties were paid in gold. The standard of values was gold, and there was no other known in practice. Nobody even thought of silver, and nobody would have thought of silver, if that metal had not since declined to ten per cent. below par. All the tall writing in the world will not disguise the fact, that borrowing gold and paying silver worth ten per cent. less is a swindle, like an attempt to pay in clipped coin, which would send a private debtor to the penitentiary.

The democrats are becoming much exercised at the prospect of the thorough investigation of South Carolina matters in the Senate and the transactions at home bearing upon those matters. Senator Patterson expects to leave for Pennsylvania for a long absence as soon as he can travel, and if the republicans show signs of pursuing him, by investigation, his friends say he will refuse to pair and so leave the republicans in the minority, provided Conover sticks by Butler, as it is expected he will. All the indications now show that this question will become a very exciting one before the Senate settles it.

Congressman Brentano of Chicago has the bitterness of soul to say that the only difference between ancient and modern civil service methods is that while formerly the patronage was bestowed upon the friends of the President and of the Senators and Representatives, now it is all bestowed upon the friends of the President alone.—Tribune.

A candid democratic member of Congress says there will never be anything accomplished in the present House, as the democrats have no leader. Every man thinks he is the smartest fellow in creation, and all want to lead.

Some South Carolina democrats say frankly that if Senator Patterson desires the prosecution against him stopped, and the alleged offences condoned, he must resign his seat in the Senate so that a democrat can be returned in his place. If he will do this, the legislature and State authorities will relieve him from any further anxiety on account of the pending charges and indictments.

A New York democrat, after passing an evening at the White House, remarked: "If Mrs. Hayes was President this would be the most popular administration of modern times; but I am afraid her husband, by his obstinate course, will make trouble."

Raymond.

Pine Grove Cemetry, near the village, has now a large number of graves, and the number of lots, well fitted up and adorned with flowers, is considerable. Monuments seemed next in order, and a good commencement has been made. John Healey, Esq., had the first erected. It is of Kennebunk granite, which was brought to town and worked by Mr. George A. Towle of Portsmouth. It is fifteen feet high, and its different parts are well proportioned; it stands in a lot sufficiently retired from the street, among pines of natural growth, and makes an appearance well suited to its object, the marking of the hallowed place where loved ones repose in their last sleep amidst the beauties and sublimities of nature. F. J.

The Eastern War.

The condition of the wounded Turks in Plevna, when the Russians captured that place, is sickening in its horror, and for the sake of humanity it is to be hoped the accounts are false. Dead and dying were heaped together, uncared for, the wounded dying of gangrene, hunger and thirst, and the famished dogs of the city devouring the dead. The Russian prisoners taken during the early part of the seige were mercifully butchered, but those captured after the fall of the city became a certainty were spared,—how they were treated is thus stated: "Eighteen hundred prisoners were huddled together on the banks of the Vid, and the horrors of their position equalled those of the plague. Living and dead were piled together promiscuously in heaps like wood, and carried away. There were only three carts available for this work, and the confusion was indescribable. Osman's bravery is stained and blackened by his treatment of the Russian wounded that fell into his hands. His gallant defence of Plevna for a moment blinded the victors and Europe to the fact that prisoners were butchered by troops under Osman's command."

The Servians have occupied Leskovats and Kurshumlje and captured a quantity of cattle and provisions. A despatch from Alexinatz reports that 30,000 Servians, with 120 guns, are investing Nisch. The Servians, by their dash and success thus far since they declared war, have done much to redeem their reputation for bravery, which suffered so severely in their last war with Turkey.

A Russian official despatch, dated Bogot, states that the Turkish prisoners from Plevna are dying of cold, and that it is impossible to afford them any relief.

The condition of Mrs. Charles A. Bennett, shot at Newmarket Junction by the tramp, Richard Ryan, some three weeks since, is by no means settled, as erysipelas, with its attendant inflammation, having set in, renders her condition more precarious. At a recent interview with Ryan at the jail at Exeter, he declared his innocence and denied all complicity with the affair. He maintains the same stolid indifference as when arrested, conducts himself in a most exemplary manner, spends most of his time in reading and anxiously awaits his trial, when he expects to prove his innocence. He is confined in the cell formerly occupied by Evans, the Northwood murderer, and is continually watched by Jailer Odlin.

At a meeting of amateur authors, editors, publishers and printers of the State, held at Nashua, Wednesday, an association was formed, to be known as the Granite State Amateur Press Association. A monthly paper is to be published by them and edited by C. S. Campbell.

The Congregational Society at Boscawen Plain recently held a festival that was brought about in a most singular way. A few weeks since Geo. Knowles discovered a swarm of bees inside the finish under the eaves of the church. The construction of the building at that point was such that the bees were enabled to form a box hive about four feet long and eight or ten inches square, and which was nearly filled with honeycomb. Sixty-nine pounds of honey were found, and the Society decided to make it a source of profit though a festival which, for a moderate admittance fee, gave all who attended a nice supper and plenty of honey. It is unnecessary to add that a levee prompted by such a singular circumstance called out a large attendance and very generous receipts. At the formal exercises Gen. E. G. Wood presided, and an address was made by ex-Mayor Kimball of Concord. Mr. Knowles thinks that the bees were from his apiary, as he lost a swarm a while ago, which flew in the direction of the church.

The Trustees of the State Normal School at Plymouth have just completed a substantial brick addition to their main school building, the lower story to be devoted to library and dressing-rooms, and the upper story for the extensive cabinet of minerals donated to the institution by the State, although the legislature made no specific appropriation for this object. Very little, if any, debt will reach to the State by its necessary erection, as the Board of Trustees have, by judicious management, saved almost its entire cost from the general appropriation for running expenses of the institution during the past two or three years. Col. Charles W. Pickering of Greenland is Chairman of the Finance and Building Committee of the Board of Trustees.

News and Notes.

Mayor Borden of New Bedford was married in Washington on Christmas Day to Miss May Kent of that city, a niece of Gov. Kent of Maine.

Mrs. Gen. Custer is living in New York on the small pension she receives from the Government and her salary as Secretary of the Ladies' Art Association. Mrs. Chisolm, widow of Judge Chisolm, who was murdered in Mississippi, has been appointed to a clerkship in the Treasury Department. Miss Kate Field is now a regular contributor to the London Times.

Ida Bliss, twenty-three years old, and her sister Nellie, aged seventeen, have been missing from their home in Fairlee, Vt., since nine o'clock on the evening of Dec. 21st, when they went out, ostensibly for a few moments, wearing no extra clothing except their hats. A note in their bedroom bade their mother good-bye; and from other circumstances it is believed the two young fools committed a "sentimental" suicide by drowning themselves in the Connecticut river, which runs near their home.

A queer story comes from Europe, to the effect that Germany has gained complete control over the king and army of Belgium, and that instead of being under the domination of England it is in reality not much more than a German province. If this is true it will be more likely to draw England into a continental war than all the Russian victories on the Danube.

James Gordon Bennett is reported to be engaged to a handsome young French countess residing in Paris.

Charges against Colonel Blunt, United States Army Engineer, were made some weeks ago in connection with the works he is conducting at Buffalo harbor and other places along Lake Erie. Blunt has a number of friends in the service. He is one of the oldest officers in the corps, and every effort has been made to save him. Strenuous attempts were made to shift the blame for the questionable transactions discovered on one of his subordinates. A friendly officer was sent to make examination, but he found matters past cure and the proof overwhelming, and reported accordingly. One more effort in Blunt's favor was made by sending a board of inquiry. Its report was received Monday, and is so damaging that McCrary has ordered a court martial, and placed Blunt under arrest.

Edward Trickett, of Sydney, Australia, has accepted Courtney's challenge to row a single scull race of three straight miles for $10,000 and the championship of the world, on any neutral water. When Courtney puts up £250 forfeit with the New York Clipper, Trickett will leave immediately for the United States to row the match.

Captain A. H. Bogardus will try to break 5,000 glass balls in 500 consecutive minutes, in Gilmore's Garden, New York, on the third of January.

Rear Admiral Worden has completely recovered his sight, which was badly damaged in the fight between the little Monitor and the Merrimac, in 1862.

The Ohio Supreme Court has just rendered a decision which affects an act of President Hayes when Governor. A murderess was sentenced to be hanged, but he commuted the sentence to imprisonment for life. She objected, and said that she preferred hanging. The day of execution went by, and strong petitions were put in for her pardon on the ground that she had never accepted the commutation, and that, the day appointed having gone by, the power of the Governor to order her execution had expired. The case was taken to the Supreme Court, which has decided that the consent of the criminal is not a necessary requisite for commutation.

Rev. Dr. Justin Fulton, whilom minister at Tremont Temple, has found out the cause of the tramp nuisance. It is because there are women clerks behind counters, women in our shops, in our offices and factories. "These women are keeping the men out of their places." Poor men! Now we know why the tramp is such an enemy to women. It is not because he is strong and they are weak that he insults, maltreats and murders them more frequently than men; it is because they are keeping him out of his place. By all means discharge the young ladies who are supporting themselves and perhaps widowed mothers and younger brothers and sisters, and put the tramps in their places; but perhaps in future it would be better to make a sure thing of it by strangling a percentage of female infants at birth, after the old Chinese custom.—Boston Post.

An advance copy of the army register, which will be issued January 1, 1878, gives the total number of officers of all grades at 2286, which, according to General Sherman's recent statement before the house military committee, would give one officer to about every eight enlisted men. The pay of the officers aggregates more than that of the men. During the past year sixteen officers resigned, thirty-two died, of whom twelve were killed by Indians, twelve were dismissed, one was cashiered, and one dropped for desertion.

By an incendiary fire in Central City, Col., Dec. 26th, a Mrs. Terrill and two sons, and Robert Jaffrey, were burned to death. At Rondout, N. J., on the same day, a Mrs. Brophy and her daughter were burned in a tenement house, the conflagration being caused by the explosion of a lamp filled with cheap kerosene. At Leeds, Me., on the same day, Harriet Foss, an insane woman, was burned in the house of Eben Stenchfield.

—A gentleman reprimanding his little son, was surprised to hear the youngster observe: "Father, remarks are unnecessary."

New Rochelle, N. Y., presents the anomaly of a Roman Catholic clergyman who protests against the abolition of religious exercises from the public schools, and even goes so far as to ask for the retention of the Protestant Bible, to the exclusion of the Catholic version, rather than the banishing of the sacred volume altogether.

THE CITY.

See notice of auction sale of damaged furniture at National House to-day, by H. F. Wendell.

Mr. Charles H. Rowe of this city, whose leg was so badly broken recently by the falling of a rearing horse upon it, is doing well.

On Wednesday evening Mr. John W. Caswell, of the firm of Randall and Caswell, in receiving fish from a vessel slipped and fell from the wharf into the water. Messrs. Edward Watkins and Ira E. Randall assisted Mr. Caswell in his wrestling to reach terra firma, and he scrabbled out with no other harm than a very cold bath.

Grand Chancellor William O. Sides, of the Order of the Knights of Pythias, together with officers of the Grand Lodge of this State, on Wednesday evening dedicated the new Pythian Hall of Prospect Lodge, No. 13, of Great Falls. After the dedicatory services there were speeches made, toasts drank, sentiments responded to, and a pleasant interchange of social feeling, at a grand banquet provided by the Lodge alluded to.

The following are the officers for the ensuing year, of Portsmouth Grange: Master, F. W. Miller; Overseer, F. G. Sherburne; Lecturer, Mrs. A. Pearson; Steward, Geo. A. Murray; Asst. Steward, John A. Hodgdon; Chaplain, Mrs. A. A. Fernald; Treasurer, Amos Pearson; Secretary, C. B. Mason; Ceres, Anna S. Cushing; Pomona, Mrs. W. L. Philbrick; Flora, Eliza W. Garrett; Lady Asst. Steward, Mrs. D. H. Spinney; Gatekeeper, John A. Cate. Installation of officers, with harvest feast for members and their families, on Wednesday evening, Jan. 9th, at seven o'clock.

There was an alarm of fire on Thursday evening, but it did not amount to much, nor can we find out just how it started. First there were two or more long blasts of a steam whistle, seemingly on the river; then some one shouted "Fire;" then the bells rang; then the Fire Department turned out; then the Fire Department went back again. That ended it.

P. S. A later report is to the effect that the alarm was occasioned by an explosion of gas at the navy yard. Still another account is that the alarm was due to the fall of a chandelier in the Commandant's quarters, no damage worth mentioning resulting.

LEATHER DEALER CORNERED.

At a few minutes before twelve o'clock, Thursday night, Officers Pray and Beslelievre noticed a man standing in the door-way of Wm. B. Hussey's store on Congress street. Wondering what he was doing there, they proceeded to investigate matters, and found that the man (a young fellow named Robert Horrocks) had been investing heavily in leather when the owner was not around. He had managed to open the shutters of the show window, smashed in a pane of glass, and helped himself to seven pairs of shoes and a pair of boots; and when the officers came upon him he had the lot concealed in the door-way behind him, ready to carry off. The thief and his booty were carefully stowed away in the lockup.

POLICE COURT.

Thursday, Dec. 27th; Batchelder, J.

Florence Hurley and his wife Mary, and Peter Collins, for brawl and tumult (a Christmas eve row) were each fined $2, the costs, taxed at $8.87, being impartially divided among the trio.

Samuel Wilson and his wife Annie, adjudged probably guilty on a complaint of keeping a disorderly house, were bound over $100 each to appear to answer at the April term of the Supreme Court at Exeter.

Samuel Wilson was further charged with stealing a small sum of money from one of the patrons of his establishment. That somebody stole the money was positively sworn to, and Mrs. Wilson thought it so likely that Sam was the thief that she handed over the amount to the victim, or to the police to be given him; but there was nothing more than a case of strong suspicion to warrant holding the accused on this charge, so he was allowed to go.

Olive Austin, who was in some way mixed up with the troubles at the hotel de Wilson, was assessed $9.90—familiar sum—for drunkenness.

AN OLD DOCUMENT.

We were on Thursday shown an interesting document,—the "Town & County Tax List for ye year 1752," as it was delivered to "Mr. Jonathan Hammond, Constable of Kittery," for collection, by Nathl. Remick, John Dennett, Noah Emery, Elihu Gunnison, Wm. Wentworth and Richd. Cutt, Jr., the Selectmen and Assessors of Kittery, Constable Hammond being enjoined "in his Majesties name" to collect from the tax-payers of the town, one hundred and eighteen in number, "the sum of seventeen pounds, seven shillings and eight pence lawfull money," and pay the same over to "Mr. Tobias Fernald, Treasurer of the Town of Kittery." The poll tax that year was one shilling; on real and personal estate three half-pence on the pound; and there was also a tax on "Faculty," whatever that may have been,—we believe it was professional ability. The family names in the book are all to be found in Kittery, Eliot and this city to-day, with the exception of "Devaughn," which is possibly our present "Vaughan." The heaviest tax-payers were: Madame Martha Shapligh, 17*s.* 1*d.*; Capt. John Shapligh, 15*s.* 1*d.*; William Leighton, 8*s.* 6*d.*; John Leighton, 7*s.* 3*d.*; James Fogg, 7*s.* 6*d.*; Solomon Libbey, 6*s.* 6*d.* The ruling of the book was done with pen and ink; the lettering and figuring is very clear and distinct, and the ink as fresh as if written with but a few months ago instead of one hundred and twenty-five years.

THE LYCEUM COURSE.

We are glad to learn that the Woman's Temperance League is to give a series of entertainments,—partly home and partly outside talent, — which most certainly commends itself to patronage. The League do this in order to gain something for helping the families of reformed men, and encouraging those who are in destitute circumstances to take heart and hope for better things. The League is doing a good work. Let us help it by all means. INCHES.

HOTEL CHANGES.

It is stated in the current news of the day that "Messrs. Oscar and Cedric Laighton, owners of Appledore island, the well-known summer resort, have, in conjunction with Christopher E. Rymes of Charlestown, Mass., effected the purchase, within a few days, for the sum of $75,000, of Star island adjoining, owned by John R. Poor of Somerville, Mass. The island was formerly better known as Gosport, whose record extends back to 1731, and is about three-quarters of a mile long and half a mile wide. It is the intention of the new owners to run the Oceanic, on Star island, in connection with the Appledore House, Mr. Rymes probably having the supervision of the latter. The purchase includes all the buildings on the island, together with the historic stone church, built in 1800." We hardly think the genial and popular Kings of Appledore will abdicate their throne to set up a new one on Star island or anywhere else; but, anyway, they will make the Oceanic pay, which is what it is said not to have done under any administration since it was first built. The "Laighton Boys" know exactly how to keep a hotel, and Mr. Poor exactly doesn't know. A western man who some years ago stopped at the Oceanic (the first one, which was burned) for several weeks, and then transferred himself to the Appledore, remarked to us: "All the time I was on the other island I felt that I was there only by sufferance, and that it was only as a great favor that I was allowed to remain there at all; but I badn't been at this house (the Appledore) a day before I felt that the whole concern belonged to me, and that it was only by my courtesy the Laightons were allowed to remain on the island!" And that is about as concise an explanation as can be given why the Appledore has always been crowded before the Oceanic fairly began to receive guests.

The famous hotel-keepers, Job Jenness & Son, well known at Rye Beach and all over the country, have leased the Wentworth House, so finely located at Newcastle, and will conduct the same next season in their usual satisfactory manner, as first-class, having no longer any connection with the Cape Arundel House at Kennebunkport, Me., or other hotel.—Weekly.

"A valuable horse of the writer's was kicked on the hock. Swelling and lameness caused, rendering the animal nearly worthless. The distributions of the Louisiana State Lottery Company occur as regular as clockwork, and the December drawing, under the sole management and supervision of Gens. G. T. Beauregard of La., and Jubal A. Early of Va., as commissioners, was an event that attracted universal attention. The next distribution is on January 8th, an eventful day in New Orleans, and the lucky individual who shall draw the capital prize will think himself as big a man as General Jackson. It only takes two dollars for a share in this glory. See particulars in another column.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.
This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, and desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for the intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.
This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been specially restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.
J. B. ROSE & CO., 46 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey
To the taste but death to Grubs and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & CO., N. Y.
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN F. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria, it is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S STANDARD REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Cholagogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness, Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint," and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

P.P.P.P.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.
The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and as sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.
As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with this loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with others was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,
Short-Hand Writer

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

LATER.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I don't know what I should have done if it had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit the remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

Daily Chronicle.

Turn About is Fair Play.

He was the manager of a church fair, and one morning he walked into the newspaper office and said—

"Want an item this morning?"

"Yes, of course," replied the editor Whereupon the visitor laid the following note upon the table:

"The ladies of the'— Street Church will give a festival at their vestry hall next Friday evening. Literary and musical entertainments will be provided and a supper will be served to all who desire. The ladies in charge of the affair have much experience in such matters and are sure to provide a good time. The admission will be only fifteen cents, and it is certain that no one can spend that amount to a better advantage. Be sure to go and take your friends."

When the editor had read it, he said—

"Oh, I see; an advertisement."

"No; not an advertisement. We prefer to have it go in the local column," replied the manager. And seeing that the editor looked sceptical, he then continued—

"It will interest a great many of your readers, and help a good cause; besides, we have spent so much money getting up our entertainment that we can't afford to advertise it without increasing the price o the tickets. In such a matter as this we ought to be willing to help each other."

"Well," said the editor, "if it goes into the locals, I suppose you would reciprocate by reading a little notice in your church next Sunday."

The visiting brother asked what notice, and the editor wrote and handed him the following:

"The Weekly Chronicle, for the coming year, will be the best and cheapest family paper in Maine. Its proprietor has had much experience, and has all the helps which a large outlay of money can procure. His paper has a larger circulation than any other published in the county, and is to be furnished at only $2. It is certain that no one can spend that amount to a better advantage. Be sure to take the Chronicle, and subscribe for your friends."

The manager hemmed and hesitated, and then said, solemnly, that he doubted whether it would be judicious to read such a notice, but suggested that if it was printed copies of it might be distributed at the door of the vestry on the evening of the entertainment.

"Yes," said the editor, "but it would attract more attention in the middle of a sermon. It will interest a large number of your congregation and help a good cause; and besides, so much money is spent upon the Chronicle that I don't see how the owner can afford to print handbills to advertise it without ingreasing the subscription price. In such a matter as this we ought to be willing to help each other."

Then the gentleman saw the situation.
—Fairfield (Me.) Chronicle.

A Valedictory.

Mr. Robert L. Smiley, for the past two years editor of the Claremont Eagle, has retired from that position, (which he ably filled,) and in announcing the fact talks as follows to the Claremonters:

"When the Eagle came into our hands, its subscription list numbered about seven hundred names; it now numbers fifteen hundred and sixty; and the foreign advertising and general business of the office have increased in a like proportion. These have been gratifying results. But we failed in the one point most essential to the best pecuniary success of a local newspaper. We have been unable to gain, to any considerable extent, the patronage of our home business men; and the party support which is usually accorded to a political journal has been wholly denied to us. When we took possession of the paper most of our business men who were then advertising in its columns withdrew their advertisements, and but very few have ever renewed them. Among all the business men in Claremont we have been able to count upon only one regular advertiser, and upon only three or four occasional ones. We have had to seek our advertising patronage in the neighboring towns and at distant points, entailing an expense that left but little profit. * * * In these particulars, therefore, we have failed to secure that support that was necessary to the larger success for which we hoped. If a local political paper is of any use to a community or to a party it must be paid for by the cordial support of the community and party, or it can not prosper and continue its usefulness. Almost every thing in this world costs what it is worth, and a newspaper is no exception."

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1877.

A Drunken City.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 26th.

During a residence of some years in this city I never personally observed a fractional part of the drunkenness that was prevalent here yesterday. The small boys had been armed and equipped by their elders with toy cannon, guns, pistols, the omnipresent toot-horn, the inevitable fire-cracker, drums, and other regulation instruments for the proper observance of the anniversary day of the Saviour's birth, besides recent inventions in this line, all of them perfect successes in their way. At the risk of being charged with making invidious comparisons where each answered so well the purpose of its construction, I think I may say that the toot-horn continues to hold its high place in the esteem of the boys, against all the newer candidates for popular favor. It appears capable of a greater number of superlatively atrocious sounds than any of the later products of the mechanical ingenuity of this and other countries; hence the relatively high rank accorded it in the programme for the appropriate celebration of such occasions as Christmas, New Year's, Washington's birthday, Decoration Day, Fourth of July, and Thanksgiving. Virtually there is no restriction as to the extent or manner of the use of any or all of those enumerated, on public occasions, and the preliminary formalities were inaugurated about sunset, Monday night, by a grand medley which only ceased with the utter exhaustion of the performers. A few sporadic cases had occurred during the previous week; but the police prohibition operated against any general outbreak until Monday evening, when juvenile enthusiasm could be no longer restrained. The whiskey guzzlers took up the celebration where the boys dropped it. All night long the sounds of drunken revelry went up from hundreds of low groggeries, all over the city; others, nominally doing business as drug stores, each had their circle of patrons, and the more pretentious establishments were crowded the night through. At an early hour in the morning drunken men were plenty, and inebriated women were picked up out of the gutters; boys of sixteen staggered through the streets, under the influence of the liquid poison dealt out to all of every age and sex indiscriminately, so that they had the blood-money wherewithal to pay for their potations. All day long the carts, wagons and wheelbarrows were drawn or pushed through the streets, depositing their loads of men, women and youths at the several station houses, in every state of helplessness, from the slightly inebriated and very hilarious or very quarrelsome, to those who had lost all power of voluntary movement and were in a semi-comatose or wholly unconscious condition. How many attended the special services undertaken by the churches in commemoration of the day, partially under the influence of the egg-nogg or other "genteel" drink furnished by professing Christian householders, to guests on their way to the sanctuary, there is no means of knowing; but that such a shocking profanation is exceedingly liable to occur in a community where a large minority, if not an actual majority, hold that a tender of alcohol in some its forms (where the devil lurking in every drop is rendered "respectable" by the usages of the "best society") is the highest mark of hospitality, no observer of social life here will cease to dispute. No more inviting field for temperance efforts exists in the country than here, by those sincerely believing in prohibition, and that the unrestricted sale of alcoholic stimulants is a giant evil corrupting and contaminating everybody coming within the circle of its malign influence; and how it can be doubted in view of the sickness, suffering, poverty and abject wretchedness, the aimless, hopeless lives of its victims seen here, the broken hearts of those connected by the most sacred ties, and in the light of the knowledge of some of the tenants occupying graves in the Potter's field of this one city, passes comprehension. Oh! for a Maine law or some other competent enactment that would make its sale a crime to be adequately punished, and for a public sentiment that would make its giving away a social misdemeanor of such gravity as to insure us against a repetition of yesterday's scenes to the end of time.

KNOX.

The Huron's Wreck.

Lieut. Walter, Assistant Inspector of the Life Saving Service on the North Carolina coast, makes a report, showing that Evan O'Neill, a fisherman of Nag's Head, saw the Huron at 1:30 A. M., the day of the disaster, on the reef or coming ashore. He heard shouts and screams; saw rockets and signals of distress; watched her; saw the boats gotten out and the vessel finally strike the bar and lay broadside to the sea. An hour after saw the foremast go over and, the boat was lost to sight with the men in her. The shouting and screaming continued, and then all was darkness. Then he went home. After breakfast he proceeded to notify others of the disaster, and returned to the wreck after sunrise. He knew where the keeper of Life Station No. 7 was, two-and-a-half miles away; had a good boat and a free wind to go and return inside of Roanoke Island, and yet for three hours remained silent and indifferent. Lieut. Walter also says of the ninety one bodies found, about twelve of whom were officers, not a single trinket, such as would be deemed a relic by relatives of the dead, was found on the bodies. Watches and chains, money, and even finger rings, had been stripped off by those who first found the bodies as they washed up. Good evidence is found in the case of Lieut. Simons, whose third and fourth fingers of the left hand had been scratched and bruised by the body robbers in their haste to secure their ill-gotten booty.

The Eastern War.

Th bridge across the Danube at Nicopolis has been totally destoyed by ice. The destruction of the bridge at Sistova must follow, unless it is immediately removed. The weather seems to have arrested the Russian onward movement.

Col. E. W. C. Greene, late publisher of the Philadelphia Transcript, died Thursday afternoon, aged forty-nine years. Greene was pension agent at Philadelphia during President Johnson's administration.

A three-master, the Ritchie, is now loading at New Orleans for Boston. She attracts much attention by reason of the beauty of her lines. Well she may, for she is the old revenue cutter, Harriet Lane, that had, nearly twenty years ago, the Prince of Wales on board as a guest, that in 1862 was captured by the Confederates at Galveston, then became a blockade runner, and, finally, being given up by the Spanish authorities in Hanava, was sold and converted into a merchant vessel.—N. Y. World.

The record of the Gloucester fisheries for 1877, shows that seven vessels have been lost during the year, (only one with all her crew,) and the total loss of life has been thirty-seven men. The seven vessels lost aggregated 384.93 tons, of a value of $22,936, on which there was insurance amounting to $19.000. This is the smallest loss in number of vessels since 1868, the smallest in value of property since 1869, and the smallest in number of lives sacrificed since 1866.

In the Superior Court at Northampton, Mass., Thursday, Judge Rockwell rendered a decision refusing to grant the Northampton bank robbers a new trial. Undoubtedly they will be sentenced for life.

Charles E. Johnson, of New York, a young scion of a "first family," is under arrest for attempting to murder his wife by shooting her. Mrs. Johnson had been obliged to leave her husband and with her child returned to her father's house, on account of the husband's cruelty. Mrs. Johnson's sister is a daughter-in-law of Henry Ward Beecher.

A heavy snow storm is reported at Cheyenne, coming eastward. The weather throughout the north west is cooler, threatening snow.

Alexander H. Stephens' committee on weights and measures is going to report a bill making the metric system obligatory in all governmental transactions. Mr. Stephens is positive that the system is going to be adopted, sooner or later, by all civilized nations, and thinks that the United States ought to take it up promptly.

Frank Moulton appeared in a drunk and boisterous condition, at the Dairymen's Convention, at Chicago, last week. He attempted to make a speech, but was obliged to stop. He explained afterward that he had taken too much cholagogue and brandy for a congestive chill. Can this be our mutual friend?

It seems probable that a resolution will be introduced into the House to investigate the restoration of Major Runkle to the army after he had been out of it many years on a severe sentence. If this is established as a precedent which includes back pay, it is admitted that a large number will come forward to be reinstated. The Secretary of War and Judge Advocate-General were against Runkle's restoration, but the President overruled both.

Warning is given that a vigorous assault will be made on the Keene rumsellers as soon as the new city government is inaugurated.

Wm. Melcher, for twenty-five years a paper maker and cotton manufacturer of Springfield, Mass., received a paralytic shock, Thursday, while at Laconia. There is but little hope of recovery.

Mrs. Mary Crockett, the oldest person in Laconia, died suddenly on Wednesday, Dec. 26th, aged ninety-seven years.

Political.

The sensation of the day is the publication by Hon. W. E. Chandler, the New Hampshire member of the Republican National Committee, of an open letter to the republicans of New Hampshire, in which he makes a number of statements concerning alleged bargains made during the electoral count, and their alleged fulfillment by the adoption and pursuance of the President's "Southern policy." Mr. Chandler closes by saying that if the republican party "now disgraces its record and endorses or fails to repudiate the Hayes surrender, its voters will leave it by thousands; its days numbered, it will die a deserved and unhonored death."

The Indiana Republican State Committee has decided to hold a convention June 5th, 1878.

Time's Changes in the Senate

After an interregnum of seventeen years the Senate is now full. There have been great changes since the Senate met in December, 1860. The Government runs on and on, while the grave takes the Governors. To the man familiar with the Senate of that day, the changes death has made in the body that itself never dies, have a melancholy interest. Of those who were then Senators but two are Senators to-day—Hannibal Hamlin of Maine, and Henry B. Anthony of Rhode Island. Notwithstanding the long term of the Senator, who serves for six years, and the tendency to re-elect, of the seventy-six Senators to-day but two were Senators less than three times six years ago. Pitt Fessenden was in the Senate then, grim, keen, commanding, but misanthropic, seeming to have a spite against mankind because of the bitter love accident of his birth that sprang from the nature of mankind. Fessenden is dead. John P. Hale was there, brave, eloquent, witty, able to state his case with unsurpassed force and clearness. Hale is dead. Henry Wilson was there, politic, tireless, ambitious, making more of his native talents than almost any man in our history; and Wilson is dead. Sumner was there, the student of the Senate, the man who alone in the Senate was able to summon all history and all literature to prove his point. Massive in his vanity, isolated in his tastes and life; and Sumner is dead. William Henry Seward was there, who had been for ten years the idol of a great following, and was the statesman of his party in 1860. Seward is dead. Stephen A. Douglas was there, his democracy pure and simple, and running through the warp and woof of his nature, his loyalty to the Union so deep-seated that not even disappointed ambition, always a destroyer of the best things in men, could shake it. "I am ready to act with any individual of any party, who will come to this question with an eye single to the preservation of the constitution and the Union," said Douglas in those trying hours. Douglas is dead. Andrew Johnson was there, his voice of the bravest, and Andrew Johnson is gone. George E. Pugh was there, fresh from the laurels of Charleston, that shrill tenor tone ringing like a silvery bell through the Senate chamber, clinging to the Union and to peace with tenacity, but to his belief with defiance; and that brilliant man sleeps. Jefferson Davis was there, saying, "If I could see any means by which I could avert the catastrophe of a struggle between the sections of the Union, my past life, I hope, gives evidence of the readiness with which I would make the effort. If, in the opinion of others, it be possible for me to do anything for the public good, the last moment while I stand here is at the command of the Senate; I will serve on the committee, if the Senate choose." There were thirty-three States then. There were other shining names in the list of Senators. There were names less lustrous that take places in our history. R. M. T. Hunter, Mason of Virginia, Robert Toombs, John J. Crittenden, Jesse D. Bright, Ben Wade, Lyman Trumbull, Yulee of Florida, Wigfall of Texas, Benjamin and Slidell, and others, were then Senators. The graves have opened, and events have shifted the leaders. Five States have been added to the Union since that time. Ten Senators have been added to the Senate of those ante-bellum days. The Senate never dies; but how changed is it!—Cincinnati Enquirer.

—Samuel Stickney, of Iowa, clapsed his best girl in an embrace so close that his revolver was discharged, and a boy standing near was seriously wounded. The lesson of this sad occurrence is that boys shouldn't stand around at such supreme moments.

—A monument is now being erected over the grave of Andrew Johnson at Greenville, Tenn., by his children, the cost of which will be about $8,000. The general design is an arch spanning the graves of the late ex-President and his wife, surmounted by a shaft. The height will be about twenty-eight feet, and the weight about twenty-seven tons.

—Two Arizona miners, Kellogg and Carter, recently quarrelled, and Kellogg fired at Carter. But Carter carried a Bible in his bosom which turned the bullet and gave him opportunity to lay Kellogg out with his bowie knife. The moral was spoiled by the fact that Carter, fleeing to escape arrest, was drowned while swimming a river in spite of his Bible.

—Mr. Darwin must look to his laurels. A Japan correspondent says that he saw wrought in inlaid wood on a door in the great Temple of Ligmoto, a scene showing first a monkey, then an ape, then a gorilla, and so on up by gradual development, until the final one of the series was a perfect man surrounded by elephants and curious birds. The door was several hundred years old.

—Canada is doing an immense business in shipping lobsters to England. Last week one ship from Halifax took $80,000 worth, in cans, for London, which represents something like 655,000 lobsters, and a few days before a $72,000 shipment was made. Frank Buckland is warning the Canadians against thus destroying a fishery that in future years will be even more valuable than now.

—The milky way—from the cowshed to the pump.

—"Ah, my dear," said he to his wife, "it's all right, and I'm sure I'm much obliged to you, you know, but if you had not given me that box of elegant cigars, I was thinking of swearing off on New Year's Day."

THE CITY.

See notice of auction sale of damaged goods at the auction store of H. F. Wendell, to-day.

An odd phenomenon appeared on our streets on Friday—a load of ice! It was cut for present use, and was some four or five inches in thickness.

There will be another Prize Assembly at Mechanics Hall, New Year's eve, Dec. 31. Presents to the best two dancers—lady and gentleman. Music by Harlow's Orchestra; tickets 50 cts.

The German ship Pauline, (late the American ship Kate Prince, built at this port,) was wrecked near Harlingen a few days ago; crew saved. She was a homely old box—one of the few clumsy-looking vessels ever built on the Piscataqua.

The Woman's Temperance League entertainments will be given on the following dates: Jan. 2d, 16th and 30th, Feb. 13th and 27th, and March 13th. Tickets ($1 for the course) can be procured at Kimball's drug store, or of members of the League.

We are informed that a large delegation from Eliot, where Maj. Urch delivered his first public lecture on temperance, will be in attendance at the Reform Club meeting in Franklin Hall, Sunday evening, when and where the lecture is to be repeated.

A little boy on Thursday evening presented himself at the entrance to Franklin Hall, where the Sunday school festival of St. John's church was in progress, and anxiously enquired, "Is this where Mr. St. John has his festival this evening?" He was passed in at once.

Randall & Caswell are doing a big business in fish; they received on Friday some 30,000 pounds, mostly large cod. The school of big fish that struck in on the coast some weeks ago has not yet gone off into deep water, and probably will not so long as the warm weather holds on.

Gen. Natt Head of Hooksett has been again re-elected president of the State Agricultural Society, and Aaron Young, Esq., of this city, treasurer. Hon. Warren Brown, of Hampton Falls, and Mr. Moses D. Page, of Dover, are among the vice presidents; and Col. Andrew H. Young, of Dover, and G. Byron Chandler, of Manchester, are the auditors.

We are informed that a "greenback club" (no half-and-half concern, but a genuine inflation, repudiation affair,) has been organized in this city, Mr. Gardner J. Greenleaf being the prime mover, and that the club on Friday "hired a hall"—and will at once proceed to make war on the national credit and honor, after the manner of other greenback clubs. Better go in for silver, boys; a dollar greenback is now worth almost as much as a gold dollar, whereas a silver "dollar of the fathers" is worth but about ninety cents; and if the laboring man is going to be benefited by the depreciation of the currency in which he must accept payment for his day's work, then of course the greater the depreciation the greater the benefit,—and when he has to take pay in some medium absolutely worthless, then he will be on a par with the millionaire. Silver is the stuff to go for, now.

POLICE COURT.

Friday, Dec. 28th; Batchelder, J.

Ellen Harrington was adjudged guilty on a charge of drunkenness; fine and costs, $9.90. John Griffin, a marine, and Hannah Griffin, his wife, do., do. Mr. and Mrs. Griffin paid up.

John F. Horrocks, for breaking and entering Hussey's store and stealing therefrom sundry boots and shoes, was held in $800 to answer at the April term of the Supreme Court.

ST. JOHN'S FESTIVAL.

The grand closing up of the Christmas festivities was given by the Episcopal church on Friday evening at Franklin Hall. The entertainment began with singing by the choir of children followed by tableaux vivant, selected and arranged by Chief Engineer Thom Williamson, U. S. N.,—the "guardian angel," scene from "the sorrows of Werter," two school scenes, "cause and effect," and "Mother Goose's shoe." They were admirably produced, and received merited encores. The next feature was the presentation of Madam Jarley's waxwork figures; comprising illustrations from Mother Goose's melodies. Capt. J. H. Higbee, U. S. M. C., as Madam Jarley, and Chief Engineer David B. Macomb as Tom, who wound up the figures, assisted by Paymaster May and Lieut. Parker, entered into the sport of the fun in real earnestness, and caused much merriment. Master Harry Carpenter was "Santa Claus." The representations of the figures were by the children of the Sunday School, who performed their characters to perfection; we did not see a failure in a single case. The Christmas tree, which was on the stage, was then shown, and the hundreds of Christmas presents were distributed; after which the children marched around the hall to the supper tables, which were bountifully filled with all the et ceteras for a good feast. After the supper, the children performed the grand march; then the floor was given to the dancers, Harlow's quadrille band furnishing the music. The festival was from 6:30 to 11:30, and was a continual scene of mirth. Every church in the city was represented among the spectators, and all were unanimous in the expression of having passed a happy evening. The number of children connected with the school is three hundred and eight. During the evening Rev. Mr. Holbrook, the rector, was presented with a very handsome bouquet by the children of the choir.

THE TRAMP NUISANCE.

Ed. Chronicle: What is to be done with the tramps? This question is constantly being asked and discussed through the papers, and our poor-houses, prisons and work-houses are being filled to overflowing, and the people are paying heavy taxes in consequence. Last year a resolution was offered in our City Government to order the authorities to employ the tramps in removing the filth from the mill-ponds. It was read, and no further notice taken of it; but it does seem as if this would be an effectual means of disgusting the tramps, and rid our section from their raids. Why is it not adopted? Let all the tramps of the county be set at work at such disagreeable work, and they will find a way of saving this county the expense of boarding them. This appears to me to mean business, and I have no doubt but the tramps will see it in the same light. The laws give us a perfect right to so employ them, and in this way it will not take half as long to rid the county of the tramp nuisance as it will to clean out the ponds. We may discuss the subject until worse places than mill-ponds freeze over, and still pay board bills for tramps; but this method appears feasible,—and at worst it will cost but little to try it. REVILO.

"A valuable horse of the writer's was kicked on the hock. Swelling and lameness ensued, rendering the animal nearly worthless. —Ancient fire-escapes—Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego.

—"The Keramic cigar" is the latest wrinkle; it ought to be "Keramik Kigar" to be consistent.

—A benevolent woman residing at Tiffin, O., being moved with pity for a destitute tramp, gave him a hearty meal and some old clothes. The thankful tramp sought to show his gratitude, and finding that the benevolent woman's husband lay sick of a colic, prescribed a dose of jimson-weed tea. The husband took it, and, unless it is mortgaged, there is now no incumbrance on the widow's farm.

—On Thanksgiving day a son of Congressman Kelley of Philadelphia was shot in the face by a colored barber, while riding in a horse car. Mr. Kelley is dissatisfied with the sentence of two and a half years imprisonment imposed by the judge and has introduced a motion in the court to have the sentence reconsidered and the full penalty of seven years imposed. This brings up a novel legal point, it being held by many prominent lawyers that a sentence once imposed cannot be increased.

—The late Mrs. Gen. Hooker, then Miss Groesbeck of Cincinnati, was once at an evening party in that city, when a young dandy was asked if he would like to be presented to her. "Oh, yes," said he, languidly, "trot her out." The lady overheard the remark, and when he was presented she adjusted her eye-glasses deliberately and slowly scanned his clothing from boot to collar. The survey finished, she waved her hand carelessly and said: "Trot him back; I have seen all there is of him."

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.
This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.
This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur
Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast which the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been speedily restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a lame horse. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.
J. B. ROSE & CO., 46 DEY ST., NEW YORK.

Honey
To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castorir is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., May 3, 1870.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & Co., N. Y.
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.

The Centaur Liniments are the greatest remedies ever discovered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

DR. PIERCE'S
STANDARD
REMEDIES
Are not advertised as "cure-alls," but are specifics in the diseases for which they are recommended.
NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial prosperity of man? An inferior cannot supersede a superior article. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Alterative, or Blood-cleansing.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Pectoral.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is a Chologogue, or Liver Stimulant.
Golden Medical Discovery
Is Tonic.
Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and Skin, as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness, Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
Where the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where livers are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If your feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy foreboding, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness," In many cases of "Liver Complaint," only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Dr. Pierce's
Pleasant
Purgative
Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.
The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Multum in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and are sugar-coated. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, heretofore so much in use.
As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say the laxative action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved uninpaired for any length of time, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. The daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

O ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and other causes induce it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often restores the growth; and always surely restores its color, when faded or gray.

It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus bushy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft — under which conditions, disease of the scalp cannot be possible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH

Of Ten Years' Duration. The Discharges Thick, Bloody, and of Foul Odor. Senses of Smell and Taste Wholly Gone. Entirely Cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. For ten years I have been afflicted with the loathsome disease, and especially in the winter time has it been most severe. The discharge has been thick and bloody, emitting a foul odor so bad that my presence in a room with other was very offensive to them. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was not troubled with it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were wholly gone, have now fully returned, and my general health is much improved. Yours,

MELBOURNE H. FORD,

Short-Haul Writer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 3, 1876.

Gentlemen: The package of SANFORD'S CURE arrived here to-night all right. I don't know what I should have done if it had not been for this remedy. I have tried Nasal Douches and everything else, and although I have been able to stop the offensive discharge, I have not been able to recover my senses of taste and smell until I tried SANFORD'S CURE. You can refer any one you choose to me, and I will cheerfully inform them in detail as to the benefit this remedy has been to me.

Yours, MELBOURNE H. FORD.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Nov. 15, 1876.

Beauty-Patches.

Not many fashions have equalled the absurdity of patches. It is true that nothing could better set off the color of a lovely cheek or the ivory of a snowy brow than these same patches; and in their day wherever there was a lovely cheek or an ivory forehead to set off, the patch was used, and sometimes where there was not. Was there a beautiful line of the eye-lid, a beautiful curve of the nostril, the patch was applied just near enough to draw the on-looker's eye; was there a sweet corner to the mouth, the patch pointed it out; a nestling dimple near, a patch lay just beside it. It was a curious fashion. Perhaps some high and mighty dame with an eruptive skin or an unsightly mole or mark first brought it into use; but there were none of the splendid beauties of the reigns of the Charleses in England, and of Louis XIV and XV in France, who did not know how to use it to advantage in gliding refined gold. Nor was it by any means original with these beauties; they had borrowed it from the use of the dandies of a yet earlier reign, the fops of Queen Elizabeth's day, who honored it equally with their love-locks. It was considered then a part of the accoutrements of a lover, and not for a hundred years later do we hear of its use by the opposite party. Nor was this patch a little thing calculated to escape observation. A bit of black taffeta gummed, or of gold-beater's skin suitably prepared, it was singularly fantastic and prominent. Sometimes it was a square, sometimes a lozenge, again it would be a star, a crescent marking the blue vein on the temple or the soft shadows beneath the eye; and a very favorite and striking patch indeed was a tiny coach and four, whip, driver, courier, and postillion, over the eyebrow. One would hardly imagine that the charm of beauty could be enhanced by such an obvious absurdity. But what everybody does ceases to be absurd; and as people were in that day not at all acquainted with the habits of the Feejeeans and their neighbors, it could not, of course, have occurred to them that a fine lady's face presented but a counterpart to the full dress tattoo of a Polynesian—so near, in such respect at least, was the greatest height of civilization reached two hundred years ago to the lowest depth of barbarism now.

He Did It.

Three score and ten is not a very green old age, if, as astronomers assert, the period of time in which the earth will be inhabited is as a minute to eternity of its actual existence. And yet some people will really forget that they were ever young. There she stood, the apple of their eyes, trembling with suppressed weeps. Their frowns deepened as the mother wiped her glasses preparatory to reading a letter found in the girl's pocket. It began "Angel of existence."

"What!" howled the male parent. "You don't mean to say it begins like that? Oh! that a child of mine should correspond with—But pray proceed, my dear."

"Hem! existence spelled with 'a,' too?" proceeded the mater.

"Why, the lunatic can't spell?" broke in the old man.

"It is impossible for me to describe the joy with which your presence has filled me."

"Then why does he attempt it, the ass? But pray don't let me interrupt you. Go on, go on; let joy be unconfined."

"I have spent the whole night in thinking of you"—that's picturesque, any way, "and bitterly deriding the obstinate besotted old whelp who will not consent to our union."

"Oh, let me get at him. 'Whelp.' Is thy servant a toad, that he should be thus spoken of?"

"But Theodorus, my dear," interrupted his other half.

"Yes, one moment; I was about to observe that the hand that could pen such words would not hesitate to scalp his most cherished relative."

"Theodorus, I didn't see this over the leaf."

"Eh! let me see, hum: 'Yours, with all the love of my heart—Theodorus, May 10th, 1835.' Why bless my eyes, it's one of my letters!" (Sensation.)

"Yes, papa," chimed in the little 'Olive Branch,' "I found it in the closet yesterday morning, only you wouldn't let me speak!"

"You may go to the park, my child. Hem! we've made a nice mess of it."

"Yes, love. Next time we will look at the date first."

Locomotives for Russia.

A recent announcement from Philadelphia says: One of the proprietors of the Baldwin Locomotive Works started for Russia last month, in response to a cable dispatch from the Russian government, inquiring about the terms, etc., for the building of a large number of locomotive engines. Recently the firm received from Mr. Parry directions to immediately proceed with the construction of fifty large-sized, first-class freight engines of five feet gauge, to be completed during February and March, 1878. It is stated in a letter received from Mr. Parry a few days ago that the Russian government has absorbed nearly all the railway plant for war purposes, and that it is being rapidly used up and destroyed in that ruinous service. Meanwhile the largest crop of wheat ever raised in Southern Russia and Bulgaria is rotting in the bins for need of transportation. This wheat, which usually finds an outlet from the Black Sea ports, will have to be transported by rail to the Baltic ports, and about three hundred new engines will be required at once. A large proportion of these will, however, be built in Europe. The engines to be built at the Baldwin Locomotive Works will cost upward of $800,000, and in their construction employment will be given to eight hundred men, in addition to the force of 1,100 men employed at the works.

The Eastern War.

The Sultan of Turkey has deposed Prince Milan from his position as ruler of Servia. Much Prince Milan will care about that.

A Russian official dispatch states that the steamer Russland, commanded by Adjutant Baranoff, who commanded the steamer Vesta in the affair with the Turkish iron clad Fithe Baulend, has returned to Sebastapool from a cruise in the Bosphorus, bringing as a prize the Turkish transport steamer Messina with 700 Turkish troops on board as prisoners.

News and Notes.

A Mr. Wright of New York bought at auction for $1,000 all right and title to Beecher's "Life of Christ," including the contract made by Beecher to write it, for which contract Beecher received $10,000. Wright now sues Beecher for the $10,000 paid him and $100,000 additional for damages for non-fulfillment of contract. Judge Fullerton is Wright's attorney.

It will be recollected that about a year ago a widow named Oliver brought suit against Hon. Simon Cameron for breach of marriage promise. Nothing has been publicly known concerning this suit till now, when it appears, by a statement of the Washington Star, that it was abandoned in January or February last, the widow having waived further proceedings in consideration of $1000.

Experiments have recently been made by the German artillery with a new rocket, which is intended to temporarily illuminate the siege or other works of an enemy. The head of the new rocket contains fifty-seven large and seventy-two smaller magnesium stars, which burn for fourteen seconds. The range of the rocket is 2,000 metres, but it can be fitted to explode at any desired distance from its point of departure.

U. S. Grant, Jr., has been appointed Assistant United States Attorney by Gen. Woodford, to attend specially to old and delayed customs cases. The appointment was made by Secretary Sherman.

The Golden Gate Mining Company, of Deadwood, have consummated a sale of their mines, the Father de Smet, Golden Gate, Justice and Belcher, to California capitalists, for the handsome sum of $400,000. This is the heaviest mining transaction that has occurred in the Black Hills.

Naval Affairs.

The U. S. S. Marion arrived at Nice, Dec. 9th. It is thought that, in the interests of economy, the Marion will be docked, either at Toulon or Marseilles, as she has been about four years in the water, and her hull is so coated with incrustations as to considerably reduce her speed. After the vessel is docked, and slight repairs executed to the machinery, the Marion will probably return to the East. This vessel reflects great credit on her personnel for the efficiency which has been maintained, during her constant cruising, whilst she was the only vessel of the Mediterranean fleet.—Army and Navy Journal.

New Hampshire Items.

Thomas B. Dustin, of Suncook, a great grandson of Mrs. Hannah Dustin, of Haverhill, Mass., who was taken captive by the Indians, died on Christmas day, aged sixty-eight.

Inspector General D. J. Vaughan on Friday evening inspected the Manchester War Veterans. The Mirror says: "Col. Vaughan addressed the company, the members of which appeared in uniform, speaking a few encouraging words and telling them of the necessity of having a well organized company. The inspection occupied about an hour and seemed to give Col. Vaughan perfect satisfaction."

The Bank Commissioners have cut down the deposits of the Derry Savings Bank twenty-five per cent. This shrinkage was made necessary by bad paper and poor investments. It is stated that the bank will pay only four per cent. interest on remaining assets.

The State Tax Commissioners were in session at Concord, Thursday, for the purpose of giving a hearing to persons interested in the subject of taxing express companies. All the express companies in the State were represented, Hon. John Minot appearing as counsel. He had permission granted him to present his views at greater length in a brief. Previous to the hearing ex-Judges Fowler and Nesmith appeared before the Commissioners to give their views as to what is meant by "capital" in a railroad corporation according to the laws in this State. From their statements it appeared that there had always been a diversity of opinion in Court on the question whether bonds should be treated as stock. Both gentlemen agreed in their views that they should be so treated in assessing taxes upon a railroad. The hearings before the Commissioners seem likely to develop some interesting questions for consideration.

The death of Oliver Holt, of Alstead, occurred a short time since, and on Saturday morning, Dec. 22d, Mrs. Holt passed away at the age seventy-eight years. After a married life of nearly fifty-five years, they were not long separated by death.

Political.

When Senator David Davis wakes up in the morning he calls out to his private secretary: "John, on which side did I vote yesterday?" "Democratic," says John. "Ah! then this is the republicans' day. John, put a cannon ball in each coat-tail pocket!"—Chicago Post.

The House committee, having charge of the revision of the laws regarding the counting of the electoral votes for President and Vice President, will hold its first meeting on the 10th of January.

It has been expected ever since Congress met that General Butler would move for an investigation in the methods by which the Louisiana commission accomplished the work it was dispatched to do, and the charges now made by Mr. Chandler will without doubt be used as a sufficient reason for moving such an inquiry. It is said that Hayes' alleged bargain with southern democrats can't be proved.

American Inventions.

American Inventive Genius, conspicuous for years past, was never more fertile than at present. True, no decided triumphs like our reapers, sewing machines, telegraphs and duplex telegraphs occur every year,—but in the general line of useful inventions, the United States lead the world. With higher wages for labor, our improved machinery now enables us to compete successfully in all the principal markets of the world in the sale of many of our manufactured goods. England even buys largely of our domestics: our agricultural implements harrow up the soil of the whole world; the melody of the American organs and pianos is heard wherever civilization has extended; our grain, our beef, our canned goods, feed untold myriads in Europe and elsewhere. The bulk of this great success, for a nation but a century old, is due to the inventive capacity of its people in planning machinery to produce, methods to preserve, and means for safe transportation for long distances. With all this, many most meritorious inventors are debarred from any personal benefit from their contributions to public welfare by an ignorance of the multifarious intricacies of the Patent Office. To such we would commend Mr. R. H. Eddy, 76 State street, Boston, as a leading solicitor of patents; one who has not only had a very long and successful practice in his business, but from his familiarity with the laws and technicalities in this and foreign countries, is most competent to advise inventors in regard to American and European patents, trade-marks, designs, reissues, etc.

Reported Remedy for Diphtheria.

A few years ago, when diphtheria was raging in England, a gentleman accompanied the celebrated Dr. Field on his rounds to witness the so-called "wonderful cures" which he performed, while the patients of others were dropping on all sides. The remedy, to be so rapid, must be simple. All he took with him was powder of sulphur and a quill, and with these he cured every patient without exception. He put a teaspoonful of flour of brimstone into a wineglass of water, and stirred it with his finger, instead of a spoon, as the sulphur does not readily amalgamate with water. When the sulphur was well mixed, he gave it as a gargle, and in ten minutes the patient was out of danger. Brimstone kills every species of fungus in a man, beast and plant in a few minutes. Instead of spitting out the gargle, he recommended the swallowing of it.

In extreme cases, in which he had been called just in the nick of time, when the fungus was too nearly closing to allow the gargling, he blew the sulphur through a quill into the throat, and after the fungus had shrunk to allow it, then the gargling. He never lost a patient from diphtheria. If a patient cannot gargle, take a live coal, put it it on a shovel and sprinkle a spoonful or two of flour of brimstone at a time upon it, let the sufferer inhale it, holding the head over it, and the fungus will die. If plentifully used, the whole room may be filled almost to suffocation; the patient can walk about in it, inhaling the fumes, with doors and windows shut. The mode of fumigating a room with sulphur has often cured most violent attacks of cold in the head, chest, etc., at any time, and is recommended in cases of consumption and asthma.

—The authorities of Memphis, Tenn., thought the number of marriages was falling off, and reduced the charge for a license to fifty cents. A local paper says that the inducement has been sufficient and the number of marriages has largely increased under the reduced fee.

—Mr. and Mrs. Forrester of the Opera House, Denver, received an ovation—in the shape of rotten eggs—recently. It was the first night of Boucicault's "Shaughraun." All went well until the beginning of the "wake scene" when some persons in the gallery began to express disapproval of the play, by throwing eggs.

Books, Magazines, Etc.

MESSRS. H. O. HOUGHTON & COMPANY, of Boston, publishers of the Atlantic Monthly, have just issued a fine, life-size portrait of John Greenleaf Whittier, the beloved and honored Quaker poet, whose name is a household word in tens of thousands of homes, and wherever the English language is spoken. The fact that Mr. Whittier has just completed his 70th year makes the publication of his portrait at this time peculiarly appropriate, and we are sure that there are many of our readers who will be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity to procure it. The price of the portrait to all subscribers or purchasers of the Atlantic Monthly is but One Dollar, and the picture, which is of unusual excellence and finish, is the work of Mr. J. E. Baker, one of the best crayon artists in the country. The Atlantic itself presents a most attractive programme for the coming year, —serial stories by W. D. Howells, Henry James, Jr., and W. A. Bishop; short stories by T. B. Aldrich, Rose Terry Cooke, Constance F. Woolson, J. W. De Forest, and others; frequent sketches and essays by Mark Twain and Charles Dudley Warner, two of the best American humorists; descriptions of foreign life and travel by the sculptor Story, T. B. Aldrich and C. E. Norton; poetry by Whittier, Longfellow, and Holmes; and, not least, a thorough and impartial treatment of questions of public interest, such as Finance, Government Reform, etc.,—all for $4.00 a year. The publishers will moreover send the November and December numbers for the present year free to all new subscribers who ask for them. Beautiful life-size portraits of Longfellow and Bryant, similar to that of Whittier, can be also obtained by subscribers or purchasers, if desired, for One Dollar each, additional. The Galaxy, which has for the past eleven years been prominent and popular to a rare degree among American magazines, has just been consolidated with the Atlantic, thus widening the field and strengthening the hold of the latter upon public favor and esteem.

The new year of Littell's Living Age opens with the number for the week ending January 5th. Owing to the recent establishment of important periodicals abroad—notably The Nineteenth Century in England,—and to the simultaneous improvement of others, a fresh impetus has been given to foreign periodical literature; the ablest living thinkers and writers being enlisted in its service to an extent heretofore probably unequalled. The Living Age presents with satisfactory completeness what is most valuable in this literature. In the department of fiction the best foreign authors will be represented in serial and short stories. The publication of a new story by William Black is to be begun in January, from advance sheets, and other attractions will follow. The beginning of a new volume is a favorable time for new subscriptions, and the publishers still present to new subscribers for 1878 the last seven numbers of 1877, which contain the first instalments of a fine new German serial, translated for The Living Age; also a serial story by Miss Thackeray, and the usual large amount of other valuable matter. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than three thousand pages a year) the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10.50 the publishers offer to send any one of the American $4 monthlies or week lies with The Living Age for a year, both postpaid. LITTELL & GAY, Boston, are the publishers.

For $5.00 you can get SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY, one of the best of all the illustrated magazines, for one year and a half, beginning with the magnificent Midsummer number for August last, and containing all the chapters of "His Inheritance," Miss Trafton's graphic story of Army Life; all of "Roxy," Edward Eggleston's New Novel, a story of Western life during the political campaign of 1840; and Boyesen's novel, "A Knight of Fortune," the story of a community of emigrants in the North-west; besides shorter stories by Mrs. Burnett, Saxe Holm, Boyesen, etc., and Illustrated Poems, Travel Sketches, Essays, Reviews, nearly a dozen of the splendidly illustrated series of "Out-of-Door" Papers, including all the numbers of SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY from August, 1877, to January, 1879, inclusive, and also the splendid Christmas Holiday Number of ST. NICHOLAS for December, 1877, containing one hundred pages—the finest number of a children's magazine ever issued in this or any other country; the whole containing more than 2,000 octavo pages of the best and latest illustrated literature.

Residents on Vaughan street were somewhat startled at an early hour Sunday morning, by loud cries of "murder," made by an insane man who was being taken to the cars by the police, to be sent away.

The funeral services of the late Mr. John Stokell, Sunday, were attended by the Knights Templar, Freemasons and Odd Fellows, of which orders he was a respected member. The Dover Cornet Band was employed.

Mr. A. P. Caswell, who is in the employ of Messrs. Randall & Caswell, on Friday, between the hours of eight o'clock A. M. and 5:30 P. M., split 28,000 pounds of fish. This is hard to beat.—if it was really done, as reported, which seems hardly credible.

The W. T. L. Committee have arranged a rare treat for the music-loving portion of our community; those who have listened to the sweet, rich tones of Miss Carl's voice will gladly avail themselves of this opportunity of repeating the pleasure, and those that have not heard her can do so now. Secure your tickets immediately, as there but a few left.

On Saturday afternoon two teams (one belonging to Mr. Robert Marden and the other to Mr. William Sladen) had a collision near the junction of Congress and Middle streets. Both men were thrown from their teams, Mr. Marden striking the ground very heavily, while Mr. Sladen escaped any serious injury. Mr. Sladen's horse disengaged himself from the wagon and ran down Congress street, but was stopped before going far or doing any damage, Mr. Marden was taken home in an unconscious condition, and Dr. Whittier sent for.

One of the neatest souvenirs we have lately seen is a book with the record of the proceedings at the first gathering of the descendants of John Shillaber, at Peabody, Mass., Oct. 4th, 1877. It contains the genealogy of the family, the formation of the society, the address of welcome and the speech of the orator of the day, a poem by Mr. B. P. Shillaber, (Mrs. Partington,) names of the family representatives present, reminiscences of those connected with the family, and their places of residence and the branches of business they are engaged in.

Mr. James Douglas, one of our public spirited adopted citizens, still clings to the old Scotch custom of giving a New Year's supper, which he has done for many years. All his friends (and they are many) are invited, and the occasion is one always enjoyed by all who participate. On Saturday evening a large number sat down to this annual supper; the festivities were enlivened by the singing of a number of Scotch songs by a select quartette, and other amusements, which were kept up to a late hour. Mr. Douglas has lately bought the buildings on the corner of Deer and Vaughan streets, and made extensive repairs on them, which add much to the appearance of that neighborhood.

MAN OVERBOARD.

On Sunday morning, about two o'clock, Asst. Marshal Gray and Officers Moore and Abbott were attracted to the vicinity of the Spring Market by the cries of some person in distress; for some time they were unable to trace whence the sounds proceeded, but finally located the spot under one of the wharves near the market. It was very dark at the time, and the officers had great difficulty in finding a boat with which to go to the rescue, and in the end could only get one of the large, heavy ones owned by the navy yard workmen; and as all the oars in it were chained and locked, they had to draw the boat along from pile to pile with their hands until they reached the wharf where the man was, and even then it was a work of much difficulty to get him, owing to the intense darkness under the wharf, and the inconvenient size of the boat. The man in the water turned out to be Henry Spinney, of Eliot, who while starting for home (being under the influence of liquor at the time) had fallen out of his boat near Fernald's boat-landing, and drifted down with the tide to the place where he was found, where he clung to a pile with his head just above water until the officers reached him. After taking Spinney from his perilous and uncomfortable position, the officers picked up his boat and secured it.

POLICE COURT.

Saturday, Dec. 29th; Batchelder, J.

Michael Curtis, Lewis Ayers and John Foley, were before the court nearly all day, under examination on a charge of breaking and entering the liquor saloon of John Haber on Brewster street, on the night of Dec. 17th, and stealing therefrom $206. Ayers and Foley were discharged, the evidence being insufficient to hold them. Curtis was bound over in $300 to answer at the April term of the Supreme Court.

THE WEATHER SIGNALS.

The signal station to be established by the government at this port will soon be in operation, an agent from the War Department being expected daily with the necessary apparatus for it. Arrangements have been made with the Western Union Telegraph Co., for a night operator, who will remain in the office until two o'clock A. M.; Mr. George Nutter will have this position. John J. Pickering, Esq., who has taken a great deal of interest in this matter, will erect on the building on the corner of Market and Daniel streets such a flag-staff as will be suitable for the displaying of the signals, and will make any other arrangements needed. Mr. J. Dwight Rundlett, who has been in correspondence with the signal service bureau on this subject, has (in company with Capt. Albert Rand) been on the river to see what place would be most suitable for the showing of the signals, and they agree that the place named is the best, as flags displayed from a very moderate elevation at that point can be seen from the lower harbor, over a depression in the intervening land, when the custom house flag is entirely hidden.

THE DUELS AT SEABROOK.

More than sixty years since, we learn by tradition, there were at least three different duels in Seabrook; but we cannot learn the names of the parties, nor the causes of the quarrels. Seabrook being over the State line, the contestants, doubtless, chose its woods to escape the officers of Massachusetts.

In 1809, a carriage and two mounted men, early in the morning, went to a piece of woods near the present station of the Eastern Railroad, measured the ground, and fought with pistols. On their return they inquired for a surgeon, as one of the party was wounded. A man by the name of Rowe concealed himself in the bushes and saw the duel. A woman who died within a month said she heard the pistol shots. A man still living said he saw a chip on the ground stained with blood.

Another duel was fought a little below the line of the Railroad, and a surgical instrument was found afterwards on the ground; but of this affair I can learn but little.

Another party went to Folly-mill woods, and fought near the ground where the road to Amesbury crossed the brook; and from this encounter one of the combatants returned wounded.

It is said that two young men, who both sought the hand of a lady, met; and one of them showed a rose that she had given him. The other replied, "It smells of disdain," and then challenged him; and that they fought in Seabrook. It is said that one of the duellists was a graduate of Harvard College, and a general in the army.

Should anyone see this communication, who has any knowledge of these duels or feels any interest in the subject, I hope we shall learn something more. The files of the New Hampshire GAZETTE, the Newburyport Herald or the Columbian Centinel, may perhaps give some reports, which may be interesting to our students of local history. We may imagine how the strangers came to Newburyport, spent the night at the hotel with the sign of Gen. Wolf, left early in the morning to satisfy their sense of honor or revenge in the woods of Seabrook, and how they returned to their friends; but we know but little of the history of these affairs of honor.

THE VICINITY.

Mr. Ephraim Downing, of Newington, was knocked down and trampled on by a yoke of oxen a few days ago, receiving severe injuries about the head.

Uri Lamprey, Esq., of Hampton, while trimming a tree recently, fell to the ground and was severely hurt, having a rib broken and his shoulder wrenched.

Rev. James DeNormandie, of this city, who preaches monthly in the Congregational church at Eliot, is highly appreciated by the people of that district,—orthodox and all.

Hon. Joseph A. C. Wingate, of Stratham, has sold to Mr. Charles E. Gear between three and four hundred cords of standing wood. It is to be worked up at fifty cents per cord.

Some weeks ago the store of Abbott Norris, at North Hampton, was burglarized and a quantity of goods taken therefrom. Some of the stolen goods were last week discovered, it is reported, in a barn near Concord.

York river has been entirely free of ice to the head of tide water this season, until Saturday morning, when it was slightly skimmed over for a short distance just where tide water ends. Residents near by say they never knew the river open so late in the season before.

On Christmas eve the Methodist church at Spruce Creek, Kittery, was the scene of a pleasant festival; a stage was fitted up, and on it was a Christmas tree, bearing presents for the children; and tableaux, dialogues, declamation and singing served to wear away a very pleasant evening. At Mr. Strout's church, (Methodist,) in Eliot, there was a festival, with Christmas tree, etc., on Christmas day; and similar entertainments for the little folks were gotten up at Kittery Point and the Foreside.

FROM The Christian Union, Aug. 22, 1877:

"A valuable horse of the writer's was kicked on the hock. Swelling and lameness ensued, rendering the animal nearly worthless. We were advised to try Giles' Liniment, and are gratified to say it acted like a charm. About two inches of bone came away, the sore healed up, and the lameness and swelling are fast disappearing.

Portsmouth Chronicle

—A few weeks ago the quartermaster-general of the Turkish army issued rations of soap to all of the regiments in the army of the faithful. The astonished warriors took it, looked at it, felt it, wondered what it was for, and finally made soup of it.

—Dragon, moss, olive, lizard, myrtle, seafoam, Nile, salad, bottle, bronze and hunter's green are the various shades of this one color, now the favorite of fashion. The pea green and apple green, known to the last generation, are never mentioned.

—Mr. Sutton, a well-known professional base-ball player, was converted at a revival meeting in Philadelphia not long ago. He arose to address the meeting, and said: "I have made the first base, and by the help of the Lord, will make a home run."

—A large increase is noted in the number of marriage certificates issued in Boston during the last two weeks over the corresponding period last month and last year. As the matrimonial market is more or less influenced by the condition of business, this may be considered a sign that the times are improving.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.
This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.
It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purpose."
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.
This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Centaur
Liniments.
They relieve pain;
They subdue swellings;
They cure burns without a scar.
The White Centaur Liniment is now the standard remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Frost Bites, Caked Breasts, Itch, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc. These Liniments have stood the test of time. They have performed more wonderful cures of obstinate bed-ridden cripples, and have alleviated more pains in a shorter space of time, than have all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Ointments and Salves in existence. Their sale is increasing regularly and rapidly. Their best endorsers are physicians, surgeons and veterinaries. There is literally no case of flesh, bone, or muscle ailment upon either man or beast what the Centaur Liniments will not alleviate and generally cure. But it must be understood that there are two kinds of Liniment; the White is for family use and the Yellow for horses and animals. For horses and mules liable to Spavin, Ring-bone, Sweeney, Galls, Strains, Stringhalt, Poll-evil, etc., the Yellow Centaur Liniment is worth its weight in gold. We have thousands of certificates relating how valuable horses have been specifically restored by a dollar bottle of this wonderful all-healing remedy. The same is constantly told of the effects upon the human frame. Persons hobbling upon crutches for years from Stiff Joints, Tumors and Old Sores, have, by the use of a few bottles of the White Centaur Liniment, been restored to the use of all their limbs. The effects are next to marvels. We will give the Liniment to any person who ever heard of a failure. Such a case has never been reported to us. These Liniments are now sold throughout the habitable globe.

Honey
To the taste but death to Gripes and Stomach complaints. Pitcher's Castoria is a complete substitute for Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as Honey. It is particularly adapted to Teething and irritable children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, regulates the Stomach, and cures Wind Colic. No remedy is as efficacious for Feverishness, Croup, Worms and Whooping Cough. Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, more effective than Castor Oil, and neither gags nor gripes.
COLUMBIA, CONN., MAY 3, 1876.
Messrs. J. B. ROSE & Co., N. Y.:
I have a family of eight children, and have used your CASTORIA. I have never found anything equal to it. My children have been saved from severe sickness by the use of CASTORIA. I recommend it in preference to any medicine I know. I feel it is a pleasure to give this certificate on account of the benefits I have derived by the use of your admirable preparation.
Very truly yours,
NORMAN P. LITTLE.
The Centaur Liniments are the greatest covered for all flesh, bone, and muscle ailments—Bites, Bruises, Swellings, Burns, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, etc. What the White Liniment does for the human family, the Yellow Liniment does for horses and animals. They are cheap, they are convenient, and they are certain in their effects.

Children cry for Pitcher's Castoria. It is as pleasant to take as honey. It contains no morphine or other deleterious ingredient, and is sure to expel worms, cure wind colic, regulate the bowels and stomach, and overcome irritation caused by rash or cutting teeth. Mothers can rest, and children enjoy health, who use Castoria. It is harmless, it is certain, it is speedy, and it is cheap.

REMEDIES

NATURAL SELECTION.
Investigators of natural science have demonstrated beyond controversy, that throughout the animal kingdom the "survival of the fittest" is the only law that vouchsafes thrift and perpetuity. Does not the same principle govern the commercial property of man? An article must have superlative superiority. By reason of superior merit, Dr. Pierce's Standard Medicines have outrivaled all others. Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. No business could grow to such gigantic proportions and rest upon any other basis than that of merit.

Golden Medical Discovery
By reason of its Alterative properties, cures Diseases of the Blood and skin, such as Scrofula or King's Evil; Tumors; Ulcers or Old Sores; Blotches; Pimples; and Eruptions. By virtue of its Pectoral properties, it cures Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affections; Incipient Consumption; Lingering Coughs; and Chronic Laryngitis. Its Cholagogue properties render it an unequaled remedy for Biliousness, Torpid Liver, or "Liver Complaint;" and its Tonic properties make it equally efficacious in curing Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, and Dyspepsia.
When the skin is sallow and covered with blotches and pimples, or where there are scrofulous swellings and affections, a few bottles of Golden Medical Discovery will effect an entire cure. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits and gloomy foreboding, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness," in many cases of "Liver Complaint," only partially developed, so that a trial experiment. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy.

Pleasant
Purgative
Pellets.
Purely Vegetable. No care required while using them.
The "Little Giant" Cathartic, or Nature in Parvo Physic, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, and as easy to take. They remove the necessity of taking the great, crude, drastic, sickening pills, here before so much in use.
As a remedy for Headache, Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the Head, Tightness about the Chest, Bad Taste in Mouth, Eructations from the Stomach, Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Pain in the Kidneys, Highly-colored Urine, and Internal Fever, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are unsurpassed. Furthermore, I would say that their action is universal, not a gland escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair their virtues, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills which are put up in cheap wooden or aluminoid boxes. In daily use of two Pellets has cured the most obstinate cases of Scrofula, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Sore Eyes, and Eruptions. They are, however, recommended to be taken in connection with the Golden Medical Discovery, in order to secure the best results.
